BUDGET BOARD TO RULE COUNTY WINS APPROVAL

Merriam Plan Given O. K. of Officials.

Cut County's Estimates

County board decides to appropriate against only 60 per cent of 1933 tax levy as a safeguard against heavy delinquencies. Details on page 6.

Representatives of the city, school board, county and forest preserves and Lincoln and west park boards yesterday adopted a resolution indorsing in principle a budgetary control commission with powers to fix limits on the expenditures of Cook county governments, as it was described to them by Prof. Charles E. Merriam of the University of Chicago.

Mayor Cermak presided at the meeting held in his office and called in pursuance of a city council resolution authorizing him to form a committee of governmental heads to consider financial legislation affecting local governments.

Officials at Meeting.

Those who attended included School Trustee Orville J. Taylor, President Emmet Whealan of the county and forest preserve boards, President Harry Joseph of the west park board, President A. D. Plamondon of the Lincoln park board, Ald. John S. Clark [30th], James B. Bowler [25th], Jacob M. Arvey [24th], and John A. Massen [48th], Corporation Counsel Sexton, City Controller Szymczak, Assessor Jacobs, B. F. Lindheimer, chairman of the state commerce commission; State Senator Richey V. Graham, John Richert, head of the council finance committee staff; D. F. Kelly and John C. Rees of the citizens' committee on public expenditures, and Douglas Sutherland of the civic federation and bureau of public efficiency.

At the opening of the meeting Mr. Rees told the gathering that a committee of lawyers, composed of Francis X. Busch, Rush C. Butler, and Lester L. Falk, is drafting for the citizens' committee a budgetary control measure along the lines outlined by Prof. Merriam, and also proposed legislation to facilitate the collection of taxes. The group authorized Mayor Cermak to appoint a subcommittee to assist the lawyers.

Three Important Points.

"In thinking this over," said Prof. Merriam when he explained the budgetary control proposals, "I considered these three points: what bodies should be included under the jurisdiction of this board or commission; the powers to be delegated to it, and how it shall be chosen.

"As to the first point, it seems that it might be best to limit jurisdiction to those governmental agencies that are mainly contained within the city of Chicago, such as the city itself, the public library, municipal tuberculosis sanitarium, the county government, the schools, the sanitary district and the three major park boards. It might be made optional for other bodies, such as suburban municipalities, to come in, but that suggestion has not been fully discussed and some of the smaller governments may object.

"You can go either a long or a short way in fixing the commission's powers. This board could have control over the total amount of appropriations or it could merely fix the amounts to be appropriated from tax revenue.

Limiting Board Control.

"If the board had control over the total expenditures, and some new source of revenue were found during the year, that could be applied to the next year's budget. But if you limit the control of the board to tax revenues, some governmental agency might dig up some other source of revenue and spend considerably more than its functions justify. The direct road seems to be to let this board fix a limit on expenditures.

"Proposals for bond issues could also be submitted to this board for report, and in that way the larger picture of what would be added to the tax burden in the form of funded debt charges could be seen and controlled.

"There might also be submitted to the board all proposals of governments for their financial relief, to be presented to the legislature later. A large number of the gentlemen at Springfield are from downstate. It is hard for them to keep track of all the proposals made by the individual governments to widen their functions and increase their tax rates.

"As they come up one by one be

1930 Air Race Corp. to Stage Event.

It was announced yesterday that the Chicago Air Race corporation, in coöperation with THE TRIBUNE, will bring the outstanding speed and stunt pilots of the United States and Europe to compete in a four day charity air meet in Chicago on July 1 to 4. The Chicago Air Race corporation is the official body which managed the national air races in Chicago in 1930.

The announcement came from John Hertz, vice president, on behalf of the directors of the corporation. Mr. Hertz has called a meeting of the directors for next Wednesday to amend the charter and bylaws of the corporation to make it possible to hold the charity show this summer as a contribution to the success of the Century of Progress Exposition. The amendment will make it possible to hold the air meet as an annual attraction in Chicago.

Seek Association Sanction.

Application to the National Aeronautical association for official sanction of the meet will be made immediately following the directors' meeting and annual election of officers of the air race corporation next week. Leading citizens of Chicago who are members of the board of directors are:

W. B. Abbott	Allan Jackson
Sewell L. Avery	Weymouth Kirkland
Vincent Bendix	Reed G. Landis
Frank Bering	A. D. Lasker
Aldis Browne	Lucius B. Manning
Britton I. Budd	John J. Mitchell
Arthur G. Cable	Harold F. McCormick
E. L. Cord	Robert R. McCormick
M. M. Corpening	C. A. McCulloch
Edward N. D'Ancona	Frederick H. Rawson
Charles G. Dawes	Earle H. Reynolds
Clarence K. Falk	John A. Ritchie
Oscar G. Foreman	James Simpson
Leonard Florsheim	John R. Thompson
Charles F. Glore	Warren Wright
Homer Guck	Philip K. Wrigley
John Hertz	C. R. Walgreen
Edward N. Hurley

The races have already been assured an international flavor. The National Aeronautical association and the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, of which it is the representative in the United States, have already awarded to Chicago the 1933 international balloon race for the Gordon Bennett cup. The 1932 race started from Basel, Switzerland, and was won from a field of German, French, Austrian, Polish, Swiss, Belgian, and Spanish balloonists by Commander E. G. W. Settle in a United States navy balloon.

Americans to Defend Trophy.

Commander Settle is expected to come to Chicago this year, along with Ward T. Van Orman, three times winner of the Bennett trophy, to defend it against the European invaders. Authorities of the race will be requested to fix the date for the start of the race on one of the days of the charity meet sponsored by THE TRIBUNE. Mr. Van Orman has already inspected a site on the World's Fair grounds for the takeoff.

In addition to its balloonists, Italy will send twenty of its giant seaplanes to Chicago at the time of the races. Gen. Aldo Pellegrini, one of the leading aviation officials of the Italian army, sailed for the United States a few days ago to make arrangements for the flight.

Fly by Northern Route.

The planes, according to present plans, will take off May 24 from Ortebello, near Rome. They will fly the Atlantic by the northern route touching at Iceland and Greenland, and are expected to take three or four weeks in the passage. Gen. Italo Balbo, chief of Italy's air forces, will probably lead the flight.

Another feature being considered for the race is a marine speed exhibition on Lake Michigan off the Century of Progress grounds by racing seaplanes. Anthony Vickers, British plane manufacturer, is understood to be willing under certain conditions, to send to Chicago the Rolls-Royce motored supermarine plane which last year won permanent possession of the Schneider cup by setting a world's air speed record of 409 miles per hour.

Generous Cash Prizes.

The presence of these foreign flying celebrities is expected to augment the hundreds of thousands of visitors expected daily in Chicago during the Century of Progress exposition. Generous cash prizes are expected to attract the cream of American and European flyers, both men and women, as well as stunt flyers and aerial specialists.

HOME OF ASQUITH SOLD BY WIDOW FOR "MERE SONG"

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—The Wharf Sutton Courtnay, Berkshire country home of the late Premier Asquith, was sold by his widow today for a "mere song," the exact price being withheld.

Lady Asquith said straitened circumstances, chiefly resulting from taxation and decline in dividends, forced her to sell the house, famous in the political and social history of the nation. It formerly belonged to Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree. The earl of Oxford and Asquith bought the house in 1912 and altered it extensively. It became a resort of politicians of all ages and parties, with Lady Asquith as hostess, while Premier Asquith held many wartime consultations there. He died and was buried on the estate.

The estate was purchased by L. B. Martin, a London business man, who said it had been offered him for £7,000 [$35,000 at par], but he had made a considerably lower offer.

Seize Raymun as Slayer of Wife in Hotel

Robert Raymun, 35 years old, former speakeasy owner who had been sought by the police since the body of his wife, Leola, who had been shot to death, was found Thursday evening in a room at the City Hall Square hotel, was arrested last night at Broadway and Catalpa avenue.

Intoxicated, carrying a pistol, and having in his pocket the key to the hotel room where the tragedy occurred, Raymun battled for several minutes with Policemen Edward Garrick and Robert Callahan before he was subdued. They did not know who he was and were only seeking to arrest him as a drunk.

Key Reveals Identity.

When the key was discovered, however, he admitted his identity. Taken to the central police station and questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Ross Lee Laird and Capt. Charles Larkin, the prisoner would make only one statement:

"I'm in bad and I want a drink."

The captain offered him water, which wasn't what he wanted. A little later Raymun fell into a deep slumber.

Hotel employés had told the police that Raymun spent the night of Wednesday in the hotel room with his wife, and that he left at 8 a. m. on Thursday. Mrs. Raymun, according to Coroner Walsh, apparently was dead when Raymun left. She had been killed with a .32 caliber weapon, and the one the husband carried last night was of the same size.

Accused by Inquest Jury.

Yesterday afternoon a coroner's jury returned a verdict holding that Raymun had slain her. Several witnesses told of the couple's troubles.

Edward W. Altz, 24 East Delaware place, a private investigator, testified that Raymun and his wife had been separated and that he had been retained by Raymun to find her. According to Altz, Raymun had furnished their flat at 533 Wellington avenue with $18,000 worth of furniture, which she had moved out, and had given her jewelry and considerable money, part of which he hoped to get back after their separation.

"He came to my office and appeared highly nervous," Altz said. "He asked for a couple drinks, which I gave him. He had no money and had deeded his automobile to me in payment for my services. At that time I gave him $80 for the difference."

Mrs. Lila Kutz, 4875 North Paulina street, a friend of Mrs. Raymun, testified that Raymun repeatedly threatened his wife.

'SCARLET LYNX' CAUSES A STIR IN EVANSTON HOME

Dr. and Mrs. Samuel Lang, 1414 Lincoln street, Evanston, received a letter last Wednesday informing them that they would have to pay $50 a week to the writer. Unless they did so the kidnaping of their children was threatened.

The letter, signed "The Scarlet Lynx," said the author would call Mrs. Lang on the telephone for her decision yesterday. The call was made and Mrs. Lang agreed to pay.

A decoy package was arranged. Policemen hidden nearby saw "The Scarlet Lynx" a little later searching the roadway for the weekly payment. They seized him and found he was Blair Miller, 15 years old, 1415 Lincoln street, a student at the Evanston Township High school. After he had admitted his attempted extortion the Langs decided they didn't want to prosecute. Blair was turned over to his father, James B. Miller.

BOMB SHATTERS FUNERAL CHAPEL ON ROOSEVELT RD.

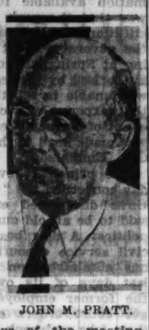
Damage estimated at several hundred dollars was caused last evening by the explosion of a bomb at a side door of the Piser undertaking establishment at 3125 Roosevelt road.

Windows were broken in half a dozen nearby buildings. The blast was set off on the Troy street side of the Piser chapel. The door was torn away and the interior was partially wrecked. At 3137 West Roosevelt road diners in an oriental restaurant were showered with glass from shattered windows.

The police were inclined to blame the bomb on a controversy between Samuel Piser, the undertaker, and his union drivers and liverymen.

Tax Strikers in Near Riot Over Director

Resentment against the one man rule of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers by John M. Pratt, $20,000 a year executive director, has split the 28,000 members and the board of directors into two bitterly warring factions. This was learned yesterday after a meeting of workers who solicit memberships was held in the Palmer house while husky guards stood watch at the doors of the meeting room.



JOHN M. PRATT.

So wide is the split, it was learned, that nine of the fourteen members of the executive committee voted recently to suspend operations of the association's office, practically ousting Director Pratt. But Pratt, backed by James E. Bistor, chairman, refused to be fired. The association has led the tax strike which is holding up payment of 200 million dollars in taxes in Chicago.

Charges of Extravagance.

It was learned from an authoritative source that Pratt and Bistor have been accused by a majority of the board of directors of extravagances, unwise spending of association funds, and distribution of funds without authority.

The workers' meeting called yesterday by Bistor and Pratt at times assumed the proportions of a riot. From behind the locked doors came shouts from the 200 present. The vigilant guards kept reporters at a distance.

The first significant note was the hurried exit of a group of six, headed by Thomas D. Collins, one of the directors, who started a meeting of their own on the floor below.

A number of disgruntled workers left from time to time as the meeting proceeded stormily while addresses were made by Bistor, Pratt and others.

"All those guys want is a lot of easy money," one of these men was heard to remark to another as they left. Others muttered about "sluggers" as they departed.

Leans on Arm of Friend.

Finally, after three hours, Pratt appeared, leaning heavily on the arm of a friend who clapped him on the back and told him not to worry. Pratt was asked what happened at the meeting.

"Nothing at all," he said wearily; "it was a private meeting."

Fifteen minutes later the doors were unlocked and the workers poured out. Their faces were sullen and they talked in low tones. The reporters who had been present pressed forward to interview Bistor. One of the workers suddenly assaulted a reporter and there were yells of "Get them!" from the others who crowded around.

At last Bistor appeared. He and Pratt, according to testimony at a recent grand jury investigation, have collected more than $600,000 in three years from real estate tax payers who joined the association in the hope that their taxes would thereby be reduced. Fees demanded of members have been 1 per cent of their tax bill, plus an additional charge of $5 or $10. There are reported to be approximately 28,000 members.

Plan Membership Vote.

"This was just a meeting of the workers who brought in our 28,000 members," said Bistor. "We were telling them about the big massmeeting in the Coliseum on Feb. 14 and how it should be run. Proxies were distributed so that the workers can line up as many votes as possible for our faction before the meeting."

"What's the trouble all about?" Bistor was asked.

"Just a little difference of opinion."

AID IS QUIZZED, SUSPENDED FOR VOTE SALE HINT

Magazine Article Is Cause of Furor.

BY JOHN HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A United States senate with nerves already jumpy from the japes and jibes of press and populace today suspended its own sergeant at arms, David S. Barry, for his authorship of a magazine article insinuating that members of congress had been known to sell their votes for money.

Sitting as a trial court, with a court's triune right of acting as accuser, prosecutor, and judge, indignant senators refused to permit even "a few" of their number to be publicized as "crooks" and "grafters."

These were the forceful nouns that Mr. Barry used in an article which appeared today under the heading, "Over the Hills to Demagoguery," in the New Outlook, of which former Gov. Al Smith recently became editor.

Article Is Quoted.

"Contrary, perhaps, to the popular belief, there are not many crooks in congress—that is, out and out grafters, or those who are willing to be such; there are not many senators or representatives who sell their votes for money, and it is pretty well known who those few are; but there are many demagogues of the kind that will vote for legislation solely because they think that it will help their political and social fortunes."

The irate senators made it plain that when Mr. Barry is haled again before the senate bar, as he will be next Tuesday, they intend to hustle him summarily out through the privileged portals which he has guarded for the last twelve years.

Libel Suit May Be Filed.

There is excellent chance also that a suit for libel may be directed not only against Mr. Barry but against the magazine, its publisher, Frank A. Tichenor, and its new and Democratic editor. Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont], steelly inquisitor of the oil scandals, introduced a resolution directing that the day's senate proceedings be certified to the district attorney of the District of Columbia with a view to prosecution under the district's libel laws, and to the federal district attorney of the southern district of New York "for appropriate action by him."

It was by a narrow margin only that the spruce little sergeant at arms escaped the drastic indignity of immediate dismissal. A motion to take such direct action failed of adoption by a vote of 31 to 40. With the help of half a dozen sympathetic Democratic votes, regular Republicans won postponement for the holder of one of the fattest jobs on the capitol patronage list. Final action is to be taken next Tuesday afternoon.

Fails to Offer Defense.

Summoned in dramatic style before the senate, Mr. Barry offered no defense and a somewhat ambiguous explanation. He confessed that he knew no bribe takers in house or senate and said he could name no one else who knew of any. He offered the somewhat ingenuous excuse that he really had meant to defend the reputation of congress. He apologized for his inept phrasing.

But apologize for his article he would not. Nor would he admit that his article was misleading or false. And when pressed to say whether, in his opinion, members of congress had or had not been bribed, he returned the rather surprising answer:

"I think I will not express my opinion today."

"I think," he said, "the article is true as written."

It was a scene, with its tense moments, as Mr. Barry stepped to the edge of the rostrum in answer to the demand for his appearance moved by Republican Leader James E. Watson of Indiana. Before taking office Mr. Barry had been Washington correspondent for a New England newspaper.

Incident Without Precedent.

the senate has so tried one of its officers.

There were moments, too, aptly reminiscent of a current burlesque on Washington politics as when courtly Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.], who loves an orotund phrase, referred with indignation to that very musical comedy.

"The senate is under fire," the senator proclaimed. "Many vile things in cheap shows are said about the senate, but the senate can best meet those charges by acting with dignity and with manhood."

Deliberation Is Urged.

Senator Ashurst was one of the loudest in demanding that the senate act deliberately and that Mr. Barry be given time for full defense.

It was noticeable, indeed, that among the most avid for his immediate punishment were those like Senator George W. Norris, Nebraska radical, who most often profess love for their fellow men, for socialistic doctrines, and for federal relief.

Among the senators in their rôle as trial court was Senator James J. Davis [Rep., Pa.], who himself recently went on trial for conducting a lottery and who is waiting to stand trial again. Senator Huey Long, however, was absent in Louisiana, where a special senate committee is investigating charges of electoral corruption, made against the senator's candidate at last fall's primaries, Representative John Overton, who is now in the house.

Barry Asked for Names.

"Who are these senators and representatives who you know have sold their votes for money?" Senator Watson began the interrogation.

"I have not the slightest idea," came the hesitant answer from beneath the sergeant at arms' flaring mustache. "I had no senator in mind and I do not know that there is such a senator."

"What, then, did you mean by that language?" came the question.

"My idea in writing that was to defend the senate from the popular belief that there are crooks and grafters here," was the somewhat startling answer. "I have for thirty years taken that view. I have written a great many times and said a great many times that there are no crooks in congress; that is a mistaken popular belief. But it is the general belief, and I meant by that, of course, if there were a few men here who did take money for their votes, they would be very well known to their colleagues. I meant nothing further than that."

Contract $250 an Article.

The article had been published earlier than he expected, Mr. Barry said. He had not seen a proof. He might have changed the wording. He had a general contract with the Outlook calling for payment of $250 an article. He wanted no representation by counsel.

"It is pretty badly expressed," admitted Mr. Barry, coming back to the objectionable words.

"Your intention was to defend the senate and house by stating that only a few men sell their votes," suggested Senator Alben W. Barkley [Dem., Ky.], with heavy sarcasm.

"That is the motive that I had in mind," Mr. Barry agreed mildly. "I have, for a great many years, heard these charges against members of congress being crooks."

Taught in Schools, He Says.

"It is taught in the schools here and in the universities. I know one young man who, since this matter came up today, told me that his professor taught him in school that congressmen were crooks and took money for their votes and all the young men growing up that I have talked to have that idea. It was entirely for the purpose of defending them from any such charges that I wrote the article."

To the probing questions of Senator Norris the sergeant at arms answered finally with a definite "no." He knew no congressional bribe takers.

But that negative did not go for radicals.

The Nebraska senator read further in the article—charges that direct senatorial election, woman suffrage, prohibition, and the almost successful bonus vote in the last session were the product of demagogic congressmen and senators.

Sticks to His Guns.

"I most certainly do," barked Mr. Barry, almost ferociously, to the question of whether he thought there were demagogues in congress.

Senator David A. Reed [Rep., Pa.] was the first to suggest putting off final action. He believed the charge against Mr. Barry a grave one and one that might justify more severe action than mere dismissal, but the wanted no hasty action, no making of martyrs.

Senator Norris feared no criticism. He was for immediate action. Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader, thought likewise.

"If the senate, after hearing this matter, should retain in its employ an officer who has committed this contempt," declared Senator Robinson, "every self-respecting senator would be compelled to resign from this body."

Norris Wants Action.

"We know what we are going to do, so why not do it now?" Senator Norris insisted.

Again the sergeant at arms was questioned. Mr. Tichenor had arranged a series of articles with him, but had not ordered or suggested this one.

Senator John J. Blaine, Wisconsin radical, was ready to vote for contempt if the evidence justified, but he, too, counseled due and fair deliberation.

Then Senator Hiram Bingham [Rep., Conn.], with his helmet of silvery hair, arose. Not so long ago his tall figure had been shaken in the gale of just such a debate, at the end of which he was censured in a resolution proposed by Senator Norris, for having taken a lobbyist into an executive hearing as his secretary.

Sees Danger in Haste.

"It seems to me that we are in danger of acting more hastily than is in accord with the pride of our race and our inheritance," said the Connecticut senator, meeting and ignoring Senator Norris' stare. A judicious delay had served Senator Bingham well on that former occasion. Consideration had softened the severity of the censuring resolution.

"A little more self-restraint," urged Senator Bingham.

"He flouts it in our faces," rapped Senator Norris, with an accusatory finger flung out at the dapper figure on the rostrum.

"I am not a member of the bar," replied Senator Bingham. "I am only familiar with the traditions of my family and my race. We do not believe in lynch law. We do not believe in drumhead courts martial."

Mr. Barry wanted another word. Senator Blaine's speech had included the statement that Mr. Barry admitted the article to be false and untrue.

"I made no such statement as that," Mr. Barry asserted. His voice was firmer now. He didn't enjoy some of the senators' assumptions.

"I said that I had not had opportunity to see the proof, and if I had gone over it I might have seen that the words said what I did not intend to say," he went on. "But I do not apologize for that. I have to stand on the article as it is."

"I cannot produce evidence to show that any men were bribed or that they were not. That is a matter of opinion."

"Well, what is your opinion?" snapped Senator Blaine.

"I am not expressing my opinion now," was the reply.

"Have you an opinion?"

Refuses to Express Opinion.

"I think not today," remarked the sergeant at arms.

Mr. Blaine pressed him with more questions.

"I expressed my opinion in that article," Mr. Barry flared at last.

Still under questioning by the Wisconsin senator, he brought in the name of Al Smith, but denied that the editor had had anything to do with the article.

Again, with Senator J. Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] arguing that Mr. Barry should be made to accept right of counsel, the question of immediate dismissal or delay came up.

Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.] thought immediate dismissal the proper punishment to serve out to a man who had defamed his employer.

Then he smiled.

"There are a great many others who are going to have that punishment after the fourth of March, without benefit of counsel," he said.

"Why bring that up?" complained Senator Watson, one of the lame ducks.

The Norris motion for immediate dismissal was defeated, and the joint motion of Senators Reed and James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] for final action to be taken next Tuesday was agreed to.

Audit Reveals Drain on West Park Funds by 'Back Pay' Given to Reinstated Employes

How the former west park commissioners spent a total income of $8,215,732 from March 1, 1928, to March 1, 1932, was still a mystery to the new board yesterday despite the revelations of the Rossetter audit which had been suppressed for three months. They learned, however, that more than $25,000 of the taxpayers' money went for "back pay" and attorneys' fees.

The fact that the boards under former President W. R. James and his predecessor, the late Dr. John Dill Robertson, had started the four year period with a corporate surplus of over $600,000 and ended it with a corporate deficit of nearly $4,000,000, was shown in the audit. However, the audit report said:

"We made no examination of the detailed records of cash receipts and disbursements and other transactions excepting in so far as appeared to be necessary or desirable to acquaint ourselves with the nature of certain accounts and the composition of the balances therein as shown by the books."

Lobbying Expenses Shown.

It was concerning those cash transactions that State's Attorney Courtney asked an accounting. The first information available for the prosecutor was that the park board, a state institution which is under the thumb of the governor, spent $20,000 for lobbying at Springfield to get a bond issue authorized by the legislature and then was unable to sell the issue. Some of that expense was charged to the account of former President James, who was made head of the board by former Gov. Emmerson.

The principal revelation of yesterday concerned the "reinstatement" of three discharged employés. This is said to be an old custom in west park politics: A new board discharges the civil service executives of the previous administration and then in the last days of its own administration the former employés are allowed to get court orders entitling them to their jobs and back pay, and they are again on the rolls where they must be accepted by the new board until it finds cause to discharge them under the civil service rules.

Gets $12,000 "Back Pay."

One of such cases brought out yesterday was that of William G. Barclay, said to be a relative by marriage of Fred Lundin, former Republican boss. Barclay lost his job as assistant superintendent when the James board took control of the west parks. On Dec. 28, 1932—three weeks before President Harry Joseph and the Democratic board took office—Barclay obtained an order from Judge Charles A. Williams giving him back his job and $12,000 "back pay."

Joseph C. Kotlengar, general foreman, and Bernard F. Burgeson, concrete construction foreman, were discharged in the early days of the James administration. On Aug. 19, 1932, they were given back their jobs and $9,600 "back pay."

The first defense offered by the park board to the Kotlengar suit was that he had been discharged because he put the name of his brother-in-law, Martin Koop, on the pay roll as a laborer and in that way obtained $3,000. Koop, during the time his name was on the west park pay roll, was employed every day as sales manager for the American Casket company, the park board said.

"No Rebuttal by Board."

Attorney George F. Barrett, a former judge and Republican leader, was retained by the park board in these cases and is said to have received a large fee. Attorney Michael F. Ryan, representing the Civil Service Reform association, acted for Kotlengar and Burgeson. He said the pay roll padding charge was not substantiated in court by the park board. He said he had demanded a court inquiry of the charge, but that the park board was unwilling to proceed. The park board offered no testimony in rebuttal of Kotlengar's evidence, Attorney Ryan said. Kotlengar and Burgeson received their "back pay" in cash, he said.

Whether the new administration would be able to appeal these cases could not be ascertained yesterday, nor whether the money could be recovered if the payment was questioned.

The audit showed that on July 1, 1932, the then employés of the park system were owed $1,887,602 by the board. This was for pay rolls from July, 1931, to August, 1932, excepting for the month of March, 1932, for which a cash payment was made. The total pay roll for those thirteen months, less deductions for pension funds, was $2,682,194, which was reduced by the acceptance of tax anticipatin warrants by employés and the payment of $33,408 to favored employés.

Lists Tax Warrants Issued.

The audit statement of the tax anticipation warrant account on July 31, 1932, was as follows:

1929 WARRANTS.

Bond and interest fund—
Issued to banks	$ 682,000
Corporate fund—
Issued to banks	430,000
Total 1929 warrants	$1,112,000

1930 WARRANTS.

Bond and interest fund—
Issued to banks	$ 200,000
Corporate fund—
Issued to banks	100,000
Issued to employés	214,425
Issued to various creditors	750
Total 1930 warrants	$ 515,175

1931 WARRANTS.

Bond and interest fund—
Issued to banks	$ 250,000
Corporate fund—
Issued to banks	200,000
Issued to employés	449,735
Issued to various creditors	53,500
Total 1931 warrants	$ 953,235
Total warrants outstanding in hands of public	$3,279,460

CORPORATE FUND.

Taxes receivable	$299,002	$906,748	$1,813,975

BOND AND INTEREST FUND.

Warrants, with int...	682,000	200,000	250,000

The tables which raised the question of what became of the cash received, aside from taking up tax warrants and possibly meeting some bond obligations before the defaults, showed the parks' income, operating, and maintenance expenses, with interest paid and accrued. These showed how the parks went further in debt, as follows:

	Total income.	Operating expense.	Interest.
1931	2,345,103	2,824,112	356,175
1932	2,110,567	3,200,622	250,330
Totals	$8,215,732	$9,196,857	$804,055

The audit showed the division of the $3,200,622 of expense in 1932 by departments, as follows:

Police	$ 478,122
Administration	302,652
Civil service	17,058
Stores	23,555
Parks, etc.	1,745,696
Boulevards, etc.	509,092
Bridle paths and walks	34,742
Comfort stations	47,432
Sewers and water	41,398

Report Cash Payments.

The Rossetter auditing concern reported that it made only a limited examination of the parks' books. Cash payments from April 1, 1931, to July 31, 1932, were listed in the amount of $271,200 and payments by warrants in the amount of $53,250, for a total of $324,450.

Inasmuch as there was owed to employés more than a year's pay on July 31, 1932, amounting to $2,682,194, and $779,157 owed to the pension funds and $58,575 owed to two contracting concerns, and there were defaults in bond redemption and interest payments and unredeemed tax warrants the puzzle provided by the audit was in tracing all of the $8,215,732 income for the years 1929 to 1932 which was exhausted.

E. J. KELLY PLANS COMPLETION OF OUTER DRIVE

Would Pay with Bonds and Tax Warrants.

Edward J. Kelly, president of the south park board, and his associates are working on a plan to bring about completion of the outer drive bridge improvement which will link the north and south sides of the city at the mouth of the Chicago river. It was revealed last night that the plan involves payment of tax warrants and bonds in lieu of cash to contractors for their costs of labor and material.

Two contracting firms, the names of which are not disclosed, have signified their willingness to go ahead with construction work, accepting south park securities in payment.

Orders New Plans Drawn.

Mr. Kelly, who is out of town, several days ago instructed George Donoghue, superintendent of the south park system, and Lynn White, chief engineer, to prepare new plans and specifications and to be in readiness to advertise for bids.

More than 3 million dollars will be needed to complete the project, according to Hugh E. Young, chief engineer for the Chicago Plan commission. The link bridge is the joint project of the south and Lincoln park boards.

Officials of the Illinois Central railroad, at a closed meeting of the south park board two weeks ago, contended that if the improvement goes forward the boulevards created through the extensions of Field boulevard, Randolph street and Wacker drive should be two-level structures. The lower levels would provide access to buildings and shops to be erected east of Michigan avenue in the future, the railroad representatives declared.

Mr. Kelly and other member of the board contended the railroad should contribute $300,000 toward the cost of this feature of the improvement. The railroad officials, however, insist that their company should not be assessed.

Provision for construction of the lower levels in the future is made in the plans, which call for an unusually substantial boulevard structure.

The Lincoln park board has spent nearly 3 million dollars on its share of the outer link project and will need 2 million dollars to complete it. South park officials estimate that more than $8,000,000 will be required to finish their share.

COURT ORDERS PROBE OF INSULL PLOT CHARGES

Utility Bankruptcy Situation to Be Bared.

Federal Judge George A. Carpenter decided yesterday to open up the entire Insull bankruptcy situation to determine the merit of charges brought by Samuel Ettelson, former corporation counsel, to the effect that Samuel Insull and his former bankers had framed the receivership of the various Insull investment companies to benefit themselves.

The matter came before Judge Carpenter on petition of attorneys for Calvin Fentress, receiver of Insull Utility Investments, Inc., asking for review and reversal of the decision of Garfield Charles, referee in bankruptcy, who disqualified Mr. Fentress as trustee of the company following his election to that post at a stormy meeting of creditors three weeks ago.

Judge to Hear Case.

In deciding to reopen the case the judge said he found no fault with the referee's ruling that Mr. Fentress' connection with New York banks through his own concern, Baker, Fentress & Cox, should disqualify him from becoming trustee. Taking cognizance of claims that the referee had shown bias in the case, the judge announced he would forego his vacation to hear it himself, and set it down for Feb. 14.

At the opening of the session the judge branded as "disgraceful" the proceedings before the referee, where opposing attorneys hurled epithets at each other, inciting the Insull investors to boos and applause. "The referee, of course, was helpless," he said.

"I would agree that the referee was helpless," interposed Attorney Walter L. Fisher, counsel for Mr. Fentress.

"Well, he has had his lesson, I hope," the judge responded.

Seek to Limit Evidence.

Unable to prevent reopening of the case, Mr. Fisher made an effort to have the testimony confined to Insull Utility Investments and exclude testimony on Corporation Securities company and the Middle West Utilities company, whose receiverships Mr. Ettelson claims Insull also dominated. The judge reserved his ruling on this point.

"The rules of evidence in equity matters are broad and hard to define," he said. "As to the relevancy of testimony, we will settle that when we come to it."

Among those Mr. Ettelson plans to have subpoenaed for the hearing are Edward E. Brown, vice president of the First National bank; Abner J. Stilwell, vice president of the Continental-Illinois bank; Solomon Smith, president of the Northern Trust company, and A. W. Harris, chairman of the board of the Harris Trust and Savings bank.

In reopening the case, the judge announced there was no reflection on Mr. Fentress, whom he characterized as "a conscientious citizen and valued friend." Rather, he said, if Mr. Fentress were disqualified, it would serve to save him embarrassment, as he was certain Mr. Fentress would not care to serve as trustee unless agreeable to all. Mr. Fentress, surrounded by half a dozen lawyers who were there to see that he became trustee, made no response to the court's remarks.

BUYER OF HOME ASKS COURT TO CUT PAYMENTS

Harry B. Ressler, a salesman, who lives in a bungalow at 1919 South 11th avenue, Maywood, yesterday filed a suit in the Superior court seeking modification of the contract under which he purchased his home in 1927. He stated that the original price was $8,750 and that he has invested a total of $4,120. The bill alleges he has been forced to default in payments on the principal, but that he has paid up the interest.

The suit charges that John and Nellie Kempston, the title holders; the Chicago Title and Trust company, and the Avenue Agency Loan corporation, all of whom have interests in the mortgage, have threatened to dispossess Ressler. He asks that the contract, which calls for payments of $50 a month, be amended to an amount he can pay, or that he be refunded his invested cash if he must surrender the property.

The strongest shock was at 1:33 p. m. today. It shook the observatory on top of the mountain for 15 seconds and spread panic among the inhabitants of the nearby towns of Boscotrecase, Resina, Portici, San Sebastiano, and Torre del Greco.

DROPS WARRANTS CHARGING THEFT OF BIG FACTORY

Fifty-five warrants taken out by John G. Williams, real estate dealer at 77 West Washington street, against officials and residents of the village of Chicago Ridge, charging that they dismantled and carried away a factory building at 107th street and Ridgeland avenue, were withdrawn yesterday.

Mr. Williams said last night that those who had carted off his factory had promised to cart it back and that he was satisfied with the arrangement. He added that he was not sure he would rebuild the structure, but that it was a relief to get the material.

His irritation at the Chicago Ridgers, he related on Thursday, was aroused by the fact that just as he was about to rent the building after three years' vacancy, he learned that he didn't have a building to rent.

Police Seeking to Identify Aged Victim of Amnesia

Gresham police are trying to identify an elderly woman, between 65 and 70 years old, who has been held at the station for the last two days, apparently suffering from amnesia. She was found at 75th and Halsted streets. Among other clothing, she wore a black silk coat trimmed with black plush and a pair of button shoes.

THIEF STEALS AUTO AND BABY; ABANDONS BOTH

An automobile thief last night unwittingly kidnaped Brian Conley, 2½ year old son of Attorney Philip A. Conley, when he stole the Conley car from the rear of the lawyer's home at 4023 Gladys avenue. Dismayed at the unexpected turn his thievery had taken, the hoodlum two hours later abandoned both the car and the child.

They were found at Kilpatrick avenue and Flournoy street. The spotlight had been inverted, apparently to attract police attention. Sergt. Andrew Carroll and his squad noticed the turned light, investigated, and found the stolen car. On the rear seat, slumbering peacefully, lay the boy, unbothered by his experience. He evidently had slept all through the kidnaping.

It was about 6:30 last night that Mrs. Margaret Conley, wife of the attorney, drove to the garage in the rear of their home. Little Brian was sleeping on the rear seat at the time.

Mrs. Conley alighted from the car, leaving the motor running, and stepped around to the side entrance of the garage. This required several seconds of time. As she opened the sliding doors of the garage from the inside she saw her automobile, containing Brian, disappearing up the alley.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE, LOCKED INSIDE AND OUT

Ottawa, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Mystery surrounded the finding today of the body of Halbert P. Tummel, 37, Marseilles insurance man who had been missing from his home since Tuesday afternoon. The body was found in his car in the garage of a vacant house in Marseilles.

The door was bolted from the inside and a wire had been slipped over a staple from the outside, fastening it firmly from both sides. The ignition of the car was on and the gasoline tank was empty. Tummel had apparently died of carbon monoxide gas.

The body was discovered by the owner of the property when he went there to clean up. The authorities claim it would have been impossible for Tummel to have fastened the door from the outside, or for any one to have left the garage after it was bolted from the inside.

Tummel was married and the father of one child.

Igoe Signs $10,000 Bond and Banker Bain Goes Free

After spending a night in the county jail John Bain, under sentence of from one to five years in prison in connection with the collapse of the 12 Bain banks, was released yesterday on a $10,000 bond furnished by Michael L. Igoe, former state representative and his wife. At the same time it was announced by State's Attorney Courtney that Assistant Federal Prosecutor Thomas Dodd Healy had been appointed an assistant state's attorney to prosecute Bain in another case pending against him, as well as other bank cases.

The day's developments in the Bain case revealed a double merging of political allegiances in that Igoe, an ardent Democratic leader, furnished bond for Bain, a Republican and a friend of former Senator Deneen, and the Democratic state's attorney appointed Healy, a Deneen Republican, to prosecute Bain.

Appears Before Judge.

Bain, showing no ill effects of his night in jail, appeared before Chief Justice Prystalski in the Criminal court with his attorney, Harry Olson. Assistant State's Attorney Grover Niemeyer represented the prosecution.

Attorney Olson repeated the charge he made at the time of Bain's arrest Thursday evening, that Niemeyer had broken an agreement that Bain would not be arrested until the defense has had an opportunity to appeal to a higher court.

"I ordered his arrest on information that he was planning to leave the country," said Niemeyer. "My action was perfectly justified under the circumstances. Since then I have learned the information was erroneous and I am making no objection to releasing him on bond."

Attorney Olson then objected to the request of the state that a state's attorney's policeman be assigned to watch Bain while he is at liberty. "There is nothing in the law which justifies such procedure," he asserted. Judge Prystalski agreed with this view and instructed Niemeyer to cancel any plan to have Bain watched by police.

Carroll Makes a Speech.

Attorney John A. Carroll, head of another chain of closed banks, then stepped forward and addressed the court in behalf of Bain.

He began a tirade against "big banking interests," but was cut short by the judge, who said, "This is a hearing on a bond, Mr. Carroll, and not a place for you to make a 4th of July oration or any other kind of speech." Carroll then withdrew.

Representative Igoe, who was present, said at the conclusion of the hearing, "Bain has been a friend of mine for years and he was a friend of my mother's. I lost $18,000 in the Bain bank failures, but John Bain is still my friend and he is in trouble and needs my help." Mr. and Mrs. Igoe scheduled their $15,000 home to make the bond.

Cite Healy's Record.

Appointment of Mr. Healy as an assistant state's attorney was made necessary, Mr. Courtney said, by the retirement, because of ill health, of Edwin J. Raber, who prosecuted the Bain case. Mr. Raber has announced his intention of resigning. Healy was picked because of his success in the case against five former officials of the defunct H. O. Stone & Co., who were convicted and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

The pending case against Bain is on a charge of accepting deposits in an insolvent bank. Other defendants in the case include his son, John H. Bain, and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher.

JURY ASKS LAWS TO CURB MORONS AND AUTO THEFTS

Sets Record for Cases Handled in 1 Month.

The January grand jury, in its final report returned yesterday to Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court, recommended new legislation to help prevent the commission of crimes by mental defectives. The report also suggested the passage of new automobile anti-theft laws, as recommended recently by a committee composed of heads of various civic organizations.

A record was established by the January jury for the number of cases considered in any one month. The jury had before it 750 cases and voted 481 indictments as against 225 no bills. The remaining cases were passed to the February jury for additional evidence or investigation.

Want Morons Confined.

The jury divided its report into two sections. The first part dealt exclusively with the problem of mental defectives and commended the movement started by Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic, and Judge Prystalski, to provide a walled institution for the detention of defectives.

"We are unanimous in a desire to commend you [the judge] and others for the work you are doing in the interest of having mental defectives segregated in institutions from which escape will be impossible," reads the report.

"The importance of such a plan has been deeply impressed upon us in the course of our work during January, as the large number of hopeless defectives who have come to our attention has been appalling.

Favor Sterilization Laws.

"It is our respectful suggestion that further steps be taken toward the prevention of the propagation of individuals of this character, through suitable laws such as now exist in other states. We refer to the so-called sterilization laws of these states.

"In our opinion the passage and enforcement of such a law would in a generation or two eliminate a large percentage, if not all, of the cases of crimes against children, and most of the sex and rape cases which form a sizable part of the daily grist of our courts."

In the section on automobile thefts the jurors first recommend that the state make more vigorous efforts to enforce the gasoline tax law. Prompt revocation should be made of any dealer who fails to promptly pay the tax, the report says, and also steps should be taken to see that no dealer operates until he first gets his license and posts bond. In many cases, the report says, dealers operate for 30 to 45 days while waiting for a license. If the license is refused the tax for that period frequently is never paid, the report says.

Okay Anti-theft Law Proposal.

The jury then recommends that the anti-theft laws drawn up by Attorney Joseph Braun of the Chicago Motor club be promptly passed by the legislature.

"We believe a uniform title law similar to those in force in adjoining states should be enacted. We also believe that the manufacturers should number and keep a record of parts and accessories to aid in the identification of stolen parts."

The jury also commended the "courteous and able assistance" given to it by Assistant State's Attorney Edwin J. Spiro.

SEIZE 3 YOUTHS IN STOLEN AUTO IN 3 MILE CHASE

AUTO THEFTS.

Automobiles stolen, 80; recovered, 78; stripped, 16 [from police records for the twenty-four hour period ending at midnight Thursday].

Automobile court cases: Richard Douglas and Joseph Egacz, charged with receiving stolen property, and George Caras, charged with larceny of an auto, all held to grand jury by Judge Harold P. O'Connell. James Prible, charged with auto larceny, put on six months' probation by Judge John Gutknecht.

Three youths riding in a stolen automobile were arrested by Sergt. Walter Kelly and his detective squad last night after a three mile chase on the west side. Two revolvers wrapped in a paper package and a third in a holster were lying in the gutter near the car when the police overtook the trio at Western avenue and Superior street.

Those held are Theodore Mika, 18 years old, 1934 Huron street; Frank Stopek, 17 years old, 1833 Erie street, and Michael Kuzmua, 19 years old, 2022 West Huron street.

EXPECT RUSSIA TO SPARE LIFE OF DOUKHOBOR HEAD

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 3.—(AP)—The Canadian government has received permission from the soviet government to return Peter Verigin, spiritual head of the Doukhobor colony in British Columbia, to Russia. So far as the department of immigration is aware, he will not be in danger of execution when he arrives in Russia.

"Peter Verigin was a free man when he left Russia," a department official said. "The soviets were already in power there, so there is no reason to suppose that he will not be a free man when he goes back. So far as we know, the soviet government has nothing against him now."

Replying to the suggestion that Verigin might be shot when he reached Russia, the official explained that that was an old plea in cases of persons about to be deported.

Their Bodies Sought in Lake

WARREN DONOVAN.

WILLIAM CRAIG.

Hero in Death

Coast guardsmen yesterday dragged the lake off the Lincoln Park Gun club in a vain endeavor to find the bodies of two 12 year old boys who were drowned there on Thursday.

The lads were Warren Donovan, 2450 North Clark street, who was awarded a medal as a junior life guard a year ago, and William Craig, 519 Deming place. Warren, it is believed, risked and lost his own life in attempting to save his companion.

They had been playing on the rocks in the lake at the club, according to Alfred Maxwell, 12 years old, 477 Deming place, who was with them. William slipped and fell into deep water. Warren then told Alfred to run for help while he attempted to aid the struggling Craig boy. When a policeman returned with Alfred he saw William sinking off shore. Warren had already disappeared.

The Donovan boy recently underwent an operation for appendicitis. He had been out of bed only a few days. Although he was a good swimmer, it is believed he was too weak to stand immersion in the cold water.

POLICE SEARCH FOR SLAYER OF SCHOOLGIRL, 15

New York, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Dry grains of face powder and a memorandum on the weather produced the only definite development today in the investigation of the murder of 15 year old Mary Helen O'Connor, Rockaway Park school girl, whose battered body was found in a clump of bushes on the outskirts of Massapequa, L. I., late yesterday.

While fifty detectives and policemen were beating the brush near Hicksville road other detectives conferred with medical examiners to determine how long the girl had been dead when a laborer stumbled over her body yesterday, ending the search that began a few hours after her disappearance last Friday.

The one conclusive deduction was that the girl's body had been in the woods not more than a day at the most. Although she had been missing six days, her hat, which was found three-quarters of a mile from her body, was dry. Even grains of face powder on the inner band were dry.

The area was subject to a heavy rain Wednesday night, and detectives were convinced that although the girl might have been killed at a prior date her body was not tossed into the underbrush before that rain.

BILL PROPOSES APPOINTMENT OF CITY JUDGES

Attorney's Plan Designed to Raise Bench Ethics.

The draft of a bill, designed to raise Municipal court standards by providing for the appointment of its judges, was presented to the City club of Chicago yesterday by Attorney Andrew R. Sherriff. The club is considering sponsorship of the measure.

Under Attorney Sherriff's plan the term of a Municipal court judge would be raised from 6 to 10 years. They would be appointed by the mayor and city council and commissioned by the governor.

The appointments are to be made from a list of candidates to be selected by the Supreme court, the bill provides. This list is to be prepared six months before the terms of the judges expire and is to contain not less than twice nor more than three times as many names as there are posts to be filled.

Takes Judges Out of Politics.

Attorney Sherriff said that such a bill would take Municipal judgeships out of politics and improve the quality of the court's judges.

"The Supreme court will undoubtedly pick excellent men for its lists," Attorney Sherriff said. "Politics might enter into the appointment of the men on the list by the council and mayor, but since all the men named will be able the bench will not suffer. The council could pick the judges by lot from such lists without any danger to the bench."

Differs on Methods.

Attorney Amos C. Miller, former president of the Chicago Bar association and chairman of its committee on candidates, said he is in sympathy with the purposes of the bill, but differs with Mr. Sherriff on the method of appointment.

"I believe that the candidates should be named by an elected official of the county," he said. "The logical official would be an elected chief justice of the court. He should name two men from each political party for a judgeship. The governor or the Supreme court should then make the final selection."

JAILED IN BRITAIN FOR RENOUNCING U. S. CITIZENSHIP

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—Thomas Reed, 45 years old, a naturalized citizen of the United States, was sentenced to six weeks in jail today because he renounced his adopted country.

Born in Bristol, England, Reed went to America in 1913 and was naturalized in 1921. He landed in Southampton in July of this year, showed his British birth certificate, denied he had been naturalized, and was permitted to land.

Later he went to the United States consulate, where he declared himself an American citizen and asked for aid to return to America. Reed said he had returned to England to see his family and had not admitted he was an American in order to save complications. The British authorities recommend his deportation.

Victims Plead, but Two Bandits Take Their $10

Two bandits entered the delicatessen of Henry Kuby at 3100 North Leavitt street last night. Kuby and his wife, each over 60 years old, pleaded that they had only $10 and that they needed it for rent and that they were already two months behind. "Sorry, but we need the money worse than you," one of the men replied. They took the $10.

DUKE PAYS OLD HOTEL BILL AND EVADES PRISON

MARGATE, England, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The duke of Manchester evaded a British debtors' prison today when he paid into the court the amount of an old unpaid hotel bill at Broadstairs.

The duke, who was married at Greenwich, Conn., in December, 1931, to Miss Kathleen Dawes, formerly an actress in England, was sentenced yesterday to 42 days in prison without suspension when he failed to appear in answer to a "judgment summons." The "judgment summons" is a British legal form demanding personal appearance of a defendant in a debt case to show why he should not be imprisoned for failure to pay.

The duke's marriage in Connecticut followed within ten days a divorce which became final from the previous duchess of Manchester.

I simply board the northbound bus on Saturday afternoon and get off at the very door of Saks-Fifth Avenue. SERVES 6 MONTHS IN ALIMONY CELL; FIGHTS RETURN

Court Told Ex-Wife Has Own Income.

Dr. Abraham Kalman, 4122 North Francisco avenue, a dentist, was released from alimony row at the county jail on Jan. 7, after serving six months because he owed $160 in alimony to his former wife, Mrs. Maybelle Kalman, 546 Cornelia avenue.

Yesterday the doctor appeared before Judge Philip J. Finnegan. It was the sixty-sixth time he has appeared in a Circuit court on a motion of his former wife since she filed a divorce suit against him on Dec. 10 1927. Mrs. Kalman asked that he be returned to jail for contempt of court because he now is $760 in arrears in alimony—$600 having accrued while he was in jail.

State Husband's Side.

After Mrs. Kalman stated her case Attorney Harry X. Cole, representing Dr. Kalman, offered an objection.

"It would be contrary to modern justice to attempt to extract money from a man who has been kept in jail for debt and thus deprived of his income. And the method—this renewal of a jail sentence—is just a return to the antiquated English laws against which Charles Dickens campaigned," the lawyer stated.

"The records show this man is making his 66th appearance in court. This is his first for 1933. In 1927, when his wife filed her suit, he was called in five times, in the following year 23 times. In 1929 he appeared six times, in 1930, 16 times, and in 1931 six times more.

Driven Out of Business.

"This harsh treatment amounts to harassment. It has driven him out of two business establishments. Formerly he was a prosperous loop dentist. His wife's actions caused him to lose patients, and finally he was compelled to close his office. Then he moved to Peoria and was struggling along until last July when his wife caused him to be put in jail. During the time he was locked up his office was closed."

The lawyer explained that Mrs. Kalman was given alimony and support money for herself and four children at the rate of $130 a month when the divorce was granted on March 30, 1929. Subsequently in May of 1932, this amount was reduced to $100 a month. Two months later Judge Daniel P. Trude ordered the dentist to jail, and he served his full sentence of six months.

Woman Pays $110 Rent.

"Mrs. Kalman is far from destitute," Attorney Cole stated. "She is able to live in an expensive apartment—her rent is $110 a month—and has a good income from the furniture sales business she conducts.

"Dr. Kalman has an offer of employment in the loop. His salary would be $100 a month. He couldn't pay alimony at the rate of the present court order, and certainly he couldn't pay up any back alimony.

"I ask the court to stop Mrs. Kalman's attempts to collect back alimony, and also to reduce the order to some amount that Kalman could pay," the attorney concluded.

Judge Finnegan continued the hearing until March 9, and told the dentist that he could take a new job with no fear of a return to jail.

HOTEL MANAGER

THEODORE DE WITT.

EX-WAITER BACK AS MANAGER OF HOTEL LA SALLE

Theodore De Witt Recalls Pre-Dry Law Days.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

Chicagoans who in 1911 dined, talked, and drank in the Blue Fountain room of the then year old Hotel La Salle, may remember Theo, captain of waiters. The former waiter, Theodore De Witt, arrived yesterday to take up his duties as manager of the hotel at $1,250 a month, replacing Ernest J. Stevens, now under indictment in connection with the affairs of the Illinois Life Insurance company.

De Witt, in addition to his new Chicago job, continues as president of the De Witt Operated Hotels, Inc., composed of the Hollenden hotel, Cleveland; the Neil house, Columbus, and the Mayflower hotel, Akron, O.

Awaits Dry Law Repeal.

Recalling life in Chicago 22 years ago and previous years in which he observed New York life from the vantage point of a captain of waiters in the Waldorf-Astoria, the Belmont hotels, and the Astor house, the 52 year old hotel man predicted that "when prohibition is repealed we will become civilized and life will be gracious once more."

"In the Blue Fountain room, then the most famous place in Chicago, where Mrs. Potter Palmer and ladies of fashion came regularly to dine, there was no dancing," De Witt said. "Persons came for dinner, sat long talking over a little champagne, or wine, or beer. Then, possibly, they went to the theater and returned.

"Now people have forgotten how to talk. You cannot have real conversation over a glass of ice water, or a hip flask of gin. The leisurely days will come again, though, with prohibition repeal, and then the old gay, cosmopolitan life of hotel entertaining will be revived."

Serves Presidents.

In 1912 DeWitt became head waiter in the new roof garden of the La Salle, then went as head waiter to the Pompeian room at the Congress hotel, where the celebrities of the town gathered in the afternoon to drink and chat. Later he served as catering manager at the Baltimore hotel in Kansas City; the Galvez hotel, Galveston, Tex.; the famous Gruenwald hotel now the Roosevelt, in New Orleans, and as manager of the Union club in Cleveland for seven years.

At the Union club he once served President Coolidge, and often served Harding, both when he was senator and later after he became President. Twice in the old Waldorf-Astoria he served Theodore Roosevelt.

De Witt was born in Vienna. He was forced to serve in the Austrian army and deserted, fleeing to Switzerland, and from there to America when he was 21.

COURTNEY BARES EFFORT TO BRIBE 2 PROSECUTORS

Offered $1,000 Each in Robbery Case.

State's Attorney Courtney yesterday revealed that an attempt was made during the trial of a robbery case in the Criminal court to bribe the two prosecutors in charge of the case. Each was offered $1,000 to "go easy." The defendants were convicted on Thursday.

Ross Lee Laird and Leonard Steiger, the prosecutors, were called on the telephone at their homes by the unidentified briber, they reported to Mr. Courtney.

"This is the first serious attempt to obstruct justice that has come to my attention since taking office," said Mr. Courtney. "I am convinced that strong criminal influences are behind it and I want to serve public notice right now that this office will track down the criminals involved and put them where they belong."

The defendants in whose behalf the bribery attempt was made are Edward Lambert, 42 years old; Frank Dezan, 36 years old, and Frank Eulo, 25 years old, who held up Police Sergeant William Hauser last March 5. Sergt. Hauser, who was off duty at the time, shot and seriously wounded Lambert.

Prosecutors Laird and Steiger said they believed the effort to bribe them was made by members of the crime syndicate headed by William ["Three Fingered Jack"] White. Eulo, they said, is a precinct captain in the 20th ward and is believed to have exerted his political influence for the benefit of his criminal associates.

Two Are Sentenced.

Judge Philip Sullivan yesterday sentenced Eulo and Lambert to 1 year to life each in the penitentiary. Dezan was given an opportunity to seek a new trial.

Lambert, who appeared in court in a wheel chair because of his wounds, was recently convicted under the habitual criminal law and sentenced to life imprisonment for participation in the robbery of the First American National bank in Berwyn.

LEAGUE ACTS TO END WARFARE IN SO. AMERICA

GENEVA, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The league of nations council today discussed both the Gran Chaco and the Leticia conflicts, sending a pressing appeal to Bolivia and Paraguay to halt hostilities and admonishing Peru again against employing armed force against Colombia's legitimate police action.

Anxiety over the intensification of the fighting between Bolivia and Paraguay in the Chaco was voiced by the council, which postponed a suggestion for a commission of inquiry in order to permit American neutral nations additional time to arrange a cessation of hostilities.

"The council," said a message to the Peruvian government, "cannot admit that Peru's concern for her Nationals residing in Leticia could authorize any forcible action to prevent the Colombian government from re-establishing its authority in territory which belongs to it by treaty. The council has Colombia's formal assurance that Colombia has no intention to violate or threaten any Peruvian territory."

'FAINTING JIMMY' DILLON FAINTS ONCE TOO OFTEN

"Fainting Jimmy" Dillon, 21 years old, recently of Olney, Ill., fainted once too often in the same place yesterday. He came to Chicago ten days ago and swooned in a loop store. Sympathetic clerks and women customers revived him, and when he mumbled out a story of starvation they showered him with coins.

Thereafter Dillon fainted frequently and profitably in department stores. On Thursday Police Sergeants John Noonan and Patrick Mulvihill saw him faint in a State street store. Yesterday the same detectives saw him faint again in the same spot. As sympathetic bystanders prepared to contribute coins to Dillon the detectives stepped in.

"He made an average of $3 on each faint," said Sergt. Noonan. "Once h got only $2, and immediately swooned again. He got the extra dollar. In one case a store clerk gave him 50 cents, her last, and had to borrow carfare home."

REFUSE TO OBEY POLICE; FINED.

Three youths who refused to halt for questioning at the order of a police squad were fined $10 each yesterday by Judge Harold P. O'Connell. They are: Thomas Woolcott, 17 years old, 718 South Claremont avenue; John De Leo, 23 years old, 2047 De Kalb street, and Barney Roscino, 22 years old, 12 South Whipple street.

TAX DELINQUENTS MOVE COUNTY TO CUT 1933 BUDGET

Propose 20% Reduction in Operating Costs.

Members of the county board voted yesterday to toss out the window their fancies as to the amount of taxes which they may be able to collect and in drawing up their 1933 budget to stick to the facts as reflected by the percentage of collections actually made on recent tax levies.

Upon that basis they voted to draw up a corporate fund budget based upon the anticipation that they will collect only 60 per cent of their 1933 tax levy. The tentative budget now before them anticipates 85 per cent collections and most major governments in Chicago have been making their budgets upon estimates that 90 per cent of their levies will be collected. This is in the face of the fact that the county has not collected 90 per cent of any levy since that for 1926.

Face 20 Per Cent Appropriation Cut.

Due to the fact that the county receives much of its revenue from sources other than direct taxation, placing a 60 per cent limit on its anticipations of tax revenue will not cramp its activities quite so seriously as would be the case with other governments.

However, Michael J. O'Connor, assistant county controller, told the commissioners that if they adhere to their resolution they would have to cut the appropriation of every county department 20 per cent below the pay cuts and other economies now in force. Carried out it would mean approximately a 29 per cent reduction in the estimate tax revenues, against which the county would appropriate for current expenses.

The tentative budget before the commissioners yesterday provided for expenditures of $17,885,134 out of the corporate fund. On a basis of 85 per cent tax collections this would have to be trimmed to $16,585,134, so far as current expenditures are concerned, to take care of a $1,300,000 deficit in 1932. If, however, the commissioners base their budget on anticipation of only 60 per cent tax collections, Mr. O'Connor told them, they must cut the budget to $14,085,134 for current expenditures.

Losses in Four Years.

"Our estimated budget now before you is on the basis of 85 per cent collection of taxes," Mr. O'Connor told the commissioners. "On the other hand, the collections for the years 1930 to 1933, are not expected to reach anywhere near that total. If we only collect 80 per cent of the taxes we'll lose $2,000,000 in corporate fund revenue in four years. Each time the tax collections drop another 5 per cent we lose another two millions in the four year period.

"All this goes to show that we simply can't spend money where there's never a chance of our getting it. We're getting deeper and deeper in debt all the time. By no stretch of the imagination are we going to get money to run the county on its present basis."

"Let's take the bull by the horns and make a budget based on 60 per cent collections," said Commissioner George Miller, one of the two Republicans on the board.

"I simply cannot understand," said Commissioner Grace Fleming. "Every one knows that everybody is shot to pieces financially, and yet special interest groups keep coming in here asking for this, that, and the other thing in the budget."

"What groups?" demanded Commissioner Amelia Sears.

"The nurses' home," replied Mrs. Fleming. "The public defender, the regional planning commission, the social service workers. Let's cut out a lot of this nonsense."

The board then passed Miss Sears' motion that they make up a 60 per cent budget.

OFFICIALS O. K. BUDGET BOARD TO RULE COUNTY

Vote Approval of Merriam Plan.

fore the legislature, that may all seem desirable, but taken in the aggregate, they make some sort of restraint necessary. The desirability of such legislation could be determined better here in Chicago than in Springfield.

"This board could do a number of things without legislation being passed. It might by joint agreement of the various governments buy all their coal through a central agency, at reduced cost. Or by joint agreement they might eliminate overhead expenses such as are now incurred by the fact that every government has its own legal department. The board might negotiate a joint agreement to install uniform accounting and reporting systems, which would give taxpayers a clearer financial picture of the various governments.

"There have been various suggestions on membership of the budgetary control commission; that it have one member from each of the governments affected by it; that it be appointed by the government; that it be elected. My own suggestion is a board of three members, consisting of the mayor, the president of the county board, and a third member to be appointed by the first two.

Gives Vast Powers.

Certainly, this would give these men vast power, but they are responsible officials. Their most important job would be to vote the amount of revenue that would be levied against the taxpayers. Their vote would be in the open, and in a popular phrase, they would watch their step. This would be a conspicuous board, in the limelight, and what it did would be outstanding.

"If you have one member from each government under the commission it will be hard to pin down responsibility. Two of the park boards, for instance, are appointed by the governor. With a downstate governor your only leverage on the members he names would be through Chicago votes. Direct appointments by the governor would be subject to the same logic."

Mr. Rees told the gathering that the draft of proposed legislation by Attorney Busch and his committee provides for a member on the budget commission from each government under its jurisdiction, but with the members' votes weighted according to the importance of their governments.

Loss and Cost Tax Estimate.

"You will have to give the board power to estimate loss and cost of tax collections," said Ald. Clark. "Otherwise one taxing body might estimate only 10 per cent loss on its levy, while another, watching the times more carefully, might set a 25 per cent loss figure."

"The question of estimating revenue accurately and honestly is as important as cutting governmental costs," said Mr. Lindheimer. "The board should have power to make surveys so that it can forecast what the public income will be."

Ald. Massen then brought up his suggestion for the organization of a Cook County Public Finance corporation to absorb the floating indebtedness of local governments through the issue of bonds. A motion was passed authorizing Mayor Cermak to appoint a second subcommittee to look into such a credit plan.

The committee of governmental heads is to meet again Tuesday night. At that time members of the Chicago Real Estate board and other organizations will be invited to appear for a discussion of various plans for improvement of tax collections.

650 at Celebration

More than 650 friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Vopicka attended a dinner in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary last night at the Drake hotel. Mr. Vopicka was ambassador to Rumania, Serbia, and Bulgaria from 1913 until the end of the world war and for many years has been a Democratic leader.

The Vopickas, with their six daughters and ten of their grandchildren, stood in the receiving line for nearly two hours as their friends passed to wish them happiness. The dinner followed and toasts were offered by Mayor Cermak, former Gov. E. F. Dunne, Charles Merriam, J. Smetanka, Czechoslovakian consul, and others.

Among the guests were the mayor's daughters, Mrs. Frank J. Jirka and Mrs. Floyd M. Kenlay; Judge John P. McGoorty, Judge Joseph Sabath, Michael Igoe, John Gilchrist, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Geary, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Siqueland.

AUTO SHOW ENDS TONIGHT; SALES CHEER MAKERS

The 33d National Automobile show will close at 10:30 o'clock tonight, with a record in sales and attendance for the depression years. Executives were departing from their show headquarters for their factories yesterday, encouraged by the demonstration of public interest in the 1933 models.

The attendance for the seven days ended last night was estimated at 165,000. Another 35,000 are expected to visit the Coliseum today and tonight. The total of 200,000 compares well with the attendance in the boom years, indicating that the public is as eager for new motor cars as in those times.

The sales were approaching a total of 1,500 said the chairman, smoothly. "Two factions in the association have arisen, with opposing ideas about how to run the association. The minority faction is the Bistor-Pratt faction. The question as to who shall rule will be decided by the majority vote of the members Feb. 14."

Bistor said that a number of motions had been made at the meeting, but only one had been adopted. That was a vote of confidence, he said, in the present management as represented by Bistor and Pratt. Other motions to appoint a committee to confer with the opposing faction, to invite the opposing faction to present their view of the situation, and to appoint a committee to hear both sides, were lost, he declared.

"The tenor of a number of addresses made was that the present management has done its best when confronted with an almost impossible task."

Growls from Workers.

"Aw, tell 'em nothing!" growled a worker from the crowd which surrounded the interviewers. Mutters of approval came from the others.

"Fees to new members have been cut in half," remarked Bistor. "Put that in. It will be a good free ad for us."

Testimony before the grand jury was that Bistor, who is supposed to work without a salary, obtained a "special advance" of $5,000 last September.

The tax strike of the association was believed last December to have been definitely ended by the refusal of the United States Supreme court to hear Bistor's suit to escape the payment of real estate taxes, which had been carried through a succession of defeats from the lowest to the highest courts.

Since then, however, other petitions have been presented which have delayed collection of $200,000,000 in taxes.

The directors siding with Pratt in the fight over his management were said to be Bistor, James D. Stover, George W. Reinecke and two others. The proxies distributed among the workers appointed Pratt, Reinecke, or Stover to vote at the special meeting to be held in the Coliseum.

Members of the small group, headed by Director Collins, who held a separate meeting in the Palmer house, refused to discuss what occurred at their meeting.

Postmaster General Brown protested to Senator Robinson [Dem., Ark.] that senate's eliminating $19,000,000 appropriation for air mail service would virtually destroy aeronautical industry.

Bennett Clark, son of the late Speaker Champ Clark, was sworn in as senator from Missouri.

HOUSE SLASHES U. S. TRADE BOARD FUNDS $311,000

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—By a record vote of 165 to 181 the house of representatives today substracted from the 1934 appropriation for the federal trade commission the $311,316 it added yesterday. The action leaves the fund for the trade agency at $510,000 as recommended by the appropriations committee.

The boost in the committee's proposal was effected yesterday on the ground that addition of the money would permit the trade commission to complete investigations it now is conducting, including the inquiry into the fall of the Insull utility empire. On grounds of economy the house refused to provide money for the initiation of new investigations next year, and on the same grounds reversed today the action it took yesterday.

Following today's vote on the trade commission, the house passed the independent offices appropriation bill carrying $1,002,890,779 for the operation of 28 boards, bureaus and commissions during 1934. Of the total $945,988,634 was provided for the veterans' administration, an increase of $18,039,634 above the amount appropriated for veterans last year.

NEW BARGAINS AWAIT WEEK-END GROCERY BUYERS

Butter, Eggs Lowest of This Date in 50 Years.

BY PAUL POTTER.

An almost limitless variety of groceries, selling at attractive prices, will greet the multitude of shoppers who go forth this morning to stock up for the week-end meals. A last minute survey of the values offered will disclose that quality has not been sacrificed in putting even some of the former luxury classes for foods into lower price brackets.

The staples, such as flour, sugar, salt, coffee, tea, potatoes, and most of the popular cuts of meat as well as poultry and dairy products, are making new records in values today, whether compared with a week or a year ago.

Fine creamery butter and fresh country eggs are selling at the lowest prices for any Feb. 4 in nearly 50 years. Forty-two cents for 10 pounds of sugar in a cloth sack is also a new low level.

Cheese on Economy List.

Today housewives will find that cheese is on the economy list. Swiss, American, pimento, brick and other popular varieties are on sale at prices ranging between 14 and 33 cents a pound, contrasted with a range of 26 to 48 cents a pound a year ago.

Among the citrus fruits, lemons and oranges are at new low price levels today. The juicy oranges from Florida are said to be less than half the prices charged for comparable grades two years ago. Lemons from California at 15 to 20 cents a dozen also are considered an outstanding value.

Texas grapefruit is almost gone from the Chicago market, but Florida's crop is coming in this week in sufficiently large amounts to lower the price. Strawberries from the gulf range from 25 to 34 cents a quart. They also are lower than a week ago, and the lowest on record in any February.

Shipments from Hothouses.

The large hothouses of southern Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan are sending tomatoes and rhubarb at attractive prices. Cauliflower, celery and mushrooms also are somewhat lower, while lettuce from California and Arizona advanced a few cents a head during the week.

With canned chop suey, bean sprouts and polished rice at today's quotations, an abundant meal for a family of four can be provided at less than 50 cents. Navy beans in bulk are selling at 4 pounds for 10 cents today. Olives in cans or bottles, of fine quality, are as low as 25 cents a quart.

Canned soups also are available this week-end in a wide assortment at low prices.

Peas Shipped from Mexico.

Another new development on this week's market is the introduction of podless peas in sealed pound containers. The peas, of large size, are grown in Mexico, shelled and packed in Arizona and expressed to Chicago in refrigerated containers. They are not so choice as the smaller telephone peas, but storekeepers report that they are much in demand.

Some of the first honeydew melons of the year were sold to Chicago stores this week for today's trade. These melons came from South America and retail at about 30 cents each. Nectarines, peaches and fresh plums from California and from South America will reach the Chicago market in a few days.

Many stores are selling shelled nuts, including pecans, Brazils, almonds, walnuts and filberts, at 33 to 40 cents a pound. Dried fruits also are finding a ready demand, including the dates, prunes, and raisins in sealed packages and the assortments of figs, dates, and apricots in the transparent packages for 10 to 25 cents, depending upon size.

Prepared pancake flours in sealed packets, as well as family flour at bargain values, are being offered in most stores today.

Beverage Prices Lower.

Bottled beverages will be found to be selling at prices 15 to 30 per cent less than a year ago. In many instances the prices on ginger ales, grape juice, sodas, and other beverages have dropped materially since the holidays.

In the meat markets pork and beef cuts are being offered at temptingly low values. Prices of steaks and chops have been reduced in the last two weeks, while roasts and stewing meats have held steady in a low range.

Finds Meat Values Attractive

ADVANCE 2 PLANS TO PROVIDE PAY FOR TEACHERS

Confer on Loan from the R. F. C.

Two plans for a pay day for teachers and other school employés—one proposing payment in cash and the other in tax warrants—were advanced yesterday at meetings with Mayor Cermak and officials of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The 18,000 employés in the school system are owed nearly $26,000,000.

The request for warrants in lieu of cash was made to the mayor by a group of teacher leaders, headed by Agnes B. Clohesy, president of the elementary teachers' union, and Aaron Kline, president of the principals' club. Their proposal was that board of education 1931 warrants to the amount of $4,114,000, now held in the city's aggregate of funds, be broken into small denominations and distributed to school employés.

Only $3,000,000 Available.

The teachers suggested the city could replace the securities with 1932 and 1933 warrants. Deputy Controller Victor S. Petterson told the delegation that the city could only relinquish about $3,000,000 worth of warrants for the pay rolls, and that the rest would have to be held to satisfy various trust fund obligations.

Mayor Cermak said that he would appoint a committee to meet with the city controller and corporation counsel to study the possibilities for a pay day in warrants.

"I am for anything that will help you out," said the mayor. "If your plan is feasible I shall do everything in my power to hasten its execution."

Members of the men teachers' union, of which C. L. Vestal is president, also made a plea yesterday for some action in meeting back salaries. They sent letters to the school trustees describing their financial plight and urging the board to distribute 1932 tax anticipation warrants to employés unless arrangements can be made to obtain cash by Feb. 8, the next meeting of the board.

Discuss R. F. C. Loan.

A committee of school trustees conferred yesterday with H. B. Preston, Chicago representative of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, on plans for a $15,000,000 loan from the government to pay back salaries. The R. F. C. would make the loan direct to the Metropolitan Trust company, acting as a medium in the transaction under the plan.

In turn the trust company would purchase school board tax warrants at par and deposit them as collateral with the R. F. C. Under the law the loan cannot be made direct to the school board.

At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Preston said that he would take the matter under advisement. Others who attended the conference were James A. Hemingway, president of the board; Trustees Joseph P. Savage and Ernst Buehler, and Thomas V. Sullivan, attorney for the board.

SANITARY BOARD ASKS R. F. C. LOAN TO BUILD PLANTS

Bowler Urges Change in Law.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Officials of the Chicago sanitary district today asked the house banking and currency committee to broaden the Reconstruction Finance act to enable them to borrow sufficient money to complete the sewage treatment program ordered by the United States Supreme court.

Asks Change in Law.

Thomas J. Bowler, president of the district, and Ross A. Woodhull, chairman of the finance committee, told the house group that only dire need would bring them to the federal government for assistance. They asked that the self-liquidating limitation on R. F. C. construction loans be nullified and that the limitation be extended to include projects "heretofore authorized and for which tax levies have been made."

The present restriction on R. F. C. construction funds has virtually stultified the intent of congress to put men to work, Mr. Woodhull declared. He pointed to the fact that but 17 million dollars has been actually advanced on self-liquidating project loans. Were it possible for the sanitary district to obtain federal assistance, he said, 2,500 men would be employed directly "tomorrow," and twice that many within 60 days.

Massachusetts Objects.

Representative Robert Luce [Rep., Mass.] inquired why the sanitary district had not sought financial aid from the state of Illinois, and declared that Massachusetts and other states, "who bore their own burdens," objected to bearing the burdens of Illinois.

He was answered by Mr. Bowler in an impassioned plea just before the hearing ended, in which the sanitary district president asserted vehemently that Illinois was as much a part of the Union as Massachusetts, and that the sanitary district turned only to the federal government as a last resort.

Cosmic Ray Photographs Stolen from Compton's Aid

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A number of cosmic ray photographs taken during the last few weeks along the west coast of Chile were stolen yesterday from Paul G. Ledig, who is working with Prof. Arthur Compton, Chicago physicist, on research work for the Carnegie institute in the United States. Mr. Ledig had taken off his coat because the day was hot and left it lying on the grass while he and Prof. Compton worked. The thief took his wallet containing the photographs and a small amount of money.

Probe Death of Defendant in Alienation Suit

CORONER PROBES DEATH DESPITE FAMILY PROTEST

Steel Man's Son Found Dying in Hotel.

A post mortem examination of the body of James Carey Davis Jr., 35 years old, son of the late vice president of the American Steel Foundries, was ordered by the coroner's office yesterday, despite protests of Davis' family.

Davis was found dying in his room in the Rogers Park hotel, 6805 Sheridan road, early yesterday morning. He had apparently taken 225 grains of a powerful sedative which had been prescribed for him by the hotel physician, Dr. Arthur Gammage. Davis, it was said, had been drinking heavily.

Named in $100,000 Suit.

Davis had been married twice and was named defendant three days ago in a suit for $100,000 damages charging alienation of the affections of Mrs. Louise Schram, a blonde nurse. Mrs. Schram, found at the Cedar hotel, 1118 North State street, admitted that she had been living with Davis, and left him last Sunday after he beat her.

The coroner's office at first consented to waive a post mortem examination, conceding that Davis' death had been caused by an overdose of the sedative, but attorneys representing Davis' mother, who is in New Mexico, and his first wife, Mrs. Ruth Henderson Davis, 2828 Sheridan road, criticised the wording of a waiver absolving the coroner's office from responsibility because the post mortem was not performed. Then Deputy Coroner Eugene Ingles ordered the examination made and continued the inquest until Feb. 15.

Davis was first married in 1916 and had two children by his first wife, Janet, 16, and James, 15. The couple were divorced eight years ago. Two years ago Davis married Miss Betty King, who is now living near Vista, Cal. Davis had a divorce action pending in Las Vegas, Nev., at the time of his death.

Nurse Tells of Meeting.

Mrs. Schram said she met Davis last fall when he was a patient for alcoholism at 900 Rush street. He took her to California with him. Then his mother placed him in a sanitarium at Pueblo, Col., and Mrs. Schram returned to Chicago. Davis returned last Jan. 9 and they lived together until Sunday at the Belair hotel, 420 Diversey parkway, she said.

Davis had been despondent about the alienation of affection suit filed against him by Chester Schram, husband of Mrs. Schram, it was said. He was cut off from an inheritance in his father's $400,000 estate, it was learned, but received $4,500 a year regularly from his mother in addition to other amounts.

Mother Sued by Wife.

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Before she had learned of the death of her husband, J. C. Davis Jr., in Chicago, Mrs. Betty King Davis of Vista, Cal., filed suit in Superior court here today against his mother asking $200,000 damages and alleging alienation of his affections.

Mrs. Betty King Davis charged in her suit that her husband's mother over a period of two years had sought to alienate him from her and that as a result he deserted her Sept. 9, 1932. He had instituted divorce proceedings at Las Vegas, Nev.

Mrs. Davis could not be reached tonight, but her attorney, Clifford Fitzgerald, said he believed that she might not press the suit since her husband had died.

Passenger Plane Lost in Blizzard Arrives in Nome

Anchorage, Alaska, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The United States signal station late today reported the plane of Pilot Robert Reeves, lost in a blizzard with four passengers since Tuesday, had arrived safely at Nome. The passengers, Mr. and Mrs. Ole Hay of Nome and their two children, were returning from Seattle. They boarded the plane at Seward.

COUNTY OFFICERS "PASS THE BUCK" OVER TAX RATES

There was a great show of "passing the buck" in the County building yesterday when County Treasurer McDonough, County Clerk Sweitzer, Assessor Jacobs, and Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, members of the board of tax appeals, engaged in a controversy over the reason for the delay in the calculation of the 1931 tax rates.

The county treasurer began by demanding speed on the part of the county clerk whose employés calculate the rates from which the individual tax bills are determined. Mr. Sweitzer asserted that more than 40 personal property assessment books still remained in the assessor's office. These books, he stated, must be sent to his office before the calculation of the rates can begin.

Assessor Jacobs admitted that some of his assessment books still were in his own possession. He said that the board of tax appeals had been slow in turning over the books to him. The appeals board members denied that their employés were tardy in handling the assessment books, saying that the assessor had deluged them with hundreds of last minute changes on Monday, the day when the board had promised to complete its work on the personalty assessment.

HOOVER URGES STATES TO END DUPLICATE TAX

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Illinois' tax problems and those of more than 20 other states today were laid before the first meeting of the interstate legislative assembly, gathered here to devise means of lightening the tax burden by eliminating federal and state duplication.

Welcomed by President Hoover, who told the 100 legislators and officials that they were undertaking a task of vital importance to the American taxpayer, the assembly moved today toward the establishment of a continuing body which would work with congress on the elimination of duplicate taxation.

Burden on People—Hoover.

"Our economic situation is such that the people must have relief from tax burdens," President Hoover told the legislators, adding that even if the meeting did not solve the problem, it was important that a beginning be made.

During the afternoon session, Scott Lucas, Illinois tax commissioner, who with Barnett Hodes and Simeon Leland, also of the commission, represented Illinois, sketched the state's tax situation for the assembly.

Chicago tax tangles have cost the state millions of dollars in back taxes, Commissioner Lucas said, adding that Illinois' tax troubles were mainly internal. He called attention to the high cost of tax administration and constitutional barriers as examples of these difficulties. He predicted that the state would be forced to the adoption of a sales tax.

Other States Tell Troubles.

Other states also laid before the assembly their problems, most of them declaring that extraordinary demands, mainly for relief, were pushing them toward the adoption of new taxes, even though the federal government was already using the taxes. Two states declared they were looking forward to imposing a beer tax.

Segregation of certain tax sources for the federal government and others for the state was urged as one solution of the tax tangle.

MONK'S DEFENSE OF HITLER PARTY ANGERS CHURCH

Catholic Officials Order Him to Explain Stand.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 4 (Saturday).—Two communists were killed and six persons were injured in clashes between Nazis and communists after midnight. A communist was clubbed to death in a fight at Duisberg.

MUNICH, Germany, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Father Alban Schachleiter, a Benedictine monk and a former abbot, was summoned by the Roman Catholic church officials of this diocese today to explain his defense of the principles of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party in the face of a pastoral letter of the bishop of Linz advising Catholics to withdraw from that party.

Father Schachleiter wrote an article for Chancellor Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter in which he said that Nazis adhered staunchly to the principles of Christianity.

Calls Article "Open Insurrection."

Archbishopric officials here, in the Bavarian Courier, an official paper, said that Father Schachleiter was setting himself against the church authorities as well as the entire German hierachy.

"His article means open insurrection against a church order and violates the rule prohibiting a member of the clergy from printing articles without the approval of the regional bishop," the officials said.

According to the Bavarian Courier, this is the second brush the monk has had with the church authorities. A year ago the privilege of saying mass in the archdioceses of Munich and Freising was withdrawn, the paper said. No date has been set for his appearance before church officials.

Socialist Paper Suppressed.

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The iron Nazi fist descended heavily on the principal Social Democrat organ, the newspaper Vorwaerts, today. The publication was suspended for three days for what the present régime defined as "attempted incitement to high treason." The editor of the newspaper said tonight that notice of appeal would be served immediately against what he felt was a grave injustice.

Publication of a Socialist election manifesto was the cause of the suspension. It called the present government "professional patriots," and closed by saying:

"Fight with us for seizure of the huge estate, for their division among farmers and farm laborers! Fight with us for seizure of heavy industries and building up of social plans. Give the enemies of your freedom the answer March 5 [the date of German elections] they deserve, that they may lose for eternity their desire to deprive you of your rights."

Denounce Hitler's Rule.

Bitter denunciations of the government have appeared in the newspaper since the ascendancy of Chancellor Hitler.

Today's manifesto declared: "Against such plans we call you to fight. Arm yourselves. Protect your individuality as citizens. Arise against your oppressors, against the fine people, against the thin air upper crust of landed interests and capitalists. Crush their political and economic power."

The editor said that the manifesto plainly calls upon citizens to "give their answer March 5," meaning by the ballot.

Boston Woman Surrenders in Million Dollar Fraud Case

Boston, Mass., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Mrs. Florence Hascall, widow of a former business manager and trustee of Boston university, surrendered today to police on a warrant charging her with larceny in an alleged fraud which, police said, might have victimized prominent women to the aggregate extent of $1,000,000.

Mrs. Hascall was accompanied to police headquarters by her counsel, David Greer, and was released in $15,000 bail supplied by a professional bondsman.

Greer told Judge Michael J. Murray in Municipal court that Mrs. Hascall had been a victim of the fraud, but at the request of Police Lieutenant Thomas Traynor the warrant was issued specifically charging her with larceny of $5,000.

Mrs. Hascall was accused of having stolen that sum from Mrs. Laura Bradstreet, prominent Brookline woman.

Story of "Gift Family."

Police investigation was said to have revealed a strange story of a "gift family," in which women investors were allowed to become participating members. Members of the "family" were to participate in a fund directed by a mysterious philanthropist with a flair for financial management that was to net investors as high as 50 per cent profit.

In some vague manner investors were given to understand, police said, that the poor and needy were to be aided through the operations of the plan.

Attorney Greer pleaded for delay in issuing the warrant in order to produce a contract which, he said, would show that Mrs. Hascall had acted innocently, but Lieut. Traynor told the court he doubted the existence of either the mysterious philanthropist or the contract itself.

Said to Lose $10,000 Each.

Police were said to have discovered that a number of women had put sums running as high as $10,000 into the plan, but until the last day or two had been reluctant to have their names involved in the case.

Mrs. Hascall is the widow of Lee Claflin Hascall, who died in 1926 after long connection with Boston university. In her behalf Attorney Greer issued the following statement after the court proceedings:

"I am absolutely innocent. The only wrong I have done was to try to help my friends. I welcome this opportunity of clearing my name before the world to the satisfaction of every one."

STEAL $20,000 PLEDGE CARDS TO JAP SCHOOL

The theft of pledge cards promising $20,000 to his university and also of decorations he received for bravery during the war was reported to central police last night by the Rev. Bruno Bitter, vice president of Jochi university, a Jesuit institution at Tokio, Japan.

Father Bitter, who is a guest of Loyola university, parked his car in Benton place at State street last night while on business in the loop. Shortly before midnight he discovered that thieves had broken into the automobile and stolen his suitcase and a typewriter.

In the suit case, he said, were hundreds of pledge cards amounting to $20,000 in pledges to Jochi university, a German iron cross, a regimental cross, and a Lateran cross. Father Bitter served through the world war as a member of the Prussian guard and received the iron and regimental crosses for valor. The Lateran cross was received from Rome for his services as a priest since the war. The priest told police he would ask no questions if the thief would return the pledge cards. The cards, he said, are the fruit of months of work.

KAISER TO STAY IN EXILE UNLESS HE GETS THRONE

[Copyright: 1933: By the Associated Press.]

BERLIN, Feb. 3.—Unless Germany asks Wilhelm II. to return from Doorn as emperor the erstwhile powerful ruler will not come back to the land of his fathers.

This was emphatically reasserted today by the former kaiser's personal adjutant, Baron Ullrich von Sell.

"Wouldn't he even consider returning if the present government of national concentration were to invite him, say as an honored guest?" he was asked.

The questioner had in mind that the cabinet of Chancellor Adolf Hitler certainly would not oppose his return, but, on the contrary, in consonance with its policy of revering everything connected with Germany's military past, would conceivably show him the same respect and honor which former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm is shown whenever he appears at nationalistic functions.

BRITISH JOIN ATTACK ON FRENCH SCHEME; ASK REAL ARMS CUT

GENEVA, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The French disarmament plan, which was attacked yesterday by Germany and Italy, met further serious opposition today when the British spokesman announced his country would not give the additional pledges for European security which the French proposal demands.

Capt. Anthony Eden, British undersecretary of state, emphasized the value of existing security pacts, such as the league of nations covenant, the pact of Paris and the Locarno treaties, and asserted it was high time to do some genuine disarming. His statement paralleled the viewpoint expressed yesterday by Count Rudolf Nadolny for Germany.

Czechoslovakia and Belgium, traditional supporters of France's post-war policy, advocated and defended the French scheme, which, in addition to calling for security pacts, would eradicate professional armies, replacing them by conscript troops.

The discussion was adjourned until Monday, when Hugh Gibson, American delegate to the disarmament conference, and Maxim Litvinoff, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, are scheduled to speak.

2 MEN BURNED TO DEATH WHEN PLANE CRASHES

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Two men were burned to death and a woman was seriously injured late tonight when a privately owned airplane crashed near the municipal airport.

One of the victims, Dr. Floyd A. Hennessey, a dentist, was owner and pilot of the plane. A man named Bond, who was not otherwise identified immediately, also was killed. A woman identified as a Miss Finely was seriously hurt.

The three were making a short flight when the accident occurred. The plane had taken off and landed once, but went up again. Airport attachés said when it reached an altitude of 500 feet it fell and burst into flames.

TURKEY TO EXPEL FOREIGN TRADERS FROM ISTANBUL

Even Dancers in Cabarets Must Be Native.

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 18.—[By Mail.]—Thousands of foreign business men have only until June 15 next to wind up their affairs in Istanbul the end of a year of grace under a Turkish law specifying numerous businesses, trades, and professions which no longer may be practiced by any one but Turks.

The law forbids the enterprises of hundreds of Italians, Greeks, Persians, Armenians and many other foreigners in the two divisions of the city, Pera, the European quarter, and Stamboul, the native section.

Singers, dancers, and actresses from France, Austria, Hungary, or Italy may not come to Istanbul. Night life of Pera and Stamboul may continue just as gay, but it will be a gayety provided by the women of Turkey whom Mustapha Kemal has forced to quit the veil and the harem skirt.

Howl from Victims.

The decree against immigrant traders has been called here "economic xenophobia," which to American ears may sound like technocracy and all that. However, it is a part of Premier Kemal's plan to Europeanize Turkey and at the same time reserve the country for Turks.

Critics of the law, who, of course, are largely those affected by it, declare it will hit the Turks harder than those forced out of business. It comes, however, from a Turkish belief that foreign financial assistance always results in some kind of political control.

May Broaden Scope Later.

Whatever the problem may be the law is firm. After June all foreign peddlers, musicians, photographers, barbers, printers, clothing merchants, shoe merchants, hat and cap merchants, exchange agents, interpreters, guides, construction workers, and iron workers may no longer operate in Turkey.

Aviation pilots and mechanics must also be Turks and the law provides that trades or professions not mentioned in it may be included later by decision of the Turkish council of ministers.

MORGENTHAU JR. MAY BE HEAD OF NEW FARM BOARD

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Impending resignation of Henry Morgenthau Jr., commissioner of conservation, to assume an important federal post at Washington under President Elect Roosevelt was reported here.

Commissioner Morgenthau, who has represented the President elect at the national capital in presenting his program for farm rehabilitation to the legislators, was said to be slated for the chairmanship of a federal farm board which would have wider and different powers than the present farm board.

With Henry A. Wallace of Iowa linked in these same reports as prospective secretary of agriculture, it was avowed that President Elect Roosevelt was seeking to combine Mr. Wallace and Mr. Morgenthau as a cooperating team to further his drive for the farmer.

CAPT. ROBINSON, OUTDOOR LIFE EXPONENT, IS 90

Civil War Vet Works on Birthday.

Capt. Charles H. Robinson, civil war veteran, editor, author, and vigorous exponent of the outdoor life, yesterday celebrated his 90th birthday at his home, 5326 Blackstone avenue. On Thursday night Capt. Robinson was honored by the Loyal legion, composed of civil war officers.

Capt. Robinson spent his birthday at work. He is editor of the Western Review, a magazine devoted to fraternal insurance. The captain also writes a regular syndicated article on botanical subjects. His chief recreation is hiking and nature study.

He has been a member for many years of the Prairie club, but in recent years has not participated in many of the club hikes because he preferred to take longer walks by himself. In recognition of his discovery of a new specie of wild rose in the Dunes recently the flower was named for him.

Capt. Robinson served three enlistments in the civil war, two with an Ohio infantry regiment and the third with the 186th Illinois volunteers. Of his immediate family only two granddaughters survive. One of them, Dr. Helen Baker, recently was appointed chief obstetrician at the Edinburgh hospital in Scotland. The other, Miss Frances Baker, resides in London.

Following the civil war Capt. Robinson studied law and became an attorney in the interior department at Washington. He was later sent to Iowa as a government pension agent. In Iowa he entered politics, serving two terms in the state legislature and as mayor of Knoxville, Ia. During this time he wrote several Indian story books for boys.

Capt. Robinson today is in excellent health and as active as ever. "Whenever any one asks me how I keep so well," he said, "I tell them my favorite story about the old lady who attributed her great age to 'yittles.'"

CRY OF ECONOMY GOES UNHEEDED AS HOUSE SPENDS

Votes $800,000 to Boost Yield of Crops.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Continuing our pursuit of the disparity between promises and performance in congress in the matter of economy, we observe the fate of Alabama's Democratic Representative Miles C. Allgood's effort to start the ball rolling toward a billion dollar cut in the cost of the federal government.

The house is considering the department of agriculture appropriation bill. There are 74 of the 435 members present. The clerk drones out the item of $419,000 for investigation and development of methods for the prevention of heating of agricultural products.

Many Scientists and Bugologists.

Mr. Allgood moves to reduce the amount to $300,000. He says he never knew before "there were so many scientists and so many 'bugologists.' It seems that the farmer is being humbugged in this bill." Scientists have done something for agriculture, he concedes, but he defies any scientist to take five cent cotton and 15 cent corn and make a farmer prosperous.

"This country is down economically," Mr. Allgood argues. "We must either cut our budget over 1 billion dollars, and there is no way to reduce it that I can see except to reduce these expenditures, or attempt to increase taxes 1 billion, and I favor reducing expenditures, and here is one place where I think we can cut $100,000 off of appropriations. We Democrats were elected to help do away with bureaucracy. We might just as well start now."

Representative James P. Buchanan [Dem., Tex.], in charge of the bill, protests that the bureau of chemistry "has saved millions of dollars to farmers in fertilizer alone." Thereupon the Allgood motion is defeated, 32 to 42.

Starts Economy at Home.

Undiscouraged by this rebuff, Mr. Allgood moves to cut $100,000 from the $204,000 item for investigation of cotton production and control of cotton diseases. "I am starting at home with my economy," he explains. "I come from a cotton section and I am willing to stand up here and tell you that the cotton farmers are not asking for this $200,000 appropriation for this purpose. We already have appropriated several million dollars for extension purposes for farm agents and to the land grant colleges for this specific purpose. This is duplication and there is no question about it."

What the farmer is interested in, adds Mr. Allgood, is "a better price for his cotton and not more information about breeding and cultural methods."

Mr. Buchanan retorts that the cotton planters have been seeking quantity instead of quality production, wherefor the decline in quality has cost them foreign markets. The appropriation, he argues, is to be devoted to the development of a higher quality and to counteracting cotton wilt and other diseases.

Alabaman Is Astonished.

Representative Lafayette L. Patterson [Dem., Ala.] says he is "astonished that a member from a cotton growing state should offer to cut out half of the little appropriation that is allowed for experimentation and improvement in the culture of cotton."

"I have voted for economy, but this would penalize my section of the country and prove false economy for the whole country, every inch of which I love." Thereupon the house rejects Mr. Allgood's proposed cut, 38 to 56.

Next comes the item of $220,000 for improving crop production on semi-arid land. Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] moves to cut it out entirely, asserting that "this is an item that has been going along for 40 years. They have accomplished what they set out to do and it is time to stop the spending of money in this way."

In great alarm Representative John W. Summers [Rep., Wash.] springs to the fore, pleading for retention of an appropriation "to help those poor people, hundreds of thousands of farmers, who have established their homes in the semi-arid region east of the Rocky mountains to know what crops they can hope to grow with some little profit."

Representative John D. Clarke [Rep., N. Y.] points out that western land speculators induced settlement of these arid lands by false representations. Anyway, it is the duty of the western land grant colleges to furnish such crop advice.

New York's Bertrand H. Snell, Republican leader, wants to know what has been accomplished by such appropriations in 40 years. Mr. Summers cannot remember offhand, but finally says the types of farming and grazing have been improved. Representative Milton A. Romjue [Dem., Mo.] inquires if it is justifiable to spend public money to increase farm production and Representative James H. Sinclair [Rep., N. D.] responds that there is no overproduction, only underconsumption.

Just More Bureaucracy.

Mr. Allgood says "we are appropriating 118 millions in this bill for experiments to increase production." As for this arid land item, "it is just more bureaucracy, more jobs for experts and the country is filled up with bureaucracy." Mr. Buchanan now remembers that the experts working under this appropriation have invented a plow that "digs little holes in the ground as it goes along" which conserve the moisture of scanty rainfall. Anyway, inasmuch as $200,000 has been voted for aid of southern cotton planters why not allow this $220,0000 for the northwestern dry farmers who have "greater difficulties, having the elements to contend with?"

Mistaking dry land farming for the irrigation farming of Arizona where he spent his youth, Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rad., N. Y.] makes an impassioned plea for retention of the item. There are now only 57 of the 435 members on the floor. In response to the bells ringing in all offices to announce a vote, 29 more members appear. The $220,000 item is then retained by a vote of 51 to 35.

Team of Horses Sells for More Than a Tractor

Falls City, Neb., Feb. 3.—(AP)—A team of horses sold for a higher price at a farm sale near here than that paid for an almost new tractor. At the W. A. Shock farm the team brought $194 and the tractor $164. The machine cost approximately $800 when new.

ARVEY DEFENDS FEES AS MASTER IN FORECLOSURES

Master in Chancery Jacob M. Arvey of the Circuit court yesterday defended his fees in mortgage foreclosures. He said he has always been reasonable in assessing costs for hearings and that his fees are lower than those of his colleagues.

In the first six months of 1932 judges referred 28 cases to Master Arvey, who is alderman of the 24th ward. He ranked eighteenth among the twenty masters in the number of cases distributed. His cases involved $5,290,400 in property. On the basis of valuations Ald. Arvey ranks third among the masters.

Paid $25,184 for 12 Cases.

In the ranking by property Arvey was topped by Isadore Brown, who had 136 cases involving $6,631,410, and Julius H. Miner, who had 144 cases involving $5,714,250. Frank H. Bicek, now a Circuit judge, who was first in the number of cases, having 151 assigned to him, was twelfth on property standing, with $997,189.

In 12 cases assigned to Ald. Arvey, each involving more than $100,000, he has received total fees of $25,184, an average of $2,098 for each case. Six other masters in the Circuit court heard 113 cases and received $198,933, an average of $1,685 for each case.

These figures are listed in a recent study of masters in chancery published by the Illinois Law Review. The study was made by Homer F. Carey, John W. Brabner-Smith, and David V. Lansden of Northwestern university.

Attorney for 2 Bank Receivers.

In addition to his master's fees Arvey is receiving fees as attorney for two bank receivers. His law firm, Epstein & Arvey, received $7,000 from the Novak & Steiskal State bank. They are also counsel in the Kimball Trust and Savings bank, but have not yet sent in a bill.

Ald. Arvey is Democratic floor leader in the city council. He is chairman of the committee on gas, oil, and electricity and holds a seat in the finance committee. Recently he was reported to have refused a state post under Gov. Horner because he did not wish to leave the council and his master's post.

Admits New Petition in North Shore Park Fight

Superior Judge Walter P. Steffen yesterday granted leave for Howard Savage, Louis D. David, and Emmett J. Cleary, commissioners of the north shore park district, to file a quo warranto petition in the Superior court against Hyman Kinzelberg, Maurice T. Weinshenk, and Mary Richartz, who also are park commissioners. The contest involves the offices of president, attorney, and secretary of the board, each trio laying claim to the offices. The park commissioners have been in court before in a series of bitter contests involving the election in April, 1931, of several other commissioners.

CHICAGO GETS INTERNATIONAL AVIATION MEET

inaugurated last year by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the sixth corps area, is to be held in Chicago on the same dates as the air races. This will bring to the city scores of the crack pilots of army aviation. An invitation is also to be sent to Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, to send to Chicago the giant navy dirigible Akron, to give an exhibition of launching and picking up in the air the fleet of pursuit planes assigned to it.

Races to Be Thrilling.

Perhaps the greatest thrill of the spectacle, however, will come from the races themselves, in which the crack speed pilots of the United States and Europe will guide their roaring craft around the pylons of a closed course at speeds of 300 miles an hour and higher. The races will be held in the afternoon, leaving the spectators their evenings free to view the military show in the Chicago Stadium and the exhibits of the Century of Progress.

The Chicago Air Race corporation was responsible for reviving air exhibitions in Chicago after a lapse of 19 years. At the time that the corporation was organized, in October, 1929, at a meeting called by Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of THE TRIBUNE, there had been no major air exhibition in Chicago since the famous lake front air meet of 1911.

Leading citizens of Chicago became members of the board of directors, and guaranteed the expenses of the 1930 air races. After all expenses and prizes had been paid, the races yielded a profit of $30,000 which was to be devoted to charity. Six hundred thousand spectators attended during the ten days of racing, which was conducted at the Curtiss-Reynolds airport.

Stage One Day Air Meet.

On Nov. 9, 1931, THE TRIBUNE staged on the lake front a one day air exhibition which was witnessed by 200,000 people. Despite the fact that thousands of spectators "crashed the gate" past police lines, the exhibition earned $18,000 for Chicago charities.

Again last year, at the suggestion of THE TRIBUNE, the American Legion staged a one day meet at Sky Harbor airport on Sept. 11. After expenses of this show were paid, the admissions paid by 60,000 spectators yielded a profit of $7,000 which was turned into the charitable funds of the Legion.

Thus Chicago air exhibitions have shown a profit of $55,000 in the last three years. They have been unique in this respect. A number of important air meets throughout the country have been conducted at financial losses which had to be made good by the guarantors. With the myriad visitors who will be in Chicago for the World's Fair this summer, it is anticipated that the four day meet will realize for Chicago charities a sum exceeding by a considerable amount the profits of the last three meets here.

Legion Plans Meet Later.

The American Legion is also to stage an air meet in Chicago this year in connection with the annual convention of the organization here in October. Maj. R. W. Schroeder, in charge of the legion meet, when he was informed at his home last night of the meet to be sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, stated that because of the interval of three months between the two meets he did not believe that the charity races would interfere with the plans of the legionnaires.

"On the contrary," said Maj. Schroeder, "the interest built up in Chicago as an aeronautical center by THE TRIBUNE'S meet will enhance the success of our races later, particularly in view of the visits of European flyers and balloonists in July. We will attempt to persuade some of the foreign visitors to return for the legion show, when 200,000 members of the legion will be in Chicago."

CONDONS SETTLE 'ALIMONY WOES; WIFE GETS HOME

Thomas R. Condon, wealthy head of a utilities concern bearing his name, ended his alimony troubles yesterday when attorneys obtained the approval of Judge James J. Kelly in the Superior court to an agreement under which Mrs. Mary G. Condon obtains a lump settlement in lieu of alimony.

Mrs. Condon won a divorce in July, 1930, after a bitterly contested suit in which Condon charged his wife with intoxication. She charged cruelty. Condon was ordered to pay her $600 a month alimony and recently Judge Kelly threatened to send him to jail for contempt if he did not make up $4,000 in arrears on his payments.

Under the settlement arranged, Mrs. Condon will receive a $40,000 home in Flossmoor and $1,500 in cash, of which $1,050 was paid yesterday. The remainder is to be paid in monthly installments of $25. Condon is also to pay $50 a month for the support of his son, Thomas Jr., 5 years old, who is with Mrs. Condon.

Condon served a sentence in the county jail for contempt of court in 1930.

ROOSEVELT GOES FISHING TODAY; SEEKS ISOLATION

Yacht Will Not Touch Shore for Ten Days.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

En Route with Roosevelt to Jacksonville, Fla., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—President Elect Roosevelt's thoughts turned away tonight from war debts, cabinet selections, and ambassadorships and dallied with light dreams of barracuda, kingfish, and tarpon.

Tomorrow morning will find Mr. Roosevelt sunning himself on the deck of Vincent Astor's ocean going yacht, the Nourmahal, as it cuts swiftly through southern seas, and perhaps by another day he will be throwing his fish lines into the blue Caribbean somewhere around the Bahamas.

For ten days Mr. Roosevelt and his companions, including Mr. Astor and the President elect's own cousin, Kermit Roosevelt, expect to not touch shore, their only news from the world of affairs being a daily radio news service broadcast for all ships.

However, Mr. Roosevelt said today, as he set his tackle and gear in order for the trip on the Nourmahal, that he would send a daily news bulletin by radio to his press secretary, Marvin H. McIntyre, who will be vacationing at Miami with James A. Farley and Edward J. Flynn, political lieutenants for the President elect.

Will Have No Visitors.

The special train bearing the presidential party departed from Warm Springs at 8:15 tonight.

The President elect was asked if he would respond to inquiries directed to him on the Nourmahal, seeking his views on national events.

"O, yes, of course," he said, smiling. "I'll just wireless the answer thank you very much."

Mr. Roosevelt gave definite promise that he would not attempt to bring any prospective cabinet members aboard the yacht at any time for secret conferences.

He has indicated, however, that he proposes some reposeful contemplation of the problems confronting him, and the men he will name to help him in cabinet and other important posts. The President elect expects to return to Jacksonville on Feb. 15, going directly to his home in New York City.

Sails at 9:30 O'Clock.

The citizens of Jacksonville have prepared a welcome for Mr. Roosevelt, who will parade through the streets and make a short address when his car halts briefly at Hemming park. The Nourmahal sails at 9:30 o'clock.

Among his last visitors at Warm Springs today was Robert W. Bingham, Louisville publisher, who is slated to receive an important diplomatic post, possibly the ambassadorship to France.

Clark Howell Jr., son of the publisher of the Atlanta Constitution, and Mrs. Howell arrived.

May Extend Valley Plan.

Mr. Roosevelt said today that if the surveys he proposes to have made to improve the Tennessee valley show his ambitious plan to be a feasible project, he will not await the completion of that work but will apply the same scheme to some other watershed, probably the Arkansas river valley.

As to the time needed for completing the project, Mr. Roosevelt said he thought the whole undertaking could be put under way in four or five years and be completed within ten or twelve years.

FRENCH PREMIER WINS O. K. FOR HIS BUDGET PROGRAM

Socialists at Last Minute Give Support.

PARIS, Feb. 3.—(AP)—Premier Edouard Daladier today won a heavy vote of confidence in the chamber of deputies for his proposal to go ahead with a ministerial program of slow but sure financial restoration. The vote was 370 to 200.

A last minute decision of Socialists to support the ministry reestablished the former left solidarity in the chamber, which was the basis of the Herriot and Paul-Boncour governments.

Fear Dissolution.

Their action was partly influenced by rumors in the lobbies of a possibility that the chamber would be dissolved unless a stable government were formed.

Premier Daladier said that his financial project would be presented Tuesday but that he opposed "a too rigorous policy" such as that which caused the downfall of the Paul-Boncour cabinet.

Cites U. S. Deficit.

He said that most countries, including the United States, had deficits and that the budget could not be completely balanced in a few days, since the problem was in international in scope.

Former Premier Herriot rallied to the support of the government, declaring: "These are difficult hours and compel us to rise above quarrels. It is a moment when we ought to seek not what separates us but what unites us."

2 PROCLAMATIONS URGE COUNTY TO 'SHARE THE WORK'

Mayor Cermak and Emmett Wheelan, president of the county board, in proclamations yesterday added their indorsements to the "Share the Work" movement.

"The idea is simple," read the mayor's proclamation. "It aims to stop further unemployment, thus giving job security to present workers, and to make new jobs by spreading all available work over a larger number of employes, each working on one or another of a great variety of shortened schedules. In industries where the present schedules of work and rates of pay are so low that the worker is unable to maintain more than a minimum standard of living, the 'Share the Work' plan should not, of course, be adopted."

Thomas E. Wilson, president of the Wilson company, is state chairman of the movement, and Alfred S. Alschuler is chairman for Chicago and Cook county.

PAYMENT OF U. S. IN WORLD GOLD NOTES PROPOSED

Briton Wants Economic Parley to Rule Deal.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A plan to restore international prosperity along the lines of the world economic conference preparatory commission's recommendations for a return to the gold standard and also providing for the payment of war debts is under consideration here by the Bank of England and several noted economists.

The author of the plan is J. F. Shaw, who has submitted the idea to President Elect Roosevelt, American Ambassador Andrew W. Mellon, Senator Borah and other American officials.

Says Price Levels Are Too Low.

"World price levels of commodities have dropped too low in comparison with everything the primary producer must purchase or hire," Shaw said. "As the purchasing power of the primary producer ultimately regulates the volume of manufactures and all other services, prosperity is only obtainable by restoring this price level and maintaining the purchasing power of primary producers throughout the world.

"High tariffs, quotas, exchange restrictions, instability of price levels and currencies, the difficulty in paying intergovernmental debts and even the failure drastically to reduce armaments are only results of the fundamental cause. Only stabilized commodity prices will create the necessary confidence, security and good will to justify a reduction in economic weapons and armaments.

"The purchasing power of primary producers can be increased and then stabilized by increasing and regulating real wealth values in terms of gold. The net effect of the plan would be to convert intergovernmental war debts into the solution of the problem by utilizing the combined credit of all debtor countries and the Bank for International Settlements, thus creating a new world purchasing power which could be passed over to the United States.

Plan for Carrying Out Proposal.

"The plan for carrying out this proposal follows:

"Each country would negotiate separately and agree to final debt settlement figures. These amounts, in the form of international gold notes, would be paid over to the United States in whole or part over a period of years as and when recommended by the world economic conference. The debtor countries would jointly underwrite them to the world bank, which would issue these gold notes and redeem them in gold or equivalent exchange. The United States would at the same time agree to accept for all time such gold notes as equal to metal.

"America would accept the gold notes in reduction of debts due her from time to time and carry out recommendations of the economic conference as to the utilization of such gold notes for restoring and maintaining American and world price levels of commodities.

"The economic conference would stipulate that the amount of gold notes in circulation at any one time should not exceed a certain fixed percentage of the total gold holdings of the signatories to the joint agreement. Minimum payments to the United States in gold notes would exceed the present total annual installments. The plan requires that sterling and other nongold currencies again be linked with gold.

Would Assure Stable Currency.

"Since the United States is the largest primary producer in the world and Great Britain is the biggest importer of commodities, and thereby obtains the lowest prices, they both can greatly assist the economic conference in restoring and maintaining the world price level.

"Acceptance of the plan by America and the debtor countries would create the confidence the world needs more so in Europe because it provides for ratification of the Lausanne agreement [suspending German reparations payments] and an increase in America's and the world's purchasing power, thereby creating employment.

"The marginal increase in commodity and stock prices resulting from the adoption of the plan would help release frozen assets and circulate money. Still further, it would increase available credit and purchasing power of all classes in America and throughout the world."

RUMANIA ORDERS MARTIAL LAW TO CURB DISORDERS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 3.—The government was empowered tonight by the parliament to declare martial law in Rumina in order to curb unrest and agitation "of perilous dimensions."

Premier Vaida-Voevod, holding that the measure was necessary, referred to recent riots in the Ploesti oil district, which he said were engineered by communists, and to a "passive resistance" strike in the government railway shops here.

It was believed the government also had in mind Fascist student disorders. Meanwhile the University of Bucharest was in a state of siege, students having locked themselves in the buildings with the announcement that they would not leave until their demands for revision of university regulations were granted. Two hundred students refused to join the demonstration and were locked with their professors in lecture rooms.

Police and soldiers were driven off with tear gas bombs and icicles.

The gendarmerie will be reënforced by 15,000 men. Under martial law those arrested for rioting will have to deal with both civil and military authorities.

Last Wednesday Rumanian troops were hurried to Ploesti to suppress putedisorders arising from a wage dispute at the Rumanian-American Oil company plant.

A thousand workers were reported to have stormed the place, wrecking the interior of the administration building. Soldiers arrested 250 rioters.

CALLS ATTITUDE OF N. M. BUTLER TO U. S. DISLOYAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A slashing attack on organized pacifism and its alleged effort to dictate American international policy through high powered propaganda was made in the house today by Representative George Holden Tinkham [Rep., Mass.].

Mr. Tinkham introduced a resolution calling for an immediate congressional investigation of the methods and activities of organizations designed to influence the foreign policy of the United States. He referred specifically to the Carnegie endowment for international peace and the Rockefeller Foundation as the "most formidable promoters of the subversive, disloyal, and seditious movement.

Says Retire to England.

To Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, the fiery Massachusetts congressman flung a challenge to retire to England or "fight the second battle of Bunker Hill."

"The director of the political propaganda division of the Carnegie endowment," Mr. Tinkham asserted, "is Nicholas Murray Butler, who also is chairman of the advisory council of the League of Nations Associations, Inc., and whose attitude toward his country I have no hesitation in designating as disloyal and seditious. Nicholas Murray Butler states he is for peace. There will be no peace on the American continent unless he retires to England or fights the second battle of Bunker Hill."

"One of the fundamental policies of the United States," Mr. Tinkham told the house, "is to refrain from interference or participation in the political affairs of Europe."

Abandonment of that policy, he declared, is responsible in part for the "economic prostration of the country."

"The subtle and high cost propaganda which initiates federal legislation and directs American policies, is the invisible government of today," he declared. "It is cynically agreed in Washington that cost alone limits the delivery of public opinion in any direction upon any issue.

Asks Light on Foul Intrigue.

"The congress can perform its duty only by throwing the bright light of publicity upon the foul intrigue now being perpetrated against the American people. The activities and vast expenditures of the disloyal and seditious organizations which are now poisoning American public opinion at its source demand complete exposure.

"Their purpose and methods should be disclosed. Their expenditures for the pollution of the pulpit, the platform, institutions of learning, and the press of the country should be uncovered. Those who are being paid should be named and identified."

One of Coughlin's Rivals Quits Aldermanic Race

Ald. John J. Coughlin [1st], member of the city council for more than forty years, saw his opposition in the coming election narrowed to one candidate yesterday with the withdrawal of V. George Pirafolo. Objections to the petition of Robert Martin, now the alderman's only opponent, were taken under advisement by the board of election commissioners. Hearing of objections to the petitions of some 205 other aldermanic candidates will begin this morning and continue throughout the day.

APPLETON AUTO CRASH DAMAGE SUIT WITH JURY

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A jury tonight was ready to begin deliberations in the $15,000 damage suit brought by Louis Zurn, Marshfield, against Seaborne T. Whatley Jr., 229 Lake Shore drive, Chicago, and John P. Marsh, 5600 Woodlawn avenue, Chicago, with Albert H. Mathes of Appleton impleaded as a defendant at the request of the other two defendants.

The question of contributory negligence makes the trial one of more than usual interest. Testimony was finished yesterday and motions of attorneys occupied the court today.

The case grew out of an accident at the intersection of highways 10 and 26 at Leppla's Corners Sept. 1, 1931. Cars driven by Whatley and Mathes collided, and Mrs. Mathes, Mrs. Zurn and Alice Zurn, occupants of Mathes' car, were killed. Mathes and Sylvester Zurn were injured.

In the car with Whatley were Sheldon White and William Marsh of Chicago. Marsh was killed and White was injured. It was erroneously published in a report from Appleton last Sunday that Mr. White was killed.

Marsh's father was made a defendant because he was the owner of the car involved.

Four other suits, asking $18,000 damages, still are pending as a result of the crash.

The court today granted motions finding Marsh, Whatley and Mathes all guilty of ordinary negligence under the law. The court denied a motion to find Whatley guilty of gross negligence.

The matters which the jury must decide are: First, the amount of damages and how much should be paid by each of the defendants; and second, it must determine if William Marsh was acting as the agent of his father when he took the car. The court decided that Marsh and Whatley were co-drivers of the machine.

County Seeks $76,000 of Suicide Official's Estate

Kane county's legal staff yesterday started suit to recover $76,000 from a trust fund created by Fred Butke of Aurora, former county auditor, a few hours before he killed himself in a hotel in Chicago on May 4, 1931. A $76,000 shortage in his accounts was disclosed and the county contends that the trust fund was built out of county funds. The suit was filed in the Circuit court at Geneva. Mrs. Marjorie Butke, the widow, is the beneficiary of the trust. Butke's parents, also named in the trust agreement, have waived their rights to the fund.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MR. ROOSEVELT AND THE DEBTS.

Mr. Roosevelt should hardly need the warning from Senator Lewis, Democrat of Illinois, and Senator Reed, Republican of Pennsylvania, that it will be dangerous for him to play a lone hand with the British debtor. Mr. Roosevelt has the reputation for knowing where the soft ice is in dealing with a legislative body, and in fact he has publicly said that he finds it possible to get along. He thinks he knows where Mr. Hoover has made some diplomatic mistakes in dealing with Capitol hill and consequently he may be supposed to be on his guard.

As a Democrat he also should have rather vividly in mind the experience of his Democratic predecessor in office, Woodrow Wilson, who disregarded plain warning signals and committed himself to agreements which the senate would not accept. Mr. Wilson's conduct and the subsequent action of the United States senate left a great deal of misunderstanding in Europe, much of it purposeful and intentional. Upon this misunderstanding, real or contrived, much bitter criticism of the United States was based. European statesmen, if they were worthy to be called statesmen, knew better, but they did not try to explain the situation or check the abuse. Some of the consequences appear in international relations now.

Mr. Roosevelt knows that when congress approved the Hoover moratorium it added to the ratification a paragraph declaring that this was the last concession congress would make. The declaration came out of a feeling of irritation at Mr. Hoover. Many congressmen felt that he had taken an advantage of them and had stampeded them when congress was not in session by his long distance telephoning, and that they had committed themselves individually to a course of action they did not like when they were again assembled to make good their personal pledges.

The declaration may have been unnecessary and it may even have been unwise, but there it is and congress will have to nullify it if it is to accept any modification of the debt settlement. Mr. Roosevelt knows that it is much better for him to have a full understanding of what may be expected from congress before he comes to any new agreements with the debtor than to make these discoveries afterwards. It will do no possible good to produce another situation in which the President is found facing one way and congress another. This is so self-evident that it may be presumed that Mr. Roosevelt does not intend to do any such thing.

THE VAMPIRE, LATE THE EMPIRE, STATE.

Gov. Lehman's emergency finance proposals for New York state include a supplementary income tax of 1 per cent on gross income, a sales tax, and a 1 cent per gallon increase in the gasoline tax. It is proposed that income tax exemptions be lowered and that the new 1 per cent supplementary tax on gross income shall be levied on every single person whose income is $1,000 or more and on every married person whose income is $2,500 or more. The sales tax would be three-quarters of 1 per cent on all retail sales of tangible personal property, exclusive of food products and, of course, of motor fuel, which is separately taxed. The increased gasoline tax will bring the levy to 4 cents a gallon.

All this is by way of raising additional revenue. On the other side of the ledger, the reduction of government costs, the governor proposes salary reductions to amount in the cases of higher paid people to nearly 40 per cent. There is another interesting item in the program, and that proposes that whenever the state authorizes an investigation of a private enterprise a part of the cost of the inquiry shall be assessed against the company. The beauties of that scheme when in full bloom will need no painting.

Now, New York is not wholly surrounded by water. Escape is possible by land. There is New England nearby and a short jump will land the pursued citizen in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, or any one of a number of states which may hang out the welcome sign for enterprising New Yorkers fleeing from the tax collector. New York has achieved its greatness not only as a port of entry, not only as a center of banking and speculation, but as a factory state. Gov. Lehman proposes to meet the problem of diminishing returns face to face with a tax policy which will make them diminish more rapidly. New Yorkers may toss a coin, if they have one, to determine whether it is to be a jump out of the window or one to Florida. They may decide to stick out their natural term of life by being bums, to be comfortable beach combers by some tropical sea. We may even find some of them in the Chicago relief shelters.

It's been a great state and greatness will always be a part of its history, even if its finance and manufacturing districts should become valuable only as cow pastures.

HITLER'S APPEAL.

What combination the kaleidoscope of post-war German politics will bring at any turn no one, not even apparently the wisest German, can foretell. But certainly none has been more amazing to the American eye than the latest. It was only a few weeks ago, after the fall election, that we were told that Hitler had reached and passed the zenith of his popularity and that German Fascism, having lost votes, would henceforth decline. This prediction may still be verified, but at the moment Hitler and his party have compelled the dissolution of the reichstag and forced a new election, in which they enter with the prestige of at least tactical victories over two governments.

This phenomenon of Hitler's strength is not easy for Americans to understand. A man of obscure origin, not even a German, distrusted by the solider sort of Germans as a rather reckless adventurer, Hitler after repeated defeats and rebuffs is now chancellor of the German republic. The drift of power, contrary to recent predictions, has carried him forward, not back.

Aside from its practical development, which may be serious for Germany and consequently the rest of the world, Hitler's strength is significant as an expression of the moral revolt of German youth against what it believes is the subjection and humiliation of Germany, a revolt of pride and a passionate will to recover past freedom and honor. Hitler's description of the present material miseries of the German people seems to us exaggerated, but it is a rhetorical expression of moral revolt. In fact, the financial and economic conditions of Germany have been greatly improved of late, but in the sublimation of Germany's misfortunes national pride and a just aspiration for the restoration of Germany's greatness as a world power are still unsatisfied.

With this emotion there must be a good deal of sympathy in disinterested minds. American opinion shares the Fascist hostility to communism and must sympathize with any sane determination of the German people to overcome its menace, morally unify and invigorate the German spirit, and restore and fortify the elements of German character and body politic.

Whether Hitlerism can be trusted to accomplish this revival is doubted in this country and elsewhere. Neither Hitler's personality nor his utterances, so far as they are concrete, encourages much hope in the American mind that the Fascist movement will produce lasting good for Germany or avoid the costly errors of domestic tyranny and international friction or collision. When Hitler declares that "the new government will protect the foundations which made the strength of the nation," Christianity as the basis of morals and the family as the core of the nation, we realize that these admirable objects may be perverted and defeated by such vagaries as anti-Semitism and reaction to belligerent nationalism.

Our hope for the much desired restoration of the German people to their proper place in the family of civilized nations is based not upon the feverish ardor and violence shown by the Nazis but upon the German genius for order, law, industry and science. There is no people in the world that seems to us, from this viewpoint, better fitted or perhaps so well fitted to establish and maintain a modern state—that is, as we conceive it, a social and political organization resting upon the foundations of the individual intelligence of free men. In this faith we are not shaken by the indecision and fluctuation which have disordered Germany since the war, for they are natural effects of the harrowing conditions which she has suffered. The wonder is that Germany has mastered thus far those conditions and has moved toward firmer ground. This is more significant of her future than anything on the stormy surface of her affairs. The German people no doubt have many crises to overcome, but, whatever our doubts that German Fascism offers promise of the establishment of such a state as the German genius should create, we do not doubt that it will come.

Editorial of the Day

WHAT OF THE MRS. SMITHS!

[Rockford Register-Republic.]

A 17 year old youth who shot a policeman to death when the officer apprehended him in the commission of an illegal act was acquitted by a Chicago jury on a charge of murder. The defendant admitted he had stolen the gun. The state presented evidence that the youth intended to use the weapon if he was detected in the process of his subsequent wrongdoing. The killing merely compounded at least two other proven offenses. Yet every effort was made to create in the courtroom an atmosphere of sympathy which would present the killer in the light of what Clarence Darrow pleases to call "a victim of circumstances" and "irresponsible" for his action. The jury sang a few songs and then returned a verdict of "Not Guilty!" This despite the fact that previously he had pleaded guilty and had been sentenced to 18 years.

What those 12 jurors did, or what happened to the young murderer, is not, in this discussion, important. The significant fact is contained in this paragraph from the news story of what took place after the jury's report had been read:

"Sitting alone in the rear of the courtroom as the rest of the crowd, which had cheered the verdict, moved up to the rail, was Mrs. Helen Smith, widow of the slain policeman. An inquirer requested her to comment. 'What can I say?' she asked slowly. 'I only know my husband is dead.'"

The Mrs. Smiths always sit alone in our courtrooms, unheeded and forgotten by thoughtless crowds which cheer the acquittal of those who shoot down their husbands, as Officer Edward Smith was shot down, in the performance of duty.

It is a pitiful commentary upon our sense of justice when the killers receive the plaudits of the mob, while the innocent, suffering victims of the tragedies which they create sit forgotten in the rear of the courtroom. When sympathy is extended, the Mrs. Smiths are the ones deserving of it, not those who kill.

Always it is easy to stir a sentimental, unthinking sympathy for those whose own criminal acts place them in jeopardy of their lives, particularly if the rather spurious plea of youth can be offered as a possible mitigating circumstance for their crimes. This maudlin attitude is one of the chief influences in driving down the average age of our most wanton, depraved criminals. Youths 15, 16, and even 17 now commit any crime, confident that public opinion will rise to their defense and permit them to "get away with it."

Why not accord sympathy and help to the real sufferers of these tragedies? Why not devote our consideration and our material assistance to alleviating the distress of the widows of the men who were shot down? It's time we brought the Mrs. Smiths up into the front row, where courtroom fans would be ashamed to cheer those who widowed them in the commission of lawless acts. The sobering effect of their presence might have a beneficial effect upon a jury which sings its way through a murder trial.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

ENGLAND wants to compromise her war debts to us at 10 cents on the dollar. A bright idea when and if you go to London. Charge everything you buy at the shops and when they send the bill say you will pay only six pence for every four shillings you owe 'em. Can't you hear 'em saying: "Put the blinkin' bounder in the Tower! Call out the Horse Guards! Mobilize the Mediterranean fleet! Write a letter to the Times about it! My word! How horrible!"

EXPERT BRIDGE PLAYERS are being called in a California divorce trial to answer this question: "Just how much is a confirmed whist player overwrought when his wife leads a heart on his spade bid?" We don't see why they need experts in such a case. The testimony ought to show whether the confirmed bridge player was overwrought to the extent of kicking over the table and chasing his wife all the way home or whether he was carried away by his emotions to the extent of pulling a gun and filling the air and the furniture, to say nothing of the wife, with small lead pellets. Ah, how different is chess. An overwrought chess player when his wife grabs one of his castles with a pawn merely sighs deeply and says: "Oh, dear, I just hate those miserable pawns."

FOUR W. K. EASTERN MEN, calling themselves "The Four Minstrels," have started on an auto tour around the country with the avowed purpose of making America laugh itself out of the depression. They're going to play banjos, sing, tell funny stories, and do ventriloquist acts. The spectacle of four grown-up men with an idea that the present state of things is no deeper than that would make—well, we read about the four minstrels to our little dog and he rolled around the floor and laughed and laughed and laughed.

JACK MURPHY AND QUEEN GUINIVERE.

He calls her "Queenie." She's a terrier
Of high degree and not a common cur.
Of course, her temporary occupation
Is not in keeping with her rightful station;
Neither is his, her master's, for the nonce,
For both were featured on Keith's circuit once—
"Jack Murphy and his Dog, Queen Guinivere, Canine Ingénue, quite without a Peer."
Later they had a traveling tent-show act
(The movies were to blame; though, as a fact,
That Rin Tin Tin stuff was the bunk; no art,
No true finesse—a roughneck, mongrel part) . . .
Queen Guinivere replaced her. Dogs are true
And faithful pals, no matter what you do.

But when the times improve they're coming back.
Each day they still rehearse, and what a thrill
They'll give again to high class vawdeville!
Meanwhile, and for the nonce, they have to eat;
So, all day long, they slowly walk the street,
He in the lead, with silent, solemn tread,
Both nonchalant and looking straight ahead;
And Queenie wears a banner which avers
And, added to the incongruity,
Between her teeth she holds a pipe; and he
Has one just like it; really they don't smoke—
(Jack used to smoke, but now his pipe is out Till more improved conditions come about.)

Along the street they stroll with stoic poise,
Jack and Queen Guinivere. Sometimes rude boys
Make cracks at them; sometimes ill-mannered curs
Try to break down that proud reserve of hers
And make advances; but to no avail.
Not by a lifted brow or wag of tail
Does Queenie deign to notice them; which means
That queens may walk the street and still be queens.
All day they stroll past crowded stores and shops
In Indian file; when Jack stops, Queenie stops.
She knows, he says, when traffic lights are red
She knows a lot,—you'd be surprised, says Jack—
But not about the banner on her back.
Not for the world to her would Jack dare name
Its vulgar message; she would die of shame.
A scarlet blanket, marked "Queen Guinivere.")

When evening comes they casually land
At Hollister's warmed-over wienie stand,
Where, keen of appetite, the two consume
Paid for with castoff trappings, now and then,
Stage costumes, make-up stuff—in times like these
One has no use for foolish luxuries.
But when the stage comes to its own again
(For Art is Art, and movies are a pain),
It's cloth of gold for her; a tuxedo
And white shirt front, with diamonds aglow,
For him; for they'll be coming back—
Queen Guinivere, the wonder dog, and Jack!

EOLUS.

MR. ROOSEVELT is going to bring prosperity on a jump from around the corner by putting 200,000 men to work at Muscle Shoals. May we not suggest that Muscle Shoals is a sort of limited area considering the number of unemployed and would it not be much better to put men at work with brooms sweeping back the water all up and down the Atlantic coast? There is so much more Atlantic ocean than there is Muscle Shoals.

RHEUMATIC HEART DISEASE.

A CORRESPONDENT wants to know something about rheumatic carditis. How does it differ from old fashioned heart disease? Does it change the pulse rate? Can a person with rheumatic carditis get insurance?

In rheumatic fever the disease appears to be limited to one joint, but that is far from being the case. One joint is usually more swollen and more painful than the others, but if all the joints are examined the likelihood is that moderate swelling in one or more is present, though overshadowed by that in the main joint of battle.

Acute rheumatism is noted for its tendency to jump from one joint to another. This merely means that several joints are inflamed and every little while one joint will take the spotlight away from the one that has been hogging it.

The truth is that acute rheumatic fever is a constitutional disease with an outstanding manifestation in a joint. It is well known that the heart suffers as a part of the process. Rheumatic carditis is a part of rheumatism just as the joint lesions are. Certain small spots in the heart, known as Aschoff bodies, show plainly that rheumatism works there as well as in the joints. Perhaps every person who has rheumatic fever has a rheumatic heart.

Following rheumatism in a joint, some stiffness, some soreness, swelling, and cracking may be present permanently. Following rheumatic carditis there may be left some organic heart disease as a permanent landmark. These you have in mind when you speak of old fashioned heart disease. Such old fashioned heart disease usually results in heart murmurs, and we speak of these in terms of the valve that is injured and the kind of a murmur. Mitral regurgitation is an illustration. Any heart murmur increases the work that the heart must do. So long as the heart muscle is equal to the extra task there are no symptoms. This is called compensation. When the muscle is not equal to the task symptoms develop. We say that compensation has been broken. Change in the pulse rate and in its rhythm are among the symptoms of broken compensation. However, there are many other causes of change in pulse rate and rhythm.

It is impossible to give an answer to the question of insurability that will apply to all cases. The insurance companies expect their examiners to protect them against bad risks. The insurance doctor is expected to pass those risks that will live long enough to pay a certain number of premiums before his family collects on the policy. He would be expected to reject those who would be a source of loss if insured by his company. If an insurance physician learns that an applicant has had rheumatic fever he will examine the heart very carefully to see if any of the scars of rheumatic carditis have been left behind. If he finds any he then forms the best opinion he can as to how long the crippled heart will hold out. If he concludes that it is good for a certain number of years, during which premiums will be paid, he recommends the risk. Otherwise not. Therefore, each case is judged by itself.

SHOULD DO NOTHING.

M. G. S. writes: My baby boy, 8 months old, is a bottle baby. He is very thin in the arms and legs. He has a very sturdy body and more than doubled his weight in six months. He seems quite well and happy and is very active.

I am wondering what to do to increase the size of his arms and legs. Would rubbing them with cocoa butter or olive oil help?

His diet is correct and includes cod liver oil. My friends remark about his legs being so thin, but they are strong and straight. However, it does seem like his body is too big for them.

REPLY.

I think you should do nothing. The boy is growing and developing and is happy and content. Rubbing his legs with cocoa butter will be a waste of otherwise good material. I suppose he is permitted to kick, turn, and crawl. When he gets old enough to walk his legs will develop.

Does he inherit small legs from either parent? If so, walking will not change his pattern.

TREATMENT OF COLD SORE.

W. C. E. writes: To cure a cold sore or a canker sore touch with a bit of cotton soaked in undiluted tincture of myrrh. Many ulcers will be healed by one application.

CANARY HAY FEVER.

E. J. A. writes: Is having a canary in one's room harmful if the person occupying it has hay fever? Does one get hay fever from sleeping in the same room with a canary?

REPLY.

There is canary asthma. Some people are sensitized to feathers. Some of these get asthma when exposed to canaries.

POLICE EXAMINATIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—[Friend of the People.]—Please tell me if there is to be another examination for the police and if so when and what are the age limits. My husband would like to know in order that he may take the examination when called. S. G.

I wish to inform you that another examination for patrolman will not be held for some time. We have, however, placed the name of your correspondent on our mailing list for notification of same when called. At this time the rules of the commission provide that at the time of examination applicants for patrolman must be between the ages of 21 and 28 years (must not have reached the 28th birthday). The minimum height is 5 feet 9 inches, and the minimum weight 145 pounds.

NOT ALWAYS NECESSARY.

Chicago, Jan. 30.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Does a will have to be probated under the Illinois law? 2. If so, how soon after death? 3. If not, can you give me any reasons for the will not being probated? 4. Does the closing of a bank which was made trustee make the will void? E. K.

1, 2, and 3. Probate can be dispensed with if all parties, including possible future purchasers of real estate, are satisfied.

4. No. The court could appoint another trustee if the will does not provide for the contingency.

CONSERVATOR OF ESTATE.

Seneca, Ill., Jan. 27.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A bank was appointed conservator of my brother's estate. 1. They collected $559.91 and then the bank went into receivership. 2. The receiver collected $912 and in his accounting he listed expenses as follows: 3. Court clerk, $12.50; solicitor for the estate, $20. Total, $32.50. When a new conservator was appointed the bank receiver turned over to him $707, leaving $205 to be divided between the bank, the solicitor for the estate, and the solicitor for the bank receiver. It is divided as follows: To the bank, $75; solicitor for the estate, $75; balance [$87.50] to the solicitor for the bank. 4. Is $237.50 a fair deduction? 5. Does the estate have to pay the bank's solicitors? 6. The bank receiver deducted the bank's fees, although the bank still holds the amount they collected. Was he entitled to do this? 7. Can I get a copy of the expenses from the court records? P. J. O.

1. You do not state whether court proceedings were necessary for the collection or give us other facts bearing upon what would be a proper fee.

2. Same.

3. It is not clear whether these are probate costs or costs of other litigation, nor whether the two collection items cover the same funds or separate funds.

4. We are not in a position to say.

5. Depends on the services that they performed.

6. The facts are not clear enough for us to advise you.

7. The best way to find out is to try.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 4, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—Orders were flashed today to every ship in the United States navy to prepare for action.

WASHINGTON.—Mobilization orders for the regular army and National Guard are ready and await only word from President Wilson to go into effect. Secretary of War Baker says they would bring an equipped force of 212,000 men into service virtually over night. This information was disclosed following a conference between the President and the secretary at the White House.

WASHINGTON.—With news received of the sinking of the first American ship in the new war zones proclaimed by Germany, war with the Teutonic empires looms menacingly on the American horizon. President Wilson had scarcely ended his address to the congress dismissing Ambassador von Bernstorff of Germany and recalling Ambassador Gerard from Berlin when word was received of the destruction of the Housatonic, American owned and with a crew largely composed of Americans. The severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany is likely to be followed immediately by a similar rupture with Austria-Hungary. Appearing before congress in the most impressive joint assembly of the houses in the history of the nation, President Wilson announced the rupture with Germany, the first break in friendly relations with a power of major rank in more than a century. Declaration of war on Germany by congress is not contemplated at this time or even if the President should propose the use of armed force to protect Americans. Count von Bernstorff says that Germany will not declare war. A state of war, however, may develop without specific declarations. Two interned German cruisers and eleven merchantmen were seized by American authorities. Secretary Daniels asked congress for the right to commandeer all war plants in the United States if the need arises. A resolution in the senate asks a $500,000,000 bond issue to meet extraordinary expenses in the event of war.

NEW YORK.—The first vessel to leave New York harbor after announcement of this government's termination of relations with Germany was the White Star liner Adriatic, flying the union jack and carrying a capacity load of munitions. The dispatches from Washington came only a few minutes before the ship left its pier, and enthusiasm was high, the British sailors cheering lustily, the steamer's whistle screaming answer to the saluting flags and whistles as it moved slowly down the river and into the outer harbor.

WASHINGTON.—German Ambassador von Bernstorff was handed his passports at 1:57 o'clock yesterday afternoon and American Ambassador Gerard was immediately recalled from Berlin. Previous to this official notification of a diplomatic break between the United States and Germany, Von Bernstorff had turned over Germany's interests in the United States to Dr. Ritter, the minister from Switzerland. Spain will care for American interests in Germany.

WAR SUMMARY.—Petrograd reports the repulse of fresh German attacks in the region of Riga. London reports successes against the Turks along the Tigris river in Mesopotamia. Thirty were killed and 344 injured in a ship explosion at Archangel. One hundred casualties are reported in a blast at Yokohama, Japan. Artillery actions of minor intensity are reported on the various battle fronts.

CHICAGO.—Chicago gave an immediate response in patriotic spirit to the news that President Wilson had given the German ambassador his passports. From the time the Board of Trade unfurled a massive flag covering a large part of its building until dusk, flag after flag was raised. On public buildings, on office skyscrapers, on clubhouses, and on residences flags were hurriedly hoisted as an indication of support for President Wilson in whatever action he considers necessary. Street level comment on the strained condition of affairs in Washington assumed varied forms. Men in every walk of life, brokers, street car conductors, merchants, laborers, bankers, clerks, teamsters, tailors, the average citizens as they came, were approached by reporters for THE TRIBUNE and asked for opinions. Hope was generally expressed that war may be avoided. But this in most cases was followed with the declaration that every one is with the President if the final break comes.

A SOUTH AMERICAN VIEW OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—After reading your two timely editorials entitled "The Senate and European Invasion" and "Europe Reënters America," which appeared in recent issues of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, it is my duty to express to you my appreciation and congratulations for your policy on Pan-American relations and for your constructive criticism of recent actions that have meant a departure from the traditional principles of the Monroe Doctrine.

To my way of thinking the Monroe Doctrine has always been a great help to protect and to build bridges of international understanding between this country and the other American nations. Although Europe still insists on calling it a "mere continental agreement," there is every hope that in the future it will become part of international law. So jealous has been the United States in the protection and application of this doctrine since its promulgation in 1823, that, during the administration of President Chester A. Arthur in 1883, the American minister at Lima, Mr. James Kilpatrick, after he had called a conference with the diplomats from Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy to end the war between Peru and Chile, was immediately recalled to Washington by the then secretary of state, Mr. F. T. Frelinghuysen. It is a fact to be found in American diplomatic history that after his recall from Lima Mr. Kilpatrick, the American minister, left for Alicante, Spain, where he committed suicide.

More editorials from THE TRIBUNE upholding the policies declared by Washington, Adams, Jefferson, and Monroe will always be welcomed by the sensible North and South Americans, here and abroad. DR. JORGE M. CHAVARRI P.,
Consul for the Republic of Peru.

HE PREFERS RUSSIAN TRAVEL.

Mount Morris, Ill., Jan. 28.—Interested in your girlies in Russia. The greatest hardship they endured seems to be when they ran out of cigarets. Their journey over mud roads reminds me of trips I used to take out into Iowa about twelve years ago. And Indian Joe Huzzar seems to surpass anything in the line of banditti they encountered in Russia. When they get back send them down to Hardin county, Kentucky, and Christian (paradoxically named) county, Illinois. Bet they will have some real adventures to relate them. A. HALDEMAN.

ROMANTIC LOVE.

Chicago, Jan. 27. — I would be very much obliged if you would find out if our very esteemed mayor, his honor Anton J. Cermak, has any marriageable daughters left. I would like to know because he takes very good care of all his sons-in-law and I thought that maybe a poor fellow who is just trying to get along on his merits and ability might have a better chance of achieving greatness and a fortune by obtaining the right connections. AMBITIOUS.

WHY NOT USE PEAT!

Chicago, Jan. 27.—I am a visitor to the state of Illinois and note in my tourist's guide of your state that Illinois is second among the states in the production of peat. While going through the grounds for the coming fair I noted hundreds of bales of peat marked Germany. If your state is so rich in peat it would seem to me that your own idle should have supplied your needs. G. V. WILLENBACH.

BARBERED STATESMANSHIP.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—Having elected and propelled our senators into office, we can scarcely shirk the responsibility of seeing them well cared for. The $8,000 barber bill has the earmarks of having been a downright necessity. A well meant "yea" or "nay" should never be deflected by a hairy protuberance. Many an embryonic law could not have won its way to the statute books had it been forced to emerge through a tangled growth of whiskers or dodge past a pair of fierce mustachios.

One question bothers us. Are the senators really getting the worth of our money. With the size of the bill and the vast amount of tonsorial effort it should procure we had hoped for some means of enabling such senatorial beards as are extant to retain their pink. However, old Neb's composite image was only a dream, and some things may be impossible, even in a senate.

The mouth wash has our hearty approval, though two bottles appear inadequate for so large a body. Let's start the next senate in with four. Is it used before making a speech or after?

The supply of water seems to have been plentiful, but the lack of soap and other toilet articles fills us with a new dread. Must we face another deficit in order that a crying need be supplied? In this instance we must insist on the bare facts. Have our senators had no baths?

"SKUTCH."

THE COMMERCIAL HIGHWAY USER.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—I read with considerable interest your editorial entitled "Railroad vs. Automobile," which appeared in last Saturday's TRIBUNE, several copies of which have been mailed to me by members of our conference, each one of them commenting favorably and some of them almost unbelievingly.

I wish to say frankly that we had gotten the idea that it was, to say the least, a very difficult matter to get the highway user's story told in the public press. All that we ask is that a fair and impartial investigation be made and that the result of such an investigation be told.

We can, I believe, prove quite conclusively that the commercial highway user is paying adequately for the use he makes of the highways, and we are sincerely glad to see this evidence of fair-mindedness in your editorial columns.

CHESTER G. MOORE.

SUNDAYS AT THE FAIR.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—As I well remember the bitter, acrimonious dispute at the time of the last World's Fair as to whether or not it should be open on Sundays, I suggest that vital question be decided now. In 1893 a compromise was reached, resulting in its being open some Sundays and closed on others. A large, influential group in 1893 regarded it as sinful to view that fair on the Sabbath. Will one's morals be plabed in jeopardy if the fair this year is open Sundays?

C. S. P.

ALLEGED REDS.

New York, Jan. 24.—Many of us would welcome a frank TRIBUNE editorial on the recent naïve effort of the Illinois department of the American Legion to combat communism by discrediting a number of Chicago's most intelligent, able, and genuinely patriotic citizens. Most of us would esteem it a precious honor to be classified in the same category with these denounced citizens, even as "public enemies." A. P. HAAKH.

JURORS TRYING GUY AS CAPTAIN'S SLAYER VISIT SHIP

Widow Calls Defendant Leader of Mutiny.

Long Beach, Cal., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—A sober faced jury boarded the rakish Carma, 125 foot sea yacht, today. Behind them, manacled to a husky deputy sheriff, followed William [Curly] Guy, 23 year old Welshman. It was on the Carma that her master Capt. Walter Wanderwell, soldier of fortune and adventurer, was mysteriously slain Dec. 5—shot once in the back.

For this murder the smiling Welshman is on trial for his life. The twelve jurors, three of them women, who poked and peeked about the strange craft, were seeking visual evidence to help them to determine whether or not Guy killed Wanderwell.

During the day the same jurors listened gravely while Wanderwell's widow, Mrs. Aloha Wanderwell, as exotic and strange as her mysterious husband, stepped upon the witness stand. She told slowly, unemotionally of her acquaintance with Guy during a cruise in 1930. Her story suggested that he was the ringleader of a modern mutiny, and for proof she told of a document written in Spanish. This paper is missing.

The document purported to state that the men and women of Capt. Wanderwell's crew had "agreed to quit working for him." It was some time in 1931 that the document was presented, the widow said. The Carma was making a promotional cruise around South America at the time.

Guy and Wife Put Ashore.

"Somewhere between Peru and Panama," testified Mrs. Wanderwell, "Guy handed this paper to my husband. Not long afterward, at Panama, Guy and his wife were put ashore."

Questioned by prosecutors, the widow recited further details. First she rearranged several recalcitrant blonde ringlets which were falling in disarray over the collar of her uniform habit. She also straightened her blue tam and brushed neatly a khaki vest. Resuming her story, she said she saw Guy again in July, 1932, at the Los Angeles apartment of her husband and herself.

"My husband told me later that Guy had demanded money and had attacked him," she testified. "I remember that after my husband left the room I offered Guy some money and he accepted $5."

Seeks Refund of Fare.

Incidentally, Guy's version of his apartment visit—as given to police at the time of his arrest—was that he and Mrs. Guy had paid Wanderwell a stated sum for their voyage expenses. Being debarked prematurely, he merely sought a refund of those expenses, he explained.

It was before Mrs. Wanderwell's story was related that Judge Robert Kenny of the Superior court, who is presiding at Guy's trial, entertained a motion of the prosecution to visit the murder ship. A guard of armed deputies and others joined in the trip. The nine miles from here to Fish harbor, where the Carma is in dock, was made silently. The procession moved through the Japanese village on Terminal island and finally reached the old craft.

Guy looked around curiously, but showed no special emotion. It was suggested that the defendant be lowered over the side and look through a porthole, but Judge Kenny overruled this. Some witnesses have said that on the night Wanderwell was slain a man was seen gazing through a porthole. They did not recognize the man.

Noted British Author Praises Willa Cather

Victoria Sackville-West to Lecture Here.

BY KATHLEEN McLAUGHLIN.

WEARY and worn with her long trip from Toronto, one of the foremost figures of contemporary literature was not too tired last night to toss verbal bouquets to the outstanding American authoress, Willa Cather. The Hon. Victoria Sackville-West, whose talk this morning to the Town Hall audience at the Drake hotel will not touch on literary topics, obligingly blinked away her sleepiness, after a modicum of rest and almost a maximum day of travel, to "talk shop" for a bit.

"I'm sorry to say that I cannot claim to be familiar with modern American authors," she confessed. "But since I arrived in this country a month ago I have been reading a great deal—much of Willa Cather, with tremendous admiration for her. I hear that she is one of the best of your writers. She pleases me very much."

For all her Spanish brown eyes and olive complexion, the author of the acclaimed "The Edwardians," "All Passion Spent," "Family History," and numerous earlier works, looked typically English as she strode through the Michigan Central station on arrival. She had a wide brimmed, mannish brown sailor hat topping her wavy dark bob. She wore a brown cloth coat, fur trimmed, over her beige woolen coat dress, tan ghillies, and carried a brown purse.

Her preference, she stated emphatically in her suite at the Drake hotel, is for biography rather than novels. She admitted that her attitude in the matter may be influenced by the fact that she was a radio reviewer of novels for four years.

"But yet I think when you've finished with novels you don't seem to have much to hold on to," she added, "whereas biography is something to remember. I can't think when I haven't tried to write. Even when I was a mere child I used to write long historical novels. Yes, I did a great deal of research on them, and they were all historically accurate, even though they never were published. Most of them concerned my family."

Since her ancestors have been prominent in English history for centuries—back beyond Tudor times—it is not surprising that this democratic aristocrat did not run out of material for such tales. Yet her ruddy cheeks, testifying to plenty of outdoor life, bear witness that her life has not lacked variety.

On this, her first trip to this country, she was concerned about a report printed in a Chicago newspaper that she and her husband, Harold Nicolson, had made disparaging remarks about America. The remarks attributed to them, she declared, were completely inaccurate, adding that the incident was especially disconcerting since they had criticized another British literary light who had indulged in such comments on his return to England from this country.

Mrs. Nicolson, or Miss Sackville-West, as she is known impartially, is more interested, she explained, in the creative, experimental type of writer than in one who merely follows the accepted forms of books, as did the late John Galsworthy. While she offered no comment on the works of this writer, Miss Sackville-West added that she had met Galsworthy in person on a few occasions in connection with the P. E. N. club, of which he was international president.

The Nicolsons, who will remain in this country until April, will give a joint lecture Monday night at the Emil Hirsch center on "What I Think of Marriage." Mr. Nicolson will arrive tomorrow morning from Kentucky.

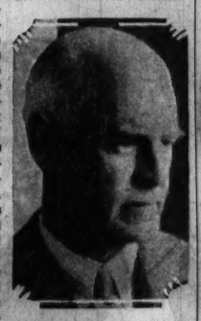
CARSON PIRIE SCOTT & CO

Critic Presents Intimate View of Galsworthy

Rarest of Human Beings—A Real Gentleman.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

THE death of John Galsworthy last Tuesday took from the world a man almost unique in the world of letters, one whose pen was supreme in both social chronicling and social pleading, who wrote masterpieces in either the fictional or the dramatic form. Of the triumvirate of the "brilliant young writers of the day," as he and Arnold Bennett and H. G. Wells were called well past their youthful days, he alone of the three was as sure a master of the drama as he was of the novel. He alone of the three could plead for the amelioration of "man's inhumanity to man" in a work of art as great as were his interpretive literary photographs of the typical English of his generation.



JOHN GALSWORTHY.

His preaching was as essential an art as his chronicling. His great plays of social cruelty, "Justice," "The Silver Box," "Strife" (and others), were as subtly interpretive, as brilliantly actual as were his great realistic records, typified in the classic "Forsyte Saga."

There was something almost as unique about John Galsworthy as a person, something right in the most comprehensive sense of that word as there was something comprehensively right about his work in whatever literary field he chose. He was that rarest of human beings, a really gentle man, whose gentleness somehow gave one the sense of the strength of impregnable Gibraltar. He spoke softly, his manner was mild, but those soft spoken words were intellectually like gentle taps on a resonant bell. They boomed through one's consciousness.

In his person John Galsworthy had all of the best quality of the well-born intellectual Englishman who combines charm and brilliance with an oddly exciting dignity. And he was kindness itself, as I well know through years from the first time that I ever saw him on a lecture trip to Chicago to the last time I ever saw him in The Hague at the International congress of the P. E. N. clubs of which he was president. The incidents of both these meetings are very unimportant, but they showed in a very real way his thoughtfulness.

That first time I interviewed him, the first really international literary figure that I had ever encountered, I was very young, very inexperienced, very shy. He was so kind about the piece which I had written and which he asked me to show him, that, as he was hurrying out to dine somewhere, he went over it word by word, putting in commas and changing too hurriedly typed letters into their proper sequence as he really edited it and subtly explained why I shouldn't have said what in exactly the fashion I had said it, and all the time assuring the terrified young person that it was one of the nicest and most accurate reportings of him that he had met in America.

And that last time, with one friendly gesture he resolved a whole rather comic, but trying situation. We had arrived, Arthur Meeker Jr. and I—at the P. E. N. congress without our credentials which were being brought by the New York delegate and whose boat was, by the mischances of the sea, late. Because I didn't look like what the local secretary thought a literary editor should look like, she refused to believe me when I told her I was literary editor of the largest newspaper in America and with Dutch vehemence, ordered us from the congress as impostors.

With tactful kindness, not only to make my position clear to every one else but delicately to calm an amused but nevertheless somewhat chagrined person whom he had seen grow from that shy child to a scarcely less shy woman, he insisted that we dine with him and Mrs. Galsworthy, impressively alone in a room filled with delegates. Another less sensitive person might have managed both occasions with the same public results, but he would not have lived, as John Galsworthy will always live to me, as one of the especially subtle practitioners of the Golden Rule.

Not only for the public loss of one of the great writers of England is my heart sad, but for the loss of a rare character.

This is the romance of the building of the Erie Canal, the big "ditch" that made New York supreme among American cities, in a decade of color, humor and legend almost without parallel. It is told in the story of Jerry Fowler, of Mary, his wife, whom he bought from a ship captain, and of the woods colt, Nora.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented weekly by Miss Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 today for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

Saturday—and kitchen troubles again the order of the day. The first tr[illegible] is somewhat unusual, but most distressing for the cook who discovers it.

The letter comes from Mrs. H. L., who writes: "Can you tell me what will prevent my bread from spoiling? For several years I have used the same ingredients and method. People have always exclaimed over my delicious bread. Lately, by the fourth, usually the third day, it begins to separate through the center lengthwise. Part of it turns pale pink, becomes sticky, and has a sickish, sweet odor."

Mrs. H., I'm sorry to tell you that you have what is known in bakeries as "rope." This condition is found inside of bread. It is produced by a type of bacteria which multiplies fast when in a suitable medium, and unless checked or destroyed will ruin your bread.

It is hard to tell just how the rope bacteria get started, but once lodged in a kitchen or bakery they are very hard to check. They are, of course, invisible to the naked eye, and can lodge in cracks in a table or bread board, in creases of a rolling pin or in folded corners of a bread pan. They can find their way into places where flour is kept, and so get into the bread. The symptoms are much as you have given—a sticky center to the loaf, a sweet, unnatural odor, and a pink or brownish color.

There are two things to do. First, thoroughly clean your whole workshop, scraping the bread board and cleaning scrupulously every crack and crevice. Also clean all equipment, pans, and flour bin. Besides mechanical cleaning, go over them with a hypochlorite solution such as is sold under various names on the market. Then rinse everything carefully with clean water. It may even be necessary to discard the flour you have on hand.

The second precaution is that of using vinegar in the dough. This does not kill the bacteria, but it gives an acid condition in which the bacteria do not thrive. The amount to use of regular grocer's vinegar is one-half of 1 per cent of the weight of the flour—three-fourths cup of vinegar for 50 pounds of flour. If you are using the sponge method, add the vinegar in the sponge, not the dough stage. Vinegar has the effect of aging the flour, so a shorter rising period may be necessary.

Next from Mrs. B. H.: "Is it wrong to stir candy when it is cooking?"

No, if it is done carefully. The thing we are trying to avoid is graininess or the formation of large sugar crystals in the candy. When candy is boiling it is losing water through evaporation, and gradually the proportion of sugar in it is increasing by the decrease in water. This is all right as long as the candy is boiling, for at boiling temperature it can "hold" much more sugar without letting it turn to crystals than when it is cooling. However, the minute the candy is done and is removed from the stove it starts to cool, and agitation of any kind, even jarring, until after the candy has cooled to room temperature is likely to make the high percentage of sugar turn into crystals and give us grained candy.

The reason I said we could stir boiling candy if we did it carefully is that hasty stirring may throw drops up onto the pan, where it will cool slightly and grain. Then if it is stirred in later, after the candy has cooled, it may even at that time start general crystallization and give us grained candy.

Boil candy the first five minutes with the cover on. This will wash down the sugar adhering to the pan sides. Just before removing from the stove wipe the pan sides above the candy with a damp piece of cheese cloth.

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too.

There are weeks ahead when indoor sports will be the vogue. Have a handy man around make a large table for your basement or attic recreation room, out of wall board. Such a table may be any size you like. A 4x8 foot piece of wall board, set on a 2x4 frame will serve excellently for ping pong. The court can be satisfactorily marked off in similar fashion to a regular court. Any curtaining such as net or marquisette can form the tennis net, its edges carefully bound by tape.

Dance Tonight

Proceeds to Help Church Prepare for Fair.

The centenary of Old St. Mary's church and the diamond jubilee of the founding of the Paulist Fathers, the first religious community in America, will be celebrated this evening at a supper dance in the gold room of the Congress hotel.

St. Mary's church was organized, the year Chicago was chartered, in a log cabin at State and Lake streets. The Rev. M. I. St. Cyr, a French priest sent by the bishop of St. Louis on the signed petition of 100 Chicago Catholics, was the first pastor. The Paulist Fathers have been in charge of the church since 1903.

During the Paulist régime Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. John V. Clarke, the Edward Hineses, the John L. Fortunes, the Lester Armours, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Rend, and the Cudahy family have attended mass at the church.

Mrs. Walter J. Cummings is chairman of the committee in charge of the dance tonight. She is assisted by Mrs. David F. Bremner, Mrs. Joseph Solari, and Mrs. Thomas Condon.

Proceeds from the dance will be used in preparing the church for A Century of Progress.

Among those who have made reservations are Mr. and Mrs. William J. Corbett, Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Downs Jr., Mrs. Timothy Sullivan, the Rev. Joseph P. Morrison, Mrs. Edward A. Hines, Mrs. Joseph M. Cudahy, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Mewton, Mrs. Charles T. Byrne, Mrs. Stuyvesant Peabody, Dr. and Mrs. C. J. Larkin, Mrs. J. W. Amberg, Mrs. Thomas L. Dennehy, Mrs. Charles F. Spalding, Quin O'Brien, Miss Marie Piamondon, and Miss Mary Agnes Amberg.

Arts of Home Are Claiming New Interest

Society Girls in Classes in Household Science.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Miss Eleanor Jerrems plans to spend Monday learning how to use a needle. She is one of four young society women who believe it is quite as important to know how to sew on a button as to poach an egg.

Completing a four months' course in cookery yesterday at one of the city's schools of domestic science, Miss Jerrems, Miss Julia Kramer, and Miss Doris Bokum signed up for four months of "every day sewing." Miss Virginia Winston is to be the fourth needleworker, but she will do advanced "assignments," since she's already given several weeks to pedaling a sewing machine and putting in hems.

In fact, she now has to her credit a blue negligee, a brown rabbit's hair dress, and a wild plaid blouse. At first she had difficulty with the sewing machine, attacking it from a distance, with her legs stretched out straight. But an instructor soon came along and demonstrated the correct position.

"Mothers are becoming more practical. In fact, I think they are reverting to their own training of an earlier day," one of the teachers said yesterday. "The younger generation, accustomed to rounds of parties and golf and horseback, is showing a new and enthusiastic interest in the old arts. And with sewing it isn't because there's a solitaire in the offing. The old adage about the way to a man't heart may account for a debutante taking cooking, but not so with needlework."

Two and a half hours in the workroom isn't the extent of the girls' interest in their study, according to this instructor. Every day they go home with a piece of work and they're amazingly prompt in getting to class in the morning, she points out.

Miss Jerrems, Miss Kramer, and Miss Bokum were graduated yesterday in kitchen ethics with several more of their debutante friends. They include Miss Catharine Carton, Miss Theodora Shaw, Miss Anne Byron Smith, Miss Barbara Graf, Miss Alice May Dickinson, Miss Jane Fortune, Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Florence Carr, Miss Margaret Chapman, Miss Dorothy Dewes, Miss Jane Brooks, Miss Caryl Bloomingston, and Miss Winston.

New recruits in the cooking class Monday to take the places of some of these graduates will be Miss Rosamond Baker, Miss Carol Slade, and Miss Margaret Dawes. Miss Dawes plans to be a June bride and it won't be so far hence that Miss Baker and Miss Slade will put the cooking lessons into practice, since Miss Baker's engagement to Edgar Stanton Jr. has just been announced, and Miss Slade's to Kenneth C. McKeown was announced earlier.

The cooking instructors are speculating as to whether the new pupils will label the wooden kitchen spoons "shoe horns" and carry home as many suggestions to the household cooks as their predecessors.

These same instructors like to tell about the young woman who turned to her partner one morning in all seriousness and whispered, "Now you let me know when the water boils." She had been told to add cereal to water when it reached the boiling point. Or again the girl who thought she had to carry a stove to an adjoining room when the teacher asked her to turn down the thermostat by announcing "return it to 225."

Among all the cooking and sewing students of recent years the teachers generally agree there will probably never be another to equal Mrs. Gerrit D. Foster, the former Elizabeth Lee of Evanston. Mrs. Foster started with cooking and took blue ribbons in every course, including sewing, home management, marketing, table service, and interior decoration.

New Patterns, Clever Designs Call Shopper

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Having discovered all the silk sales, you'll also discover a lot of things about the new patterns . . . the prints, the colors, and the color combinations . . . just about everything you need to know about new spring silk frocks as well as silk accessories and trimmings. There are some interesting new red tones ranging in shade from deep wine to bright scarlet, the garnet reds being the newest. This garnet red may sound a bit old ladyish, but it really is a knockout combined with ivory and some shadowy gray prints.

All the best looking shades of blue—deep sapphire, a luscious cornflower blue, and a brilliant blue that fairly whistles with life—have arrived for the blue collectors. The deeply crinkled silk crêpe in this brilliant blue shade is perhaps the most successful crinkled stuff you can find.

Another puckered and blistered silk that will make you reach for your scissors and patterns is the new warm golden beige crêpe or silk crêpon, especially attractive for smart afternoon dresses as a contrast for cinnamon brown or deep green wool coats.

Gay greens by the bolts are winning a lot of favor . . . you will find every conceivable green you ever dreamed about, with emphasis on the almond and chartreuse tints. Some refreshing green prints have delicate leaf designs printed in gray, white, or deep green that ought to fashion some lovely cool looking creations for any warm day.

Black backgrounds splattered with very tiny printed floral patterns are crisp and springlike for immediate wear for the gal who has taken a sudden and intense dislike to solid winter colors.

The loveliest and most romantic gray prints are flecked with white . . . small white flowers, leaves, zigzag wavering diagonals, sharp dramatic white flashes of modernistic design and all the various sized dots, dashes, and squares form tiny pinhead spatters up to dollar size dots with plenty of gray space between.

And you can lose your mind over the checks this year, completely overwhelmed with all the wild display of practically every and any sized check any dizzy checker ever devised.

Small easy to look at checks of brown, black, navy, and scarlet with white look anything but the swishing soft taffetas they are. They will recall the gingham checks of your childhood pinafores. But the fashion-wise clothes hound wears this checkered stuff for every hour of the day and night.

The newest, smartest, most clinging evening gown you can wrap around your slenderness is one of the small checked silk crinkled crêpe evening creations, simply but knowingly fashioned to swirl and flare around your ankles, to rise high around the front neckline and form a deep V at the back with a wrap-around tie sash.

These artless and guileless affairs, trimmed with billowing ruffles of sheer chiffon or organdy around the necklines, are quite the most devastatingly dangerous gowns of the year . . . wear one and have the thrill of a lifetime in checks!

Paris Paper Says Mrs. Kresge Is Bride of Persian Prince

PARIS, Feb. 4.—[Saturday.]—(AP)—The Paris Herald today said friends had announced the marriage of Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge of New York and Farid Khan Sadri, a Persian prince, in a Mohammedan mosque in Paris on Monday. The paper said the couple had just left for a honeymoon in Egypt and the Far East.

Mrs. Doris Mercer Kresge was formally granted an interlocutory decree of divorce in the New York State Supreme court on Feb. 18, 1928, from S. S. Kresge, operator of 5 and 10 cent stores. The decree was based on a jury verdict and was to be made final three months after that date.

Takes Children's Dogs for Airing

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Arthur Meeker, being a fond and devoted mother, finds time to take her daughter's and son's dogs for their exercise when the aforesaid daughter and son are too busy to take "Vicki Baum" and "Susie" out for their morning stroll. "Vicki Baum" (at the left) belongs to Arthur Meeker Jr., and "Susie," the little Scottie, is the property of Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer, the former Mary Meeker. The Cramers are living this winter with the Meekers at 1100 Lake Shore drive.

Arts Club Has Tea to Open Two Exhibits

Many See Paintings After Symphony Concert.

BY JUDITH CASS.

It was hard to decide yesterday which was the more springlike and gay, the mimosa on the tea table or the lovely bright red gown and hat of Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, but both were greatly admired by all those who attended the tea which opened two new exhibitions at the Arts club.

At this time of year spring flowers and bright colors do so much to enliven the drabness of late winter that it is a pleasure to see them. Friday always is the most popular day of the week for a tea party, for every one loves to have some place to go for a cup of tea after the symphony concert and yesterday was no exception for the galleries of the club were so crowded that it was difficult to see the paintings which were from the Gardner Hale Memorial exhibition and by Henry Billings.

A few of those at the party were Mrs. Ralph T. Winston and Mrs. Clair E. More, who were telling their friends about a buffet luncheon the Lake Shore League of Women Voters will give on Feb. 13 at the Drake hotel at which Dr. Rachel Yarros will speak; Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay III., whose bit of news consisted of the information that she and her husband and baby were going to move to town from Wheaton next fall; Mrs. Lindsay Jr., Mrs. A. F. Callahan, Miss Emily Larned, Miss Nellie Carpenter, Mrs. Norval Pierce, Mrs. Frank Wheeler, Mrs. Augustus A. Carpenter, Mrs. Erich Gerstenberg, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, Miss Agnes Foreman and Mrs. Louis K. Boysen.

A group of post-debutantes have decided that exercise is necessary, and accordingly Miss Ann Small has organized a Sunday afternoon basketball game between several good friends and their beaux. The place of play remains unknown because the athletes insist that no one watch them—at least their first game. Some of the enthusiasts besides Miss Small are Miss Anne Smith, Miss Betty Smith, Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Alice May Dickinson, Sidney Waud, Morris Waud, John McWilliams, Charles Connel, and Edward Sullivan.

Highland Park Debs Are Busy

Those three attractive Highland Park girls who made their debut jointly last September at Exmoor are settling down and each pursuing her own interests. Miss Caroline Bullard is back at her studies at Wells and may return on March 17 to spend the spring vacation with her parents, the Sellar Bullards. Her sister, Miss Barbara Bullard, leaves tomorrow night for California to stay an indefinite time with her grandmother, Mrs. Albert Paul Smith, who has a lovely winter home between Montecito and Santa Barbara.

Miss Janet Bard, the Ralph A. Bards' daughter, when not doing Junior league work, is practicing hard at her scales and finger exercises, and is going to Virginia in March to spend a few quiet weeks riding and resting on the Bards' farm near Richmond.

Another Highland Park debutante who was presented a week after her cousin, at the home of her parents, is the charming, dark haired Dorothy Bard, daughter of the Francis Norwood Bards. At present she is in Connecticut college, and from all reports will not be at home for the spring vacation.

A group of young women have decided that their husbands must be given an opportunity to play in a duplicate contract bridge tournament—the aforesaid young women having enjoyed those in which they have played so much—so they have planned one for five Wednesday nights, starting next week, at the Ambassador hotel.

Mrs. Richard Peyton will be in charge of the affair and Mrs. Walter F. McLallen and Mrs. Edward French are active in making the arrange-

MINUTE MYSTERY CAN YOU SOLVE IT?

BY H. A. RIPLEY

CLASS DAY.

"Some of you fellows complained that the problem involving a photograph from an airplane was a bit farfetched. You might be interested in knowing that the late Roald Amundsen's plane was discovered by exactly that means. Photographs taken from the Graf Zeppelin, on being developed and enlarged, showed an airplane wing which could not possibly have been seen from the dirigible with the naked eye. Microscopic examination revealed the number of Amundsen's plane lying in the little known section of A Nova Zembia.

"Now, here's another deductive problem taken from an actual case. There is only one possible solution and if you chaps hope to become criminal investigators you'll have to learn to think—to reason—to deduce.

"One of the Royal Northwest Mounties tracked a desperado to a northern outpost and there lost trace of him. Upon inquiry, a rather shifty character informed him, that the man he sought had gone off in a northerly direction. Though a bit skeptical he dared not discount the information so he set out over the snow on the blind, cold trail.

"Five hours later his keen intuitive sense told him that some one was following HIM. Just a hunch, but the impression grew as he proceeded. Being a really smart young officer, he gave no sign of his feeling but realizing the importance of definitely ascertaining whether or not he was correct, he resorted to a simple ruse that in a few hours confirmed his suspicion. He learned, without once stopping, or looking around, seeing or hearing any one that he was being followed. Quickly now!"

WHAT DID HE DO?

Perhaps you have one you would like Fordney to try on his class. If so send it to him in care of this paper and he will be delighted to see what his students make of it.

Good Morning!

"HELLo Ev'ry BO-dy!" says the rich, slow voice of big Kate Smith. She smiles her kind smile as she says it. The smile reflects from generous lips to pleasant, deep set eyes with their underlight of sadness. And right away, somehow, the world seems rather a nicer place because you feel you've found a friend.

It's her friendliness far more than her singing that has endeared Kate to the world. The fact that this human quality, as well as a lot of her music, has been successfully caught by the screen will undoubtedly make "Hello, Everybody!" a best seller. For—"all the world is waiting for the sunrise"—and Kate has sunshine. Plenty!

You can't exactly say that in this picture Kate's gift of melody pays off the mortgage on the old home, but, anyway, "Hello, Everybody!" is that sort of a story. The heroine's a farm girl. Lives in a valley which big interests are about to convert to dam purposes. [Dam, not damn, though, really, in this interest damn wouldn't be so far off.] The divils COULD build their damndam in another location weren't they so bent on saving a couple of dollars.

Great is the lamentation among the valleyites. On Kate's advice they subscribe their all to fight the case which is practically lost till—well—never mind. . . .!

The piece abounds in music. Kate sings several new songs, including "Pickaninny Heaven," "Moon Song," "The Great Open Spaces," and "Twenty Million People." And, glory be, she does a dance! Never took a dancing lesson in her life, so they say, but does she get over the ground? And is she funny doing it? She's surprisingly active for such a large woman, and as light on her feet as a feather—[bed].

While there's no getting around it that this young woman is the whole show, she has adequate and pleasing support. The director capitalized the story's naïveté and the result is a charmingly simple and heartwarming number that takes you back to the eternal verities, and rests and delights thereby.

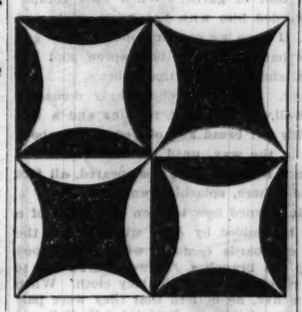
Here's Attractive Quilt Block That Belies Its Name



ROB PETER TO PAY PAUL

BY NANCY CABOT.

The completed quilt blocks of "Rob Peter to Pay Paul" do give the effect that the name implies—that the material cut from the dark block would fill in the space allowed on the white, and vice versa. But it will be noted that this would not give a seam allowance; so it is all robbing and no paying.

For a pattern of the "Rob Peter to Pay Paul" design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune; or call at Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street.

FOLLY ISLAND

By Wallace Irwin

SYNOPSIS.

Bart Burgess is marooned in a catboat on Peconic Bay, fifty miles from his Long Island home in Wyattville. His companion, Ingalls Frederick Warren, spoiled child of a new-made fortune, known as "Nosey Ingy," rows to town for a carpenter. A girl in a canoe invites Bart over to her family's island, but her small brother says their mother would have a fit. Bart senses a family secret. Ingy sends help and taxies home. Bart learns that the Bayleys have lived on the island fifteen years, but don't mix. The father travels. He invites the girl, Alice, to visit him in Wyattville. Less than a week later Trevor Burgess, Bart's father, dies suddenly from a heart attack. Bart is left with the care of his invalid mother. The family lawyer gives Bart a letter left for him by his father, in which he confesses to being a bigamist. The Bayleys of Folly Island are his second family. They know him as Matthew Bayley. He asks Bart, for his mother's sake, to guard the secret and leaves a fortune to provide for the Bayleys. Bart calls on Mrs. Bayley, posing as a lawyer, and finds her a lovely woman, not the harridan he expected. He returns two weeks later with the legacy. Bart is happy to learn from her mother that Alice isn't Matthew Bayley's daughter. But to keep her from visiting his home and seeing his father's pictures is now a problem. Bart is invited for a week-end at Folly Island.

INSTALLMENT XVIII.

SUPPER ON A HOUSEBOAT.

Bart's taut nerves twitched impatiently. "If you feel like that about it I'd better go back right away."

"Please don't." Alice's hand was on his arm, her eyes imploring. "Forgive me, won't you? I'm foolish—I won't be any more. And, Bart, mother's already had men up there, digging foundations. It's good for her to build the house. It really is."

"But you don't like it."

Her eyes, as clear as truth, were kindling into his.

"You wouldn't want me to say I did, would you, if I didn't?"

Supper on the houseboat was managed in Mrs. Bayley's own fashion and with much of her witty, good natured scolding. Her caressing roughness and sudden gayety were very Celtic. "Ben handles a dish as he would a brick-bat," she said. "Something to be thrown to you and forgotten." Wandering about the tidy little cabin, pretending to be useful, Bart had time to study his father's photograph, in shooting costume, featured on the wall. "Mr. Bayley?" he asked lightly, and the widow paused in her work to say, "It's the only picture we have of him. Teddy spoiled all the other films."

"If we had a bottle of Chablis," commented Mrs. Bayley, "it would be better. My husband used to bring it to us, a little at a time. But I don't know where to get it."

Then the thought was born to Trevor Burgess' son. His father's only picture on Folly Island. It shouldn't be here, telling the story.

That Mrs. Bayley was a cook was made evident in advance by certain savory smells, coming from the galley in the stern, something peppery with sweet butter in it, and a faint, polite hint of garlic. When Bart complimented her on that fragrance she rewarded him with her warm smile and said, "I do all I can with an oil stove. I hope we can put one of those gas arrangements in the new house." She had on a fluffy blue apron, and her rolled sleeves showed soft arms, several shades lighter than Alice's.

Everybody worked with the supper. Alice was charmingly domestic, opening ship-shape cupboards in the wall, bringing out napkins and a fine lace cloth, evidently for company. Teddy cut bread and obeyed orders about making toast. Ben was busy getting in the way, until his sister reminded him that he hadn't combed his hair since noon; then he disappeared, all feet and hands, and made a great noise somewhere, splashing water.

Even Bart was allowed to help. He learned how to open the leaves of a Lady Pembroke table and he liked to be scolded by Alice when he put the cloth on crooked. Then out of the cupboards came a white Wedgwood candelabrum with dolphins to hold up the branches. It was Bart's job to put in the candles and he admired the effect, centering the lacy cloth. When he set out the plates, evenly spaced for five, he noticed that they were pale blue Sevres. The knives and forks were solid silver, initialed "E. B.," and as fine as any used at Wyattville. So unlike the houseboat, so like the elegance which Mrs. Bayley cast about her. "What does the E. stand for?" he asked, looking at a fork. "Evelyn," said Alice, and set two bowls of bright spring flowers beside the candelabrum.

The boys took turns being butler. Ben came first and was surprisingly skillful, now that his hair was combed. There was black bean soup, with slices of lemon just where slices of lemon should be. "It's hard to get it like that in this country," complimented Bart, enjoying the romantic, foreign flavor. "Like a great many simple things," said Mrs. Bayley, "it takes some care. Ben, you've forgotten to give Mr. Burgess any toast." A little illusive she was about the foreign flavor of black bean soup.

Teddy made a ceremony of bringing in the chafing dish. Playing butler was something he liked to dramatize. After setting it down before his mother's place he bowed and removed the cover with a flourish. "Where did you ever see a butler behave like that?" asked Mrs. Bayley. "In the movies," acknowledged Teddy, blushing a shade brighter than his pimples.

"I hope you like mussels," said Mrs. Bayley, taking the plates one at a time and dishing out the dark blue shells with an ooze of butter sauce.

"I'm crazy about them," said the guest. A savor of Paris came to him with the first delicious morsel.

"If we had a bottle of Chablis," commented Mrs. Bayley, "it would be better. My husband used to bring it to us, a little at a time. But I don't know where to get it."

It was as though she had shut a door firmly against her past, but if it swung ajar you always knew that he was somewhere there behind it. In unreasonable embarrassment Bart found himself volunteering to bring over Chablis when next he came. Chablis out of Trevor Burgess' cellar, to please his bigamous wife who, quite obviously, knew both wine and food.

Bart was again curious, trying to pump her. Cooking and music, he ventured, are two things you have to go abroad to study. But Mrs. Bayley disagreed amiably. It's wonderful what you can learn out of a cookbook, if you put your mind to it. And it was too bad, she thought, that Americans didn't appreciate mussels. Why, right around Folly Island there were enough of them to feed New York for a year. Alice and the boys brought them up, only the ones that were always under salt water. People said they shouldn't be exposed to the sun. Maybe that was just a superstition, but Mrs. Bayley didn't like to take chances.

Bart had asked a question and received nothing but a lecture on mussel-culture. Then Ben brought in a casserole and, setting it down, imitated Teddy's flourish. It contained cubes of lamb which might have been treated by Frederick's cordon bleu on the left bank of the Seine. A delightful blend of juices and fine herbs and thinly sliced carrots and small round onions.

"I'd like to know the cookbook you read," grinned Bart.

"I'll show it to you some time," said Mrs. Bayley.

He was one of them tonight, a member of that charming family. Sitting back, puffing contentedly at a black pipe, he found himself sliding into a surprising current of thought. He was watching these vigorous, beautiful people, all at work, all so merry about it. And dominating them was the wife whom Trevor Burgess had spoken of as "a lovely woman."

ments and interesting their friends in it.

David Adler had a very small luncheon party yesterday at his North State street residence for his house guest, Lady Sibyl Colefax, who arrived earlier in the day from New York. It was hardly a party for there were only four places laid at the table, one for Lady Colefax, one for Mrs. Tiffany Blake, one for Mr. Blake and one for the host.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker entertained a party of 20 at dinner at the Casino for Lady Colefax and today Mrs. Howard Linn has invited six friends to luncheon at her Cedar street residence to meet the Englishwoman. Lady Colefax is leaving early this evening for the west coast.

Mr. and Mrs. John P. Kellogg are entertaining at a small dinner party tonight and at an equally small luncheon tomorrow for Mr. and Mrs. Harold Nicolson who are going to spend tonight and tomorrow with the Kelloggs in Lake Forest. After Mrs. Nicolson's lecture this morning at the Drake hotel—she is the Hon. Victoria Sackville-West and she will talk on "Changes in English Social Life"—Mrs. Robert R. McCormick will entertain at luncheon at her Astor street residence for the Hon. Victoria after which the latter and her husband will motor to Lake Forest.

The Nicolsons and the Kelloggs will come back to the city tomorrow night for the dinner the P. E. N. club is giving the English couple at the Casino club, which will be a small affair, too, for there are only about twenty members of the club and they have invited just about that same number of guests to meet the English writers.

British Give Dance Tonight

A Union Jack will mingle with the Stars and Stripes tonight at the dance British Consul General Lewis Bernays and Mrs. Bernays with a committee of Chicago Britishers are giving at the Drake hotel.

"Simple, it's to be extremely simple," Mr. Bernays emphasized yesterday. "We want the money for the British charity fund that takes care of needy Britons here. Dancing from 9 o'clock on, supper at midnight, a flag or two for decoration. These are the plans."

Miss Paula Wilms, who is to become Mrs. Malcolm S. Henderson, wife of the British vice consul here, on Feb. 23, will make her first formal appearance with the consular corps. She is to be hostess to a party, including Mr. Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Paepcke Wilms, Paul Guentzel, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Paepcke. At other tables Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams and Vice Consul and Mrs. Robert Ross will have parties.

So much interest has been manifested in the message Dr. Richard von Kuehlmann is to bring this noon to the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations it has been necessary to move the luncheon meeting from the red lacquer to the grand ballroom of the Palmer house. Dr. von Kuehlmann, former imperial German secretary of state for foreign affairs, has reserved all of his information on the present chaotic situation in Germany for this meeting.

Cameron Wedding Next Saturday

Chicago society will lose a perfectly good bachelor, but it will gain an equally "perfectly good" young matron when Miss Elizabeth Cameron of Milwaukee is married to Dr. O. E. Van Alyea next Saturday. The wedding, for which several of Dr. Van Alyea's good friends here will go to the Wisconsin city, will be solemnized at 5 o'clock in the afternoon at the residence of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Jackson Kemper of Lafayette place, with only the families and a few friends present.

Mrs. Thomas Stevens Van Alyea of Milwaukee will be the bride's only attendant and Mr. Van Alyea will serve as his brother's best man. Dr. Van Alyea and his bride will come to Chicago for a few days after the wedding and then will leave for a trip to Cuba and Panama. They will be at home after March 15 at 1512 Dearborn parkway.

Miss Cameron, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Winfield H. Cameron of Milwaukee, made her debut in 1929 and is a member of the Service club and the Junior league there.

Mrs. Buchanan Is Guest Here

When Mrs. Katherine Winterbotham Buchanan underwent a serious operation last week her sister, Mrs. Ernest Poole, the former Margaret Winterbotham, came on from New York to see her and to visit her mother, Mrs. John R. Winterbotham. Mrs. Poole is being very quiet, having just recovered from the flu, but tomorrow she will be entertained by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Parmalee McFadden, who is having a very small luncheon for her.

Miss Eleanor Litsinger is giving a German buffet dinner dance tonight at the residence of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward R. Litsinger, of 1400 State parkway, to which all the season's debutantes and their beaux have been invited.

Long days in a deck chair, Hawaiian moonlight, and perhaps adventure in Peiping! These are some of the experiences in store for Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson of Lake Forest and Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw and her daughter, Theodora Shaw, of 2450 Lakeview avenue during the next three months.

This party of four will sail today from Victoria on board the President Madison of the American Mail Lines.

The first stop will be Manila. Ten days there and then on to Hongkong, Shanghai, and Peiping, where all of them are to be the guests of Mrs. William J. Calhoun, wife of the former American minister to China, in the Chinese temple that she has converted into a pension. A fascinating place!

There will be ten days in Japan on the return trip and two weeks in the Hawaiian islands. Home on May 16.

The Atkinsons circled the globe two years ago, when Mr. Atkinson was interested in assembling a Siamese exhibit for A Century of Progress, but no member of the group has ever before set foot in China or Japan.

Mrs. Palmer Goes East

Mrs. Potter Palmer left yesterday for the east to see her daughter, Pauline, who is at the Concord academy, and her son, Gordon, who is in Harvard. Mrs. Palmer will be back Feb. 21 or 22.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Rogers, who had a week's longer vacation than they anticipated when they left here about three weeks ago, will return tomorrow morning. They were delayed in Bermuda by a terrific storm which prevented the boat they were coming home on from landing, so instead of reaching New York last week-end they landed there Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Eliot P. Goss are quitting Chicago to live permanently in Waterbury, Conn., which is Mr. Goss's home town. Mr. Goss is motoring east today and Mrs. Goss and the baby are going down by train next Monday. Both Mr. and Mrs. Goss will return often to visit the John Sheppard Stones, Mrs. Goss's parents.

Mrs. Wolcott Blair is leaving next week for some hunting in Warrenton, Va., where she will stay at the North Wales club. How long Mrs. Blair stays will depend upon the quality of this thrilling sport.

Mrs. Albert B. Dewey Jr., who has been living in Washington recently, is sailing today on the Conte di Savoia with her two sons to spend two or three months on the Riviera. Mr. Dewey will join them later.

News Notes of Travelers.

Dr. and Mrs. E. John Senn of the Churchill are leaving today for a pleasant six weeks' trip. They are going first to New York for a week, then to Miami Beach for two or three weeks, and then to New Orleans, where Mrs. Senn was born and brought up, for the Mardi Gras.

Mrs. Robert V. Massey [Juliet Bond], who has been with her father, William A. Bond of the Webster hotel, has left for her home in Philadelphia. She will go from there to Florida for the rest of the winter.

Among the visitors enjoying the southern sun at Daytona Beach, Fla., are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. McDougal, Mrs. Bruce C. Davey and her son, and George A. Eddy and his son.

Miss Harriet Trowbridge, daughter of the Mason Trowbridges of 227 East Delaware place, has just added the vice presidency of the junior class to her list of extra-curricular activities at Vassar. Another of her positions is the chairmanship of the International club. In June she will join her family at their summer place in West Cornwall, Conn.

Friends say that Miss Harriet Monroe may come back from Mexico in time for Sir John Masefield's lecture on Tuesday evening at Orchestra hall.

Heads Party

Mrs. Jaroslav Smetanka, wife of the Czecho-slovakian consul of Chicago, is chairman of the Ladies of the Consuls who are giving a dinner dance at the Belden Stratford hotel tonight. The wives of 23 foreign consuls are on the committee.

New Arts Club Display Given Critic's Praise

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Two exhibitions of interest opened yesterday at the Arts club. In the little gallery are paintings by Henry Billings, whose recent murals in New York have created a great deal of comment, and in the longer hall is a memorial exhibit of the work of Gardner Hale, a young American who was killed in a tragic automobile accident a year ago.

Henry Billings has a decided flair for mechanics. He has an appreciation of pattern, rhythm, and beauty. His sense of humor is keen. His passion for muted color, flowing fluently shade beside shade, is one of those great passions which brook no denial. You will find it given voice again and again and still again.

In "Fragment" Mr. Billings has wrought an exquisite bit of perfection from a flower, a broken instrument, and a highly poetic sun. "Lehigh Valley" is sublimated railroad advertising and a fine piece of work. "Coastal Ruins" proves again that all is not lost when rust becomes master, and set beyond the proof is a marvelous seascape. "The Descent" is a parachute landing to the bored approval of a man sitting on steps, beyond whose feudal castle reaches a fascinating landscape in the best modern tradition, a little flavored with the Italian tapestry touch.

The Gardner Hale exhibit is of an entirely different character than that of Henry Billings, but it is equally intriguing. The paintings are rather impressionistic and decidedly full of romance and the poetry of water, trees, and sky. To reveal his versatile talent and acknowledge that his death was a great loss to American art, one has only to compare "Charlton Street," "Florence," "Moosehead Lake," and "Girl with Puppy." There you have in a nutshell the four points of his genius.

His sketch for a bicentennial mural with Washington on a white horse leading a throng of patriots and soldiers is another magnificent conception. Such painting as this gives fresh meaning to these years when obviously American art is struggling to stand alone.

The exhibit will continue to Feb. 14 and is well worth seeing.

Cagney Forced to Quit Easy Handout Ways

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 3. — Jimmy Cagney always has been a "soft touch" for improvident actors, impecunious old acquaintances, and hangers-on who possess the necessary brass to live on some one else. But Jimmy recently stumbled on to a recipe to conserve his bank account. His agent and business manager, George Frank, took Cagney's cash entirely away from him because he was being drained of it so fast.

Cagney still felt apologetic about turning anybody down, so he arranged with an old friend of his from 79th street days in New York City, now operating a restaurant here, to serve a meal to any one who came into the restaurant and stated that Jimmy Cagney sent him. It was to be carte blanche. Any of Cagney's pals who were really down on their luck could eat every meal for a week, or even a month, if it was a case of starving.

Well, that was three weeks ago.

To date none of Cagney's "pals" have showed up at the restaurant for meals. But a lot of them are growling because the customary five spot or ten spot no longer is forthcoming any time they buttonhole helpful Jimmy on the boulevard.

William Blailock Makes His Debut as Baritone Singer

William Blailock left his customary position as a member of the Orchestra hall organization last night to give a recital of baritone songs at Kimball hall, with Isaac Van Grove at the piano. It would seem to have been his debut recital as far as Chicago is concerned, and it became evident that he has been putting in his period of study with a good deal of credit.

He has the gift of a good natural voice and he has a taste for singing. In addition, he has acquired a favorable part, if not the entire sum, of the technic of singing. He is at present in the state of development where his ability and sympathies enable him to make a good impression with a group of songs by John Alden Carpenter in that composer's dealings with music of the Indians and Negroes. Mr. Blailock's technic does not as yet permit him to display the complete outlines of Lully's "Bois Epais," but he is headed well in that direction.

toiling with toilets

WHO likes to scrub a toilet bowl? It's the meanest chore in the house. Well, don't do it! Keep toilets sparkling clean and purified with Sani-Flush. It's just as easy as this:

First: Sprinkle a little Sani-Flush in the bowl (follow directions on the can). Second: Flush the toilet.

That's all! Porcelain glistens like new. Odors go. Germs are killed. And Sani-Flush can't harm the plumbing.

At grocery, drug and hardware stores, 25c. (Another use for Sani-Flush—cleaning automobile radiators. See directions on can.)

Raised Chin, Clear Neck Line Preserve Youth

Correct Posture Is Half the Battle.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

There's no use starting on neck beautifiers until you've learned well the effect of posture. Half the double chins on exhibit, the creepy lines, the ringed throats, are due to the manner in which the head is held. And more of this faulty posture is observed in sitting pose than otherwise.

If you hold your chin up [not out] and your chest up you're in a fair way to keeping that enviable young throat and chin line contour. It breaks and folds into all manner of lines, straight and crisscross, when the head goes flop. Even while lying down reading you have to watch that your chest bone isn't acting as a pillow for a lazy head.

After you've learned this lesson well you have every hope in the world of going ahead and making a really lovely thing of your throat.

I know that many, many more women are practicing the recommended proceeding nightly of beginning their face work at the base of the throat, creaming from there up. Patting their skin food and astringents down to the base of the throat, all of which is going to preserve many a throat for a charming old age.

But more women might just as well be doing it. We urge you younger women to get this habit, so that when you get into the forties you'll be able to face them with a smooth throated skin and a fine, clean jawline. You use the back of your hands after the skin food or cream is applied and begin with each hand at the center of the throat base, branching off in an up and out, gentle stroke. While you're at it, continue and give the sides and back of the neck some skin care, too.

Nine out of ten women have necks that are darker in color than their faces, due to better facial care and to powdering. Necks are not protected with creams and powder when they go out, so there is a noticeable skin difference. You may have to use a bleaching cream to try to even up the shades of face and neck. Powdering may be a temporary measure of relief. What I wanted mostly to do today was to remind you of the uplifted chin as a miracle worker coupled with the idea of including the throat in the daily facial work.

Mother of Three Lively Babies Tells of Her Fun

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

I am going to let you look over my shoulder as I read this delightful letter. (Of course, I have changed it sufficiently so that the writer will not be recognized).

"My dear Mrs. Bevans: My babies are 12 months, 24 months, and 3 years of age and we are trying to give them a happy childhood. However, we do not want spoiled, disobedient little rascals and are glad to have some one else's opinions on how to manage them.

"They are so healthy and full of life that it requires a good deal of energy to wash and dress them at times.

"Daddy's homecoming is greeted with such noisy shouts that we must disturb the whole neighborhood. As soon as supper is over we all either take a little ride or play on the slide, seesaw, swing, or play ball outdoors.

"Bathing is a circus with three babies. Daddy and I dry them and then the baby goes off to sleep with scarcely another sound and daddy tells or sings stories to the other two for a few minutes before coming downstairs.

"Many of their occupations are connected with my housekeeping and cooking. I let them help shell peas, break beans and even peel leftover potatoes. They are always interested in asking me where their fruits and vegetables come from and how they grow. Next year I want a garden.

"Have you any advice to give on play equipment? I am interested in what the nursery schools are doing—though we are a sort of nursery school ourselves!"

Yes, I have a new list from a well known nursery school. References regarding the cost and way of obtaining these will be sent on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Charming Dress for Afternoons Is Easily Made

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Here is a lovely dress for afternoons, and it's easily made. The model is simplicity itself and correspondingly smart. It is carried out in the dull side of black crinkly silk crêpe. The bodice has a slightly draped neck at the front, and dolman sleeves, and the shiny surface of the crêpe is used for the banded trimming.

The pattern, No. 3335, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18 and 20 years, and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Singing Boys from Vienna Will Give Program Tonight

The boys who carry on the tradition of the Vienna Sängerknaben that had its beginning in the 13th century and trained the old music masters, Haydn, Mozart, and Schubert, will sing for Chicago this evening at Orchestra hall. It will be their second appearance here, having sung in a Christmas concert in the Blackstone hotel.

Their musical director, Dr. George Gruber, explained that there are 60 boys in the Sängerknaben and they all live in the former imperial palace in Vienna. Their official hostess there is Countess Maria Kinsky-Renard, who also teaches dramatics.

Here's Tale of Much Love on Little Money

Wife Advises Marrying on Small Salary

BY DORIS BLAKE.

We hear so much about how marriages are unmade we feel that much propaganda could be use from those persons who are making marriage mean the fine experiment it is. So, we present the following:

"Although in a recent article you asked for advice from those who had taken the step, I feel in offering my opinion I am getting into other people's business. However, my anger has been aroused by the numerous articles recently published concerning poor young couples in love. It's the old story of not enough money, and yet it seems the girl is always the one to hesitate most.

"After an analysis is made in every case the result is really that the girl thinks more of her own personal comfort than of having a husband and a home. She seems to prefer good looking clothes, shampoos, and doing things to marrying the man she loves. What kind of love is that? Surely in real love one is glad to sacrifice. I know. I've experienced just the thing the girls mention to you. And here in my home city my girl friends often say to me: 'Well, if my boy friend was making as much money as your husband did when you got married we would get married.' The remark provokes me, for here is my case:

"The fellow I married was just entering his first job after putting himself through six years of college. He had college debts to pay. His salary was a large one, but only half of it could be used for living expenses, the other half going toward the debts. After an eleven months courtship we decided the longer we waited to get married, the more romance was lost. Thus we decided that I should work the first year to help make ends meet, and we would be married within a few months.

"The position I held paid about half as much as my fiancé's. Then, trouble came. I lost my position and my future husband suffered an illness, thus accumulating doctors' bills. That meant our marriage would be one of many sacrifices, especially for me. I had been accustomed to having everything. My father was sole owner of a business and was able to give me a large spending allowance. I had a car; I was among the best dressed; I lived in a beautiful home.

"Marriage meant no spending money, no clothing, a two room apartment. But I loved this fellow more than those things. I had faith in the future, faith in our ability to get along for the present, and faith in our advancement later. We borrowed a hundred and fifty dollars to get married.

"We then lived on a strict budget and paid it back. The sacrifices were not hard, for we were much in love and we managed to look well, to have enough food, and to have lots of fun. I have tougher problems, but far more interesting problems than when I worked in an office. It was fun to plan meals of low cost, fun to work out our financial difficulties together. Now, we've been married two years. We are nearly out of debt, we have a bungalow which is nicely furnished with our own things; we've been able to make trips, to go places, have clothes.

"Now we are weathering salary cuts, but a little son just came to our house and we are happier than ever before in our lives. And we are glad we took the step. After all, we've got along and even advanced.

"My case isn't unusual, nor are we exceptions. I believe we just put true values first and we won out. Why can't these complaining girls do the same? Are clothes, shows, and little luxuries so important that one can't live without them a year or two years in order to marry the man one loves when the romance is at its ripest stage?

A READER."

Chic Redingote Daytime Uniform for Parisiennes

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Double breasted redingotes are being kept in style by Parisiennes, in spite of the many other forms of winter coats that the dressmakers keep on showing. You can't go into the Ritz or any other chic rendezvous in Paris without seeing how popular this coat is. Marcel Rochas made a redingote out of natural phoque fur, and at least twenty famous women are wearing it for their roundabout daytime duties.

Even more popular is this kind of coat in heavy rough wool with revers and collar of fur. Any number of women are wearing Schiaparelli's special cloth redingote in rough blue wool with revers and collar of sableized brown marten.

The redingote in our sketch today is, however, the kind that is most popular of all, and some Parisiennes wear this coat as a sort of daytime uniform. It is made of black wool, with a surface which appears to be solidly tucked, and is actually woven that way. It buttons over six buttons and has no belt. This coat without a belt is just a little bit more elegant. The revers and collar are made of curly Persian lamb, also black, and the way the revers are squeezed to narrowness and exaggerated points is what makes them so chic.

COCHRAN BEATS LAYTON; WINS BILLIARD TITLE

NO ENTRY FEE FOR NOVICES IN GOLDEN GLOVES

Register Free on Day of Bouts.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Amateur boxers in the Novice division of the Golden Gloves tournament need not register with the Central A. A. U. until they report for their first bouts. THE TRIBUNE officials in charge of the tournament also have decided to pay the A. A. U. registration fee for all Novices.

Novice boxers in general are interested primarily in Golden Gloves. Consequently the boxing committee of the Central A. A. U., at its meeting yesterday, voted to issue registration cards to Novices which will be good for the Golden Gloves tournament. The boys in the Open division must procure their registrations from Capt. Roy E. Davis, 538 South Clark street. These cards are good for one year.

Near Entry Deadline.

Novice boxers must clip the entry blank which appears daily in THE TRIBUNE. Check your weight class and the section in which you wish to box. Your application for A. A. U. registration then will be taken care of when you report at the tournament.

This ruling will give every boy a chance to test his skill in the ring without cost other than his personal equipment.

Entries for the west section tournament, in both the Novice and Open divisions, must reach THE TRIBUNE next Monday. Entries for the far south section close next Thursday. All entries for the north section at Loyola university must reach THE TRIBUNE by Monday, Feb. 13, while the south section at White City will be closed to entries on Thursday, Feb. 16.

Report on First Day.

Boxers who have had no experience in tournaments should bring shoes [tennis shoes or boxing shoes], a towel, trunks, an athletic supporter, and a protection cup. For those Novices who do not have a protection cup THE TRIBUNE will supply this part of the equipment.

The general rule for reporting at your sectional tournament is: Report on the first day of your section between 4 and 6 o'clock for physical examination and weighing in. Novices will register with the A. A. U. at that time. All boxers in both classes, Open and Novice, will box on the first night of the sectional tourney.

Kid Howard, whose gymnasium won the team trophy in 1928, the first year that a Golden Gloves tournament was held, has entered a team this year. Howard believes a few good boxers will win the open division cup for the Chicago squad scoring the most points. In this he's correct, since only the thirty-two boys reaching the semi-finals will score points.

The C. Y. O., Trafton's gymnasium, Belle Plaine, German-American A. C., Northwest Parks, West Side Recreation Center, and J. P. I. are other outstanding teams in Chicago which are seeking the Chicago team trophy. Another trophy will be awarded this year to the out of town center which makes the best showing in the final matches at the Stadium, March 8.

Berny Heisling of the German-American club announced that he will have eighty-six boys in the Golden Gloves in both novice and open divisions. These boys will be divided among the four sections to insure better opportunity of qualifying for the Tournament of Champions.

The Working Boys' Home, per George Conlon, will have eight amateurs in the novice competition on the west side and one bantamweight, James Forden, in the open division. Forden is a veteran Golden Glover.

Admission each night for the Chicago sectionals will be 60 cents, including federal tax. No reserved seats. So the first to arrive at Guyon's Paradise a week from Monday night will sit in the front row.

"My services belong to the Golden Gloves tournament from first to last," writes Tommy Thomas, one of Chicago's veteran referees. Tommy has officiated in all of the preceding five Golden Gloves tournaments and he's going to keep up the record.

THAT DIDRIKSON BABE IS A SISSY; SHE EVEN SEWS!

Did You Ever Hear of Dempsey Ruching?

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 3.—This Babe [What a Girl] Didrikson, the female Art Shires, has gone about as far with me as I am going to let her go. She has been going around the country making publicity for herself and building up her reputation by putting it in the papers everywhere that she licked me in a game of golf during the Olympic games last summer. Claiming she can do anything a man can do!

Well, do you know what I am going to do to Miss Didrikson the next time I see her? There is only one thing to do and I am going to do it. I am going to walk up to Miss Didrikson and pop her right square on the nose. Then I am going to kick her a couple. Then I am going to chase her right out of town, publicly.

I am getting tired of all this cheap publicity of hers about how she licked me in that game of golf. She didn't do any such thing in any such thing.

Can You Imagine!

Do you want to know the low down dirty truth about Babe Didrikson? I will tell you what she is. She is a sissy and I can prove it.

I can prove that she sews, for one thing. She sewed a dress with seven box pleats and a big mess of ruching and fichu all over it, and took a prize with it in the free style sewing event in the Texas state fair at San Antonio two years ago.

Do you know what she got for a prize? A flask? No, not any flask. A pair of suspenders? No, not any pair of suspenders, nor any shaving brush either. She got a beautiful hand embroidered pin cushion. Yoo-hoo, sissy, how are you getting along with your ruching?

Did you ever hear of Jack Dempsey or Babe Ruth sewing or ruching?

Why, Miss Didrikson!

Another thing Babe Didrikson does which will give you an idea. She makes the beds. I got that on her in a poison pen letter from somebody in her home town. She makes the beds and does the marketing. How much is parsley? Twenty-five cents a dozen? O, dear me, that is too expensive. I can get it for 22 cents from the Greek down the street. Yoo-hoo, sissy, how are you getting along with your ironing?

Did you ever hear of Burleigh Grimes making a tapioca pudding?

Didrikson didn't beat me because I don't play with sissies and I wasn't playing this day. The foursome consisted of the Babe and two movie actors named Rice and Gallico and a prize fight manager named Braven Dyer. I was supposed to play, but as we were getting out of the car at the club I asked the Babe if she ever played with dolls and she said, "You are dam tooting I do, brother."

That convinced me that she was effeminate, so I decided that I would just walk around.

Well, of All Things!

As I remember the game now, she was pretty good off the tees, usually about 250 yards down the alley. From there on she didn't amount to much, although her score did, and the boys were conceding her everything under 75 yards just to make her look good in the publicity.

Later in the year, at Boston, I met a young fellow on the Walker cup team who came from her home town and I told him about those long drives of hers.

"And she has only played a dozen rounds of golf in her life," I said.

"Yes, ha ha," said the young man from Dallas, "that is right. But she has put in a thousand hours hitting tee shots on the practice ranges around home and I guess she can hit as good a drive as any of the girls in the big tournaments."

Tsk, Tsk, Did You Ever——

"Well," I said, "I guess she is a great athlete all right. She has an arm like a blacksmith and I imagine she would be a pretty good puncher in a fight."

"O, slap her on the jaw," he said. "She can't fight. Canzoneri would murder her in a 15 round fight at the weight. She gets her reputation from beating up chumps. Then she talks up these victories into big affairs and

Tilden Beats Nusslein; Plays Again Tonight

William T. Tilden II., displaying bits of the driving tennis that for years marked him as America's leading player, last night defeated Hans Nusslein, his most persistent victim, 2-6, 6-3, 8-6. The exhibition, which drew 1,000 fans to Patten gymnasium, is scheduled for repetition this evening at the Broadway armory when Tilden will bid farewell to Chicago as a player.

Tilden, after a listless first set, brought roars of approval from the gallery as he sent hard driving balls deep into the back court. His game, however, was spotty, but effective enough to subdue the stocky German.

Can't Handle Service.

Nusslein, following his opening set victory, could not handle Tilden's service, and was perplexed when the American veteran raced about the green canvas flooring and returned fast smashes from the base line.

Only once after the first few minutes did Nusslein cause Tilden any worry. That was in the final set when the German pulled Big Bill out of position and took several games in a row.

Conducts Class Today.

In a curtain raiser Emmet Pare, Chicago, lost to Bruce Barnes, Texas, 6-2, 6-2. After the singles matches Tilden and Barnes were defeated by Nusslein and Pare, 6-1, 6-3.

This morning at 10 o'clock Tilden will conduct a tennis class for children of grammar and high school ages at Spalding's, 211 South State street.

City Squash Racquets Champion Risks Title

James Anderson of the Chicago Town and Tennis club, city squash racquets champion, will defend his title against Joseph Belden Jr. at the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club, 321 Plymouth court, at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Belden, representing the Harvard-Yale-Princeton club, won the right to meet Anderson by defeating J. D. Pope in a semi-final match yesterday, 13-15, 15-13, 15-6, 5-15, 15-4.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

EARLIER CHICAGO.

IN a Way Back When recently Helper George H. Hart told of selling TRIBUNES on the day following the Chicago fire of 1871 at the North Western depot at Kinzie and Canal streets. That statement was challenged by another Helper that a depot never was located there. Now comes the original sponsor with this confirmation from the C. & N. W. traffic department:

"The regular Chicago and North Western station at Wells and North Water was burned in the Chicago fire on Oct. 9, 1871. However, there was another depot which had been built by the Chicago and Milwaukee railroad called the Kinzie street depot which was used until it was abandoned in 1881. This depot was on Kinzie street, along the west bank of the north branch of the Chicago river. This is undoubtedly where you sold papers the day after the Chicago fire.

"At that time there was a street running beside the depot, parallel with Milwaukee avenue, known as Dunn street. An extension of this street still exists east of North Halsted and west of Goose island. It begins at Fay street and runs to a short distance beyond Sangamon street and is known as Dix street.

"The Milwaukee passenger depot, which at the time of the Chicago fire was owned by the Chicago and North Western, was built in the angle formed by Kinzie, Dunn, and Cook streets. It was a one story building and had a round 'armory' type roof. This depot took care of passengers using our northern lines."

In the good old days there was a number of restaurants along Wells street from Randolph to Monroe which featured Teutonic dishes. These places attracted large patronage because they were neat, orderly, and served leberklass, wiener schnitzel, koenigsberger, klobs, sauer braten, bock wurst, Thuringer sausage, hasenpfeffer, and such good beers. There Was a Chap Named Eckersall.

Overmatched.

It occurs to us that her manager is "overmatching" the inimitable Babe Didrikson. That she defeated Westbrook Pegler, Paul Gallico and Grantland Rice in golf at the time of the Olympics we can understand, for we've played against Pegler and Gallico, and Rice is very courteous about such things.

But just as Babe started her professional tour her manager, without arranging the "fix," lets her get beaten in a cue match by some 16 year old kid. Then Babe tells about ping-pong here in Chicago and runs into a ringer. Our Arch Ward, sports editor, always looking for such chances, proved his supremacy. What Babe didn't know was that Arch has played ping pong since infancy and earned his varsity letter at college as a member of the ping-pong squad. We've even heard it rumored part of his college expenses were paid by an ardent alumnus that he might be on the varsity team. We have faith in his amateur standing, however, for we've never seen him play for money, although he swings a mean ping-pong skillet.

Maroons Beat Purdue Team, 58⅓ to 36⅔

The University of Chicago track team, winning eight of the eleven events, opened the Big Ten season with a victory over Purdue at the Midway field house last night. The Maroons scored 58 1-3 points to Purdue's 36 2-3. Purdue won the three longer runs, the half mile, the mile and the two mile.

Eugene Oveson, Maroon sophomore, put the shot 45 feet 8½ inches to win, despite the fact that he weighs only 166 pounds. Ed Cullen, another Maroon sophomore, ran the 440 yard dash in :51.1, and Dick Jackson, a transfer student, did 12 feet to win the pole vault. Summaries:

WISCONSIN GIVES LOYOLA U. FIVE 28 TO 26 BEATING

Badgers Slow Down as 3 Regulars Foul Out.

At the half the score was 21 to 13 in Wisconsin's favor. The Badgers' margin started to shrink early in the second half when their regular players were ejected on fouls. Knake, McDonald, and Hamann each committed four personal fouls.

PURDUE, 38; TEACHERS, 32

Lafayette, Ill., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The brilliant long shooting of Joe Wheeler, forward, gave Purdue a 38 to 32 victory tonight over the Indiana State Teachers basketball team in an overtime battle.

With twenty seconds to go, the Teachers were leading, 32 to 30. Wheeler got the ball in midfloor, wheeled and sank a high arched shot to tie the score at 32 to 32 just before the gun fired, and give the Boilermakers a new lease on life.

NOTRE DAME ON MIDWAY

The University of Chicago basketball team will take on Notre Dame tonight at the Midway fieldhouse. As their difficult schedule will testify, the Maroons are possessed of the willing spirit. The flesh is weak, however, and tonight's encounter, one of the rare matches between a Chicago and a Notre Dame team, would be a headache on the Midway if the Maroons had not exhausted their talent for worry.

Afflicted with a succession of high scoring centers this season, the Maroons will find no relief in the person of Ed Krause, South Bend pivot man, who will be the attraction of the evening.

N. U. MEETS WABASH

Northwestern's basketball team will terminate two weeks of inactivity tonight with a game against Wabash college at Patten gym. The Little Giants are expected to give the Wildcats plenty of opposition, having defeated Illinois earlier in the season and losing by one point to Indiana.

The Wildcats will endeavor to shake off the effects of the semester examinations which have been in progress for the last 10 days. The team suffered a severe casualty by the examination route when Al Kawal, sophomore guard, failed in one of his courses. He has been declared ineligible for the remainder of the school year.

CAPTURES 3 CUSHION CROWN IN 1ST ATTEMPT

BY FRENCH LANE.

Welker Cochran is the new three cushion billiard champion of the world. He smashed his way through to the title when he gave the ten times champion, Johnny Layton of Sedalia, Mo., an unmerciful beating, 50 to 33, in 38 innings in the title match at the Wabash Recreation rooms last night.

The dark haired, sheikish appearing young fellow was making his first try for a world's three cushion title, although he was once the world's balkline champion. He ended his triumphant title drive by showing an iron nerve, a mastery of technique, and an uncanny shot making ability to rout Layton just as he had routed the other three cushion stars who faced him in this tournament.

Layton Takes Lead.

After Layton ran four points in the first inning Cochran went to the table and it soon became evident that Layton, the grand old man of three cushions who twice turned back Hoppe and later downed Schaefer, other balkline champion was no match for the Californian. Cochran passed Layton in the seventh inning with a run of five after Layton had become confused in his half of the round and had fired away with the wrong cue ball. It was a foul and Layton lost a point.

That mistake may have cost Layton his chance to down Cochran. His game immediately became sluggish and by the 25th inning Cochran had taken a lead of ten points.

Then it was only a question of how big Cochran's margin would be. Layton fell farther behind as Cochran made difficult three cushion shots with ease. He was the champion and there was no doubt about it.

Learned Game in Chicago.

Cochran was the youngest of balk line champions and is one of the youngest fellows ever to win the three cushion championship. He was born in Manson, Ia., in 1896. He came to Chicago as a boy in his teens and was taught billiards in the Perkins Billiard school at Mussey's old rooms, 67 Madison street.

Prof. Perkins, now dead for some years, watched Cochran, then 12 years old, play. He became fascinated with the way the youngster made his shots and invited Cochran to join his school.

Later Cochran moved to San Francisco and played for several years at Eddie Graney's famous academy. Then he started after the balkline championship and won it in 1927 from Erich Hagenlacher, the German.

Still Likes Balkline.

About that time Cochran came to the conclusion the three cushion field might bring more returns. At least the difficult angle shots interested him, so he began practicing the game. He drilled for five years before he entered championship play.

Cochran wasn't particularly thrilled with his victory. He isn't certain he likes three cushions. "I'm sure I'm going to prefer balkline," he said after Al Horan, who represented Mayor Cermak, had presented him with the diamond medal, emblematic of the championship.

Cochran's finest shot came in the 19th inning on a reverse English cross table four cushion draw. Layton's ball and the red ball were within a foot of the end rail. Cochran's cue ball was the same distance from the other end rail.

Champ Draws One.

Cochran drew from the white to the right side rail with reverse English, sliding back of the red ball to the end rail and then to the left side rail, turning back to the end to click lightly against the red ball.

Cochran has made the same mysterious sort of shots throughout the championship play, in which he won eight games and lost one. His only conqueror was Frank Scoville of Buffalo.

As a result of last night's defeat, Layton is tied with Jay Bozeman of California, for second place. They will play off the tie Monday night.

CANZONERI WINS DEBUT AS WELTER IN FIRST ROUND

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—While the boos rolled down from the rafters and a few of the 12,000 customers were impolite enough to snicker aloud, Tony Canzoneri, brilliant lightweight champion, snuffed out Billy Townsend, Vancouver blond, with one brief flurry of right hand punches tonight in his debut as a welterweight menace.

Without mussing his shiny black hair, even before the grin he always carries into action had time to settle into position, little Canzoneri jabbed the hitherto rugged Canadian across the ring with his neat left, then parked him for the night in his own corner with a lightning volley that was climaxed by a right high on the temple.

RIVERSIDE AND YORK DIVIDE IN BASKET GAMES

Free Throw as Battle Ends Decides Duel.

York and Riverside divided West Suburban High School Basketball league games yesterday. Riverside lights won, 18 to 17, to remain in first place, and league leading York heavies triumphed, 23 to 19.

The lightweight game was decided when Henderson, who was fouled by Metz as the whistle ended the game, made a free throw. In the heavyweight battle Shields wound up his prep basketball career by sinking six baskets and a free throw. It was York's eighth straight victory.

Evanston's lightweights hung up their sixth consecutive victory in the Suburban league last night by defeating Deerfield, 31 to 24. Proviso's heavyweight quintet shoved Oak Park out of the undisputed leadership of the league by handing them a 32 to 25 beating. The Villagers are now tied with Evanston for the lead with five victories and one loss. Lineups:

IT PAYS TO HAVE GRID STAR WHEN QUAIL RUSH END

Bob Whites Show Tricky Formations, Bob Finds.

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, Ga., Feb. 3.—When quail are trying to pull a few "hidden ball tricks" and rush the ends for long gains, there is nothing like teaming it up with a tall rangy Georgia Tech football player who is on to all the plays which these southern Bob Whites have in their repertoire.

Phil Von Weller of Albany, who played on the Georgia Tech varsity a few years ago, wheeled us into the country yesterday for a few hours' fun with the bird dogs and quail coveys. So we figured that we could just relax, because Phil has had lots of experience with the Bob Whites since he doffed his football suit.

Bob's Ideas Upset.

However, what happened in the few hours we were following the dogs in the warm Georgia sunshine upset all our preconceived notions of how one can guess the signals of a bunch of Bob Whites that have gone into a huddle. Here is what happened on the first covey which we found.

Two setters and a pointer were working an open grassy field that sloped down to a big pond. Suddenly Kate, the little setter, snapped into a point. We noticed that a shallow ditch ran at right angles to her point. But, as far as we could see from 80 or 90 yards away, there was hardly enough cover for a covey of quail to go into a huddle in that ditch.

The other setter was making game upwind in a grassy field, about 60 yards from where Kate was frozen. We figured that Kate had caught the body scent of the birds or possibly one bird of a feeding covey, and Bob, the other setter, was about to point them.

Third Dog Backs Kate.

Von Weiler agreed at first. But then he said that Kate had the birds and Bob was back tracking the foot scent. And so we talked it over and watched the third dog, an old pointer, come up behind Kate and snap into a point. Yes, it appeared as if Kate had the birds all right and they were in the thin cover at the bottom of the ditch.

"Which side do you want to shoot from?" queried Phil as we moved closer to the dogs.

"Makes no difference," we replied. "But look—do you believe the covey is here? That pointer is backing away and leaving 'em."

Kate Doesn't Fool 'Em.

It was hard to believe. But there was the old pointer giving little Kate the run around. After being close enough to get the scent of the covey, he was deliberately backing away, refusing not only to honor Kate's point, but also denying the presence of the Bob Whites. What we said about that pointer should have made him cringe.

We then walked toward Kate. Looking into that shallow ditch it still didn't seem possible that there was enough grass and weeds to hide a covey of birds. But Kate hadn't fooled us. Br-rr-rr-rr, about a dozen quail hurtled into the air and skimmed over a group of oaks into a field beyond.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

HAROLD TEEN—BITTER WITH THE SWEET

Hawks Stop Off at Toronto Tonight; Detroit Is Next

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—The much traveled Blackhawks are here to meet the International division leaders and the world's champions, the Maple Leafs, tomorrow night. They leave immediately after the game for Detroit where they are scheduled to meet the Red Wings Sunday night.

The Detroit game will wind up the Hawks' present road trip which carried them 3,000 miles to six cities for seven games in thirteen days, the hardest schedule every arranged for a team in the National Hockey league. Two victories, one tie, and two defeats is the team's record to date in the first five games played on the present trip. The Hawks must win either tomorrow night or Sunday to remain in the race for a Stanley cup playoff berth next month.

Haas Joins Mates on Sox Satisfied List

George W. [Mule] Haas, star outfielder, who batted .305 for the Philadelphia Athletics last season, joined Al Simmons and Jimmy Dykes, the other ex-Macks who came to the White Sox in a cash winter deal, in the Chicago fold yesterday. His signed contract was received in the office of Vice President Harry Grabiner, along with the announcement that he would be in Chicago in ample time to join the Sox party when it leaves for the Pasadena training camp on Feb. 23.

Simmons, who has been in active training "on his own" at Hot Springs, Ark., for several weeks, and Dykes have been under contract for some time.

Another new unit of the Sox cast who is determined to land a regular berth is Carl Boone, a right handed rookie pitcher. Carl, who was a free agent when signed by the Hose early this winter, left Chicago last night on the Los Angeles Limited of the North Western railroad for Pasadena, where he plans to begin heavy practice at once.

RED LUCAS HOLDOUT.

4 MEN WOUNDED IN A CLASH WITH MILK PICKETERS

Try to Run Blockade; Shooting Starts.

Sioux City, Ia., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Three South Dakota farmers and an Iowa picket were wounded late today in gun play which climaxed strife between organized milk producers of the Sioux City area and outside dairy farmers.

The men were wounded in an exchange of gunfire which resulted when 100 pickets stationed near Stevens, S. D., across the Sioux river here, stopped H. D. Markell, Elk Point, S. D., farmer, and his three sons, who were hauling a truck load of milk.

HARRY MARKELL, 32.
KEATH MARKELL, 20.
NILE COCHRAN, 39.

Shot In Abdomen.

The elder Markell suffered a gunshot wound in the abdomen and was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. Harry and Keath Markell suffered less serious wounds and Cochran a slight wound in the neck.

Cochran, who identified himself as a Moville, Ia., farmer, was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

The incident was regarded as the outgrowth of an attempt on the part of organized producers to halt delivery of milk by farmers to distributors who failed to sign the price agreement which terminated the milk strike here last August.

Strike Called on Aug. 10.

The agreement called for an increase of 80 cents per hundred weight for milk of standard quality. Distributors had been paying $1 per hundred weight when the strike was called Aug. 10, and the price agreement was reached nine days later.

The Markells with their truck loaded with 1,000 gallons of milk were being escorted here by Sheriff Collins of Elk Point and a deputy when they encountered the pickets.

The sheriff pleaded with the pickets to allow the truck to pass through the picket lines, but said the request was refused. Long poles and logs had been laid across the road to block traffic.

Firing Breaks Out.

As the truck reached the scene the elder Markell alighted and started to remove the obstructions. In the ensuing excitement an exchange of shots occurred and three of the Markells were struck.

The driver of the truck, Frank Markell, escaped injury and drove with his father and brothers to North Riverside, a Sioux City suburb, to summon medical aid and notify police.

Sheriff Collins said ill feeling had existed for some time between the Markells and milk strikers because they had been bringing milk to Sioux City despite efforts of organized milk producers to stop them.

MRS. WICHFELD, SWIFT HEIRESS, DEAD IN LONDON

Word reached Chicago yesterday of the death in London of Mrs. Mabelle Swift Wichfeld, daughter of Edwin C. Swift, younger brother of Gustavus, founder of the Swift packing industry. Mrs. Wichfeld succumbed to an attack of pneumonia.

Mrs. Wichfeld's first husband was Clarence Moore, Washington capitalist, who died in the Titanic disaster. The day before she was taken ill last week one of her two sons, Clarence Moore, sailed for the United States with his bride. The other son, Lloyd Moore, is now aboard the Europa, bound for London and is due to land Monday.

A group of eminent London physicians attended Mrs. Wichfeld but were unable to save her life. Following the death of her first husband Mrs. Wichfeld was married in 1915 to Aksel Wichfeld, attaché of the Danish legation in Washington. They were divorced in 1932. Mrs. Wichfeld has spent most of her time in recent years in Scotland and England.

G. F. CLINGMAN, TOBEY COMPANY EX-OFFICIAL, DIES

G. F. CLINGMAN.

Mr. Clingman was born at Wabash avenue and 16th street, the son of pioneer Chicagoans. Virtually his entire business career was in the furniture industry. In 1879 he became designer for John A. Colby & Co., and in 1888 joined Tobey's in a similar capacity. He became vice president and general manager in 1894. Aside from his furniture interests Mr. Clingman was an ornithologist and taxidermist. Years ago he gave a collection of Illinois birds to the Smithsonian institution. A collection of Cook county birds mounted by him is now in the Bryn Mawr school.

Four daughters and three sons survive. They are Mrs. Elizabeth Seofield, J. Stuart Clingman, Mrs. Louisa Barat, George F. Clingman, Mrs. Lucy Abel, Mrs. Ruth Moir, and William H. Clingman. Services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Monday at the Bryn Mawr Community church. Burial will be in Oakwoods.

DUCHESS D'UZES, FRENCH SOCIAL LEADER, IS DEAD

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 3. — Dowager Duchess d'Uzes, who for three generations has been recognized as the leader of aristocratic French society and an advocate of women's rights, died today at the age of 86 at the Chateau de Dampierre, the home of her daughter, Duchess de Luynes.

She was the daughter of Count de Mortemart. In 1867 she married Emmanuel, twelfth duke of D'Uzes, who died in 1878. They had four children, two of whom survive the dowager duchess.

The duchess dabbled in politics, having been an ardent supporter of Gen. Boulanger's brand of nationalism during the troubled period immediately following the Franco-Prussian war. She was a pioneer Parisian clubwoman as well as a patron of the arts and herself a talented sculptress. She founded the Women's Automobile Club of Paris and held one of the first driver's licenses issued in France.

4 AUTO DEATHS INCREASE TOLL FOR YEAR TO 84

There were four automobile deaths in Cook county yesterday, increasing the toll since Jan. 1 to 84. The victims

Raymond Dwyer, 40 years old, 3234 Maypole avenue, a salesman. Killed last night at Warren boulevard and Western avenue. Ernest Lyle, 38 years old, colored, 742 East 42d street, the driver, was arrested.

Henry Roberts, 44 years old, 1713 North Rockwell street. Fatally hurt when his car collided with a truck at Austin and Wellington avenues. He died at the Danish-American hospital.

PLAN RITES FOR TOM M'NALLY, CIVIL WAR VET

Funeral services for Tom McNally, 82 year old civil war veteran, who served 20 years of a life sentence in Joliet penitentiary for a murder he apparently never committed, were being planned last night. McNally died on Thursday at the Edward Hines hospital in Maywood.

According to attaches of the hospital one of his last wishes was that he be buried in his old uniform. His wishes will be fulfilled, it was said.

McNally and a companion, Charles Kurth, were sentenced for the murder of a saloonkeeper and his son in 1893. Twenty years later they were released when the judge who sentenced them went before the parole board and asked for their freedom on the grounds that they were innocent.

McNally served with the army of the Potomac during the civil war. Hospital authorities were trying to locate his relatives.

LUCK PIECES ARE OUT OF LUCK IN THIS '13' SOCIETY

The thirteen members of the Anti-Superstition society, who conducted a series of experiments some time back to prove that breaking mirrors, walking under ladders and spilling salt were without dire effect on human affairs, have declared war on rabbits' feet and other popular luck charms.

In a resolution passed yesterday at a meeting in the Hotel Sherman the society declared that fear and superstition were the causes of many human ills, and that courage was a vital need of the times.

The resolution was signed by Sidney Strotz, president; Wheeler Sammons, vice president; Heman T. Powers, secretary, and the remainder of the membership.

JUDGES TO STOP 'STOP ORDERS' IN TRAFFIC ARRESTS

Police Attend Parley on Law Enforcement.

New plans to tighten the city laws against speeders, traffic and auto license violators were discussed yesterday at a meeting attended by Chief Justice Sonsteby of the Municipal court, Commissioner of Police Allman, the heads of the park system police forces, and Judge Thomas A. Green, who will take over the speeders court Monday.

Act to Stop "Stop" Orders.

Chief Justice Sonsteby informed the police officials that the judges of his court had agreed that a new system on "stop" orders for warrants should be adopted and had decided that when a warrant is issued against a traffic violator who has failed to answer an arrest summons, only the judge who issues the warrant shall have the right to enter a "stop" order. Heretofore any judge has issued such orders.

"We are sick and tired," said Judge Sonsteby, "of sending out warrants and finding that they have been stopped by bailiffs and clerks. Under the new system the warrant must be returned to the court where the case is being tried. We want to stop 'stop' orders."

May Hold Night Court.

Judge Green suggested a night court in the city hall for license violators, in order that those arrested would not lose a day's work by coming to court in the daytime. This may be tried if found necessary.

Attending the conference besides Commissioner Allman were Capt. Zimmer of the uniformed force, Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, Major James U. Sammis of the Lincoln Park police, Capt. Timothy Howard of the South Park police, Major John Bauder, police department drillmaster, and Joseph L. Rategan of the Municipal court clerk's office.

INQUIRY STARTED INTO FIRE WHERE NINE WOMEN DIED

Cleveland, O., Feb. 3.—[Special.]—State authorities late today launched their investigation into the fire in which nine women inmates of the Ridgecliff sanitarium for the mentally diseased were burned to death shortly after midnight. Fire believed to have been of incendiary origin swept their cottage near the main building. Fifteen others were rescued.

Millard Smith, night male nurse who was first to see the flames, told State Fire Marshal Val Hafner that when he entered the basement of the building two separate fires were burning.

Kerosene in large quantities had been stored within 100 feet of the cottage and kindling was readily accessible.

Hafner inclined to the belief one of the inmates had started the fire, but the Geauga county sheriff's office took into custody a farmer who was said to have made threats against the life of Miss Virginia G. Glendening, superintendent of the hospital.

C. C. SHEPARD DIES IN OMAHA; RITES AT AURORA

Charles Clarke Shepard, 74 years old, well known manufacturer of railroad equipment and formerly a resident of Chicago, died at his home in Omaha yesterday, according to word received here by friends.

He was one of the founders of the Ingalls-Shepard Forging company of Harvey, and for many years served as vice president and treasurer of the firm. Previously he was an officer of the old Buda Foundry and Manufacturing company, also of Harvey. Although still interested in the Ingalls-Shepard company, he had been retired for a number of years.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Virginia Hard Shepard; a son, Charles C. Jr., and two sisters. Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Monday from the Healy chapel in Aurora. Burial will be in Spring Lake cemetery.

COAL CONCERNS PUSH FIGHT ON RAIL SURCHARGE

To File Briefs on Feb. 16, Then Argue Case.

With the presentation of arguments by coal interests yesterday the two day Chicago hearing before Commissioners Porter and Lee of the interstate commerce commission on the railroad surcharges, put into effect on Jan. 2, 1932, was concluded.

The railroads previously had presented their case in their request for maintenance of surcharges which under the existing order would end on March 31. Shippers are requesting that the surcharges be ended on March 31. Commissioner Porter stated at the conclusion of the hearing yesterday that all briefs must be filed with the commission by Feb. 16 and that oral arguments before the entire commission will be heard by the entire commission on Feb. 17.

Oppose Double Surcharge.

Representatives of coal shipping districts yesterday assailed the double imposition of surcharges in cases where a water shipment intervened between two rail journeys. The surcharge on certain coal shipments is 6 cents a ton. Shippers contended that where a water journey intervenes it is not fair to make two surcharges.

Railroad attorneys asserted that where there is an intermediate haul over which the interstate commerce commission has no jurisdiction there are two distinct railroad operations. Rates charged should be made on the basis of the two operations, they insisted, on a basis that would not favor the shippers of one section of the country over another.

The Railroad Credit corporation in its monthly report filed with the Interstate commerce commission yesterday reported that on Jan. 31, 1933, it had either actually made or authorized loans to roads totaling $53,259,918 to meet their fixed interest obligations. The funds utilized by the Credit corporations are derived from the freight surcharges, now the subject of an investigation by the commission. They are pooled by all the roads to be loaned to the weaker lines.

Of the loans authorized by the Credit corporation $48,165,052 actually are outstanding. The sum of $1,236,647 has been repaid and there is a balance of $3,860,219 to which the corporation is committed.

The rate increases for the first 11 months of 1932 totaled $57,159,070 and amounted to $4,957,977 in November.

E. G. Buckland, president of the Credit corporation, in his report to the chief executives of the participating carriers stated:

Provide Special Reserve.

"During the year 1932, the sum of $4,602,333 was set aside in a special deposit to provide a liquid reserve for tax refunds contemplated by the plan. Claims aggregating $66,211 have been approved and paid, leaving an available balance of $4,535,122. A recent survey indicates that this sum will be sufficient to meet presently estimated demands. Accordingly, the fund will be retained as now constituted until and unless a more definite statement of actual requirements warrants a change."

CLARKE DENIES INSULL INTEREST IN BRITISH DEAL

The Insulls have never had any interest in the English and American properties of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, Harley L. Clarke president of the corporation, declared yesterday.

His statement was made in reference to a London dispatch in THE TRIBUNE yesterday, quoting the London Evening Standard, that the former holdings of Samuel Insull Sr. in the common shares of the Edmundsons' Electricity corporation, Ltd., had been acquired by the Prudential Assurance company. The London article stated the assurance company had acquired the stock from the Greater London Counties Trust, Ltd. a subsidiary of Utilities Power and Light.

Mr. Clarke made public a cablegram from the Prudential company stating:

"The press is informed there is no foundation for a report that the Prudential Assurance company has acquired control of the majority of the ordinary shares of the Edmundsons' Electricity corporation. Some time ago the Prudential Assurance company made a short term advance on security of shares in the Edmundsons' corporation. The matter was an ordinary banking transaction."

Today's liquidation in public utility bonds with some resultant sharp recessions was attributed to President Elect Roosevelt's announcement of plans for a vast power development in the Tennessee valley, centering at Muscle Shoals.

Some selling came into bonds of Georgia Power, listed on the Curb exchange. Pressure was also directed against issues of Ohio Edison. Such issues, however, showed greater resiliency than yesterday.

STOCK LEADERS ARE IRREGULAR; GAIN SLIGHTLY

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 3.—The share market regained its balance today as liquidation dried up and shorts covered for the week-end. Bull interests made several half hearted attempts to get a rally under way by group rotation tactics, but such "weak sister" departments as the utility and tire issues nullified their efforts at every turn.

Final prices were irregular, with plus signs having a shade the better of it. Trading fell considerably behind the pace of the last two days, volume falling below the million share mark.

The news background remained unchanged in its larger aspects. Some traders were devoting their daily worry to the dividend meeting of General Motors slated for next Monday and pessimistic speculation continued to go the rounds on the outcome of the American Telephone rate meeting fixed for the middle of the month, but no new developments were forthcoming in either situation. The foreign political outlook likewise remained unchanged so far as its market importance was concerned.

General Motors Freely Sold.

In the case of General Motors many people felt cocksure that the corporation's dividend of 25 cents a share would be maintained, but the persistent selling which went on in the issue all day showed that those entertaining this confidence were very much in the minority. Du Pont, which holds 10,000,000 of the 43,500,000 shares of General Motors, was also under considerable pressure on the same score.

American Telephone sold down around 99 several times during the course of the day, but scrambled back to par each time, finishing at 100⅞, up a small fraction on the day.

Various other public utilities had their troubles. Consolidated Gas of New York was on the skids again and gave up another point. This popular blue chip is now selling more than 10 points below its price of early in January. The growing threat of a legislative investigation into light and power rates in this state is bothering this stock. The utility group as a whole sold to the lowest level in months.

New York Tractions Rise.

A mild feature of the day was the activity in New York traction shares which are popularly supposed to be in a way to benefit from a fare rise in the near future. Interborough and Manhattan modified guaranteed issues were both turned over in good volume, and both bettered their previous ratings substantially. Brooklyn-Manhattan also shared in the favor and made a new high for the year. At its high today Interborough was up more than 50 per cent over its price of last Monday.

Pool activity kept the gold stocks out in front and a point or so was gained by such issues as Homestake, Noranda, McIntyre, and Dome. Alaska Juneau advanced fractionally. Dispatches telling of the taking off of an inspection party on a tour of the McIntyre properties were given a lot of publicity, several market operators who have been reported active in these stocks here of late were included in the party.

Railroad shares dipped with the general list in the early dealings, but recovered before closing time. Estimates of a drop of from 22,000 to 25,000 cars in the weekly carloadings report due tomorrow tended to restrain any speculative enthusiasm that might have developed in behalf of the carriers.

STANDARD OIL CO. OF KANSAS SHOWS $61,971 NET PROFIT

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The 1932 report of Standard Oil Company of Kansas, covering operations of the new company for the nine months ended Dec. 31, shows net profit of $61,971 after all charges.

No comparison with the previous year is available inasmuch as assets of the old company were transferred to the new corporation early in 1932. The old company had a net loss of $463,432 up to the time of the change.

The report explains that the profits of the new company were due to a concentration of its business in production, whereas the major operations of the old company were confined to refining and marketing.

Weather Kills Big Part of Winter Wheat

The winter wheat crop in the southwest, the most important winter wheat producing area in the United States, is all but ruined, grain experts declare.

The government crop report on Dec. 1 showed throughout the nation the poorest condition for winter wheat on record, and the records go back to 1870.

Since then the condition in the southwest has become progressively worse, almost with each day. East of Kansas in what is called the "soft wheat belt"—Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and other central states—winter wheat is reported "fair to good," but in western Kansas and Oklahoma and northwest Texas and a territory including a fringe of other states, winter wheat has been practically wrecked, according to crop observers.

Moisture Is Lacking.

In this area—which contains eight million of the nation's 39 million acres of winter wheat land—there scarcely has been any rain since the crop was planted last fall. Dust storms have blown the wheat away in fields. To make matters worse, the weather for two months has been alternately freezing and thawing.

"Practically every day there has been a freeze and a thaw," Nat C. Murray, veteran crop expert, says. "One day in December Dodge City, Kas., experienced a temperature of 70 degrees, which is good growing weather. The next day it was 8 above zero.

"Some of the wheat never has sprouted. In other places it has sprouted and been killed. There has been little protective snow this season. As early as Dec. 1 the government estimated that 20 per cent of the acreage had been abandoned.

Reseeding Largely Balked.

"Where winter wheat is destroyed the farmers have no opportunity to reseed in the spring, except in certain areas in Oregon and Washington where both winter and spring wheat can be grown. I am informed that a lot of the winter wheat in the Pacific northwest has been killed out, but the chances are that some of it will be reseeded."

In view of the winter killing of wheat in the southwest Mr. Murray estimates that the winter wheat crop for the nation this year will be approximately 400 million bushels. Last season's crop was a short one but the total was about 442 million bushels. Normally the winter wheat crop is about 550 million bushels.

MAKERS OF TIRES LIKELY TO DROP "SECOND LINES"

New York, Feb. 3.—[Special.]—Abandonment of the manufacture of second line tires by major companies which have been producing them to meet the competition of mail order houses is being considered, according to information obtained in the financial district today.

The cost of making the second line goods has been virtually the same as the first line.

It is probable when the change is announced first line tires will be sold to compete with the mail order house prices.

J. P. Seiberling, vice president in charge of sales of the Seiberling Rubber company, announced today that his company would meet the new slash in tire prices although the cuts are viewed as most untimely and unnecessary.

SEARS ROEBUCK 4 WEEK SALES ARE $15,662,000

Sears, Roebuck & Co. yesterday reported sales of $15,662,000 for the period from Jan. 1 to Jan. 29. This was a decline of 17.6 per cent, or $3,347,000, from the corresponding period of 1932.

The period was added to the 13 month fiscal year, making fourteen periods for the 1932 fiscal period. The company's fiscal year hereafter will begin Jan. 30.

Sales totaled $295,723,000 for the fourteen periods as compared with $366,218,000 in the corresponding period of 1931, a decrease of $70,495,000 or 19.2 per cent.

CZYMCZAK URGES EASING BANK LAW ON TAX WARRANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 3.—M. S. Szymczak, controller of the city of Chicago, issued a statement today advocating a change in the federal reserve act to permit the central banks to increase their holdings of municipal tax anticipation warrants.

Under section 14 of the act purchases are limited to warrants of maturities not exceeding six months. The controller said that such a change would enable member banks of the Chicago district to purchase $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 of the city's warrants.

Fort Assails Tinkering with Debtor Laws

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The movement to lighten the mortgage burden through law received a slap in the face today from Franklin W. Fort, chairman of the home loan bank board, who told state degislatures that they should keep their hands off the situation unless they wished to make it worse.

"If legislatures generally are going to increase the difficulties of collecting debts in a way that will make it impossible for the holders of mortgages, even where no excuse exists for nonpayment, to get their money all lenders of mortgage money will cease lending," Chairman Fort warned.

Creditors Called Lenient.

"Lending institutions of their own free will seem to be handling their mortgages with great leniency," Fort said, admitting, however, that there were some exceptions to this general rule. He based his statement, he explained, on partial returns from a mortgage survey which the board is making.

"Disturbance with the established forms of legal process for collecting debts is certain to force lenders to stop lending," he repeated, and added that when the credit extensions of the home loan bank were approaching $75,000,000 was a particularly bad time for legislatures to tinker with the mortgage situation.

Borrower Carried Year.

Mr. Fort said that he had been very pleasantly surprised to find how universally institutions are carrying borrowers even though the borrowers are twelve months or more delinquent in their payments.

The survey being conducted by the home loan system involves building and loan associations, savings banks, and insurance companies. It was expected that the necessary statistics would be compiled within ten days and the results made public.

FOOD CONCERN'S NET PROFITS OF 1932 IMPROVE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 3.—The annual report of Standard Brands Inc., for 1932, which was issued today, shows a larger net profit than for 1931, despite the fact that gross profit last year was only $44,904,239, against $47,915,906 in 1931. The improvement was made possible by a sharp reduction in expenses, inventory adjustments, and foreign exchange losses.

The net income for 1932 was $15,001,491, after depreciation, federal taxes, minority interest, and foreign exchange losses, but before profit and loss items. This equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $1.14 a share on 12,575,866 shares of no par common stock. In 1931 net income, after a special inventory adjustment of $1,100,000, was $14,542,319, or $1.08 a share on 12,644,313 shares of common stock.

The quarter pound order is for steel strip six inches wide and .001 inch thick, the thinnest steel rolled. The quarter pound will require a 12½ foot length of the six inch wide strip. The order is worth 50 cents.

Such a strip is made in coils of 1,200 pounds, the strip being more than 11 miles long.

CATERPILLAR CO. REPORTS LOSS; BUYS OWN NOTES

Operations of the Caterpillar Tractor company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1932, resulted in a loss of $1,616,872, compared with a net profit of $1,361,200, according to a report to the stockholders by B. C. Heacock, president.

Sales for the year amounted to $13,258,595, compared with $24,143,138 in 1931, the report stated, a reduction of 45 per cent.

Mr. Heacock discussed the development of new products, including a Diesel powered tractor which, put on the market in 1931, met real tests on farms with success during 1932.

The report shows total assets of $42,762,019, including $2,773,025 cash and $4,573,947 in government securities. Notes, warrants, and accounts receivable were given as $8,502,197; inventories, $7,837,632; patents, trademarks and good will, $1 and land, buildings, machinery, and equipment, $17,983,267.

Liabilities include $6,809,000 in five year 5 per cent notes due in 1935. During the year $1,558,000 of these notes were purchased and retired by the company at a profit of $142,183.

Trade Reviews Find Business on Even Keel

New York, Feb. 3.—The trade reviews for the week again were positive in tone, but failed to agree completely on details in their reports.

Dun's says that stability in many lines of endeavor is more sustained than at any time in the last three years, Bradstreet's says that the business record of the week was about evenly balanced, and the Business Week says that business news is exciting rather than overwhelmingly important.

Changes in Right Direction.

"Changes appearing in the trade situation this week have been in the right direction and stability in many branches of activity is more pronounced than at any time in the last three years. While gains during the first month of the new year were not large, it was not expected that they would be, as evidence is accumulating that general trade during the first quarter will receive its strongest impetus during the closing weeks of that period.

"Confidence, however, is more in evidence and fundamental improvements are getting under way, despite the hesitation which has been occasioned by the postponement of plans awaiting the advent of the new administration."

Weather Hurts Business.

"Retail business in many parts of the country has been hurt by rapidly changing weather, in some instances mild weather has hurt the movement of winter stocks, while in others rain, the department store man's bugaboo, has slowed up sales. Industrial production, with the exception of Detroit, is inclined to lower levels.

"With the end of January approaching, the tide of failures which, as usual, came in with the new year, continued to ebb. The number of defaults in the week ended Jan. 26 to 605 was thirteen less than in the previous week. This may seem a rather high total, but a normal rate of failure is not usually reached until well along in February."

GOOD WEATHER HELPS RAILROADS TO PACIFIC COAST

January was a good month for traffic on western railroads. Operating expenses were kept down by favorable weather conditions between Chicago and the Pacific coast. There were no losses of consequence incurred through heavy snows and washed out bridges and tracks on most systems.

Loadings of freight on the seven large western systems, operating between Chicago and the Pacific coast, aggregated 502,115 carloads, a decrease from December of 24,179 cars, or 4.5 per cent. As compared with 1932, when 605,172 cars were moved, there was a decrease of 93,067 cars, equal to 15.3 per cent. Largest loadings of these railroads in recent years were in 1929, when loadings were 1,003,072 cars. In 1927 there were 1,001,033 carloads. In 1922 there were 768,372 cars.

	January, 1933.	December, 1932.	January, 1932.

CENT. REPUBLIC REDUCES R. F. C. DEBT 23 MILLION

Loans of $70,405,000 Chief Asset.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The ability of the Central Republic Trust company to repay the $66,423,762 balance which the report from Washington shows that it owes to the Reconstruction Finance corporation will depend upon its success in liquidating the seventy millions in loans which are still outstanding.

According to a statement of condition filed with the state auditor, the bank had $70,405,000 of unliquidated loans on Dec. 31, 1932. Of this total $48,613,000 are loans on collateral security, $8,131,000 are loans on real estate, and the balance, $13,660,000, are classified as "other loans."

The last previous statement, on Sept. 30, showed loans and discounts of $91,807,000. This was prior to the organization of the City National bank. The new bank took over only $17,000,000 of the loans and discounts of the old bank.

Cash Under Million.

The unliquidated loans represented 73 per cent of the Central Republic's total resources on Dec. 31. Cash amounted to only $973,000. The other principal group of assets consisted of bonds and other securities with a book value of $16,797,252.

The balance of resources at the close of the year was represented by $4,849,000 in real estate, $166,237 in United States government investments, $2,322,000 in "other resources," and $212,674 in customers' liability under letters of credit and acceptances. The latter item is offset by letters and acceptances held against the bank.

Practically all the liabilities are in bills payable of $70,243,000 which includes the balance due to the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The balance of the liabilities are represented in the balance sheet by capital, surplus, and undivided profits totaling $23,965,000, and reserve accounts of $1,180,276.

The R. F. C. report on loans to banks released last week showed that the Central Republic had repaid to the R. F. C. $23,576,238 of the $90,000,000 borrowed.

Amount of Loan in Doubt.

Ever since the Central Republic obtained its loan from the R. F. C. last summer there has been confusion of ideas concerning the amount of the loan. The latest R. F. C. report for the first time officially announces the amount as $90,000,000.

At the time the loan was made it was reported that the Central Republic had arranged to borrow $5,000,000 from other Chicago banks, $10,000,000 from a group of New York banks, and $80,000,000 from the R. F. C.

These arrangements were made, but Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, chairman of the Central Republic, insisted on the additional precaution of having the R. F. C. extend a commitment of $90,000,000 instead of $80,000,000, just in case there should be any difficulty about getting the $10,000,000 promised in New York.

The R. F. C.'s report showing a $90,000,000 loan indicates that the New York loan failed to materialize.

A rumor current at the time the loan was obtained placed the amount at only $16,500,000. That story was unfounded. It was prompted by the fact that prior to the arrangement for a big enough loan to cover all the deposits experts from R. F. C. headquarters had already made an investigation of the Central Republic's books to decide upon a smaller loan previously considered.

WOOD AND LEGGE TO TELL SENATE BUSINESS NEEDS

Gen. Robert E. Wood, president of Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company, will accept the invitations of the finance committee of the United States senate to present their views on the economic situation, it was learned yesterday.

They were asked to appear along with 50 other business leaders to give their views on the causes of the depression and on what legislative remedies may be needed from congress. They are scheduled to appear week after next.

Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National bank, also received an invitation. Although confirmation could not be obtained at his office yesterday, it is understood that he will accept.

A. Reynolds to Run Bank for Giannini

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Arthur Reynolds, ex-chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, said last night he has accepted an offer to become vice chairman and chief executive officer of the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association. That institution has headquarters in San Francisco and is one of the half dozen largest banks in the country.

A. P. GIANNINI.

"I am going to San Francisco to help develop the town into a still greater money center, just as I have done in Chicago," he told newspaper men in his rooms at the Chicago club last night. "I'm tired of loafing. After seven months of it I have decided that I can't stand it any longer.

Business Becomes Habit.

"I've been in business too long and have been active too long to quit now. It isn't any loafing job or honorary title that I am taking. It's an executive job and I'm going to be on the job with my coat off and both barrels going every day.

"It's one of the big jobs in the country, no doubt about it," Reynolds declared.

"I'm going to have the same opportunity in San Francisco that I had in Chicago. I came to Chicago 17 years ago from Des Moines, where I had been president of a bank for 20 years. I took an extremely active part in developing Chicago into a great money center and I am going to do the same thing in San Francisco. San Francisco is much more developed than Chicago was when I came here, but I will have just as much opportunity there."

Might Replace Gianinni.

Mr. Reynolds hinted that he eventually will become chairman of the board of the Bank of America, a position which is now held by A. P. Giannini, founder of the organization. Giannini recaptured control of the holding company last year from a group of eastern capitalists headed by Elisha Walker. Reynolds indicated that Giannini will turn over the executive reins to him when he takes over his new job on Feb. 15.

"Don't get the idea that I am taking a sinecure," Reynolds warned his hearers. "This is a real job. I never have felt better in mind and body and none of you fellows ever has seen me looking better."

The Bank of America organization, Reynolds declared, is now the fourth largest bank in the country. Total resources he said amount to 932 million dollars. It has moved up from fifth to fourth place in the last ten months, he said. Deposits during the period have jumped 100 millions and 215,000 new accounts have been acquired.

Bank Has 411 Branches.

The bank has 411 branches in 243 towns in California. Reynolds said he is confident that branch banking is the coming thing.

"Nobody knows how far it will go, but I think that it will be a state wide development at least," he said. "Our bank already is a state wide system, the only one in the country and we have the advantage over other institutions."

Reynolds said he expects to be in Chicago for another week. He will then go to Miami and from there to New York. He will take up active work by Feb. 15.

"I am ready to go to work again," he said. "A fellow goes to pieces if he loafs around and I am not going to let myself get that way."

Giannini Announces Appointment.

San Francisco, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A. P. Giannini, chairman of the board of the Bank of America National Trust and Savings association, said tonight Arthur Reynolds, Chicago banker, had accepted a high executive position with the Giannini organization.

Reynolds, Giannini said, will be a director and vice chairman of the Bank of American National Trust and Savings association, a national bank, and of the Bank of America of California, a state bank.

The new executive, Giannini said, will also serve as a member of the general executive committee and general finance committee.

NATIONAL BANKS ISSUE ONLY 17% INFLATION BILLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—National banks have called for only 162 million dollars of the 917 million dollars in new national bank notes which the Glass-Borah amendment to the home land bank act authorized them to issue six months ago, the treasury announced today.

The amendment, designed by its sponsors to mildly inflate the currency, has failed utterly to do so because there is no demand or need for the additional money, experts maintained. The amounts which the banks have drawn out have been used largely to improve their cash position or to reduce their indebtedness.

Lowest Demand in January.

Demands from the national banks for the new money have been diminishing each month, the treasury figures show, and in January only $2,990,300 was requested by the banks, the smallest sum for any of the last six months. Altogether the national banks have taken only 17 per cent of the funds made available to them.

Despite the fact that currency issued under the amendment has not inflated the monetary system but rather has merely replaced other forms of money such as federal reserve notes, administration banking officials, including Secretary of the Treasury Mills, Acting Controller of the Currency Awalt, and the federal reserve board, have lined up against the continuance of the new issuing power after it is scheduled to expire in 1935.

Government Fears Issue.

The administration fears the new notes largely because they are beyond the control of the federal reserve board. When demands for money increase, national banks will be able to draw out the new money without the administration being able to check the movement. Under these conditions, therefore, they believe the notes might be mildly inflationary. Moreover, their presence in the monetary system somewhat diminishes the influence of the reserve board.

The amendment enlarged the note issuing powers of the national banks by permitting the use for a period of three years of all government bonds bearing 3¾ per cent interest or less as collateral for national bank notes. Formerly only 2 per cent bonds could be used.

CHICAGO CORP. TO PAY 25 CENTS ON PREFERRED

Directors of Chicago corporation yesterday declared a 25 cent dividend on the convertible preference stock payable March 1 to stockholders of record Feb. 15. In the three preceding quarters 50 cent dividends had been paid. Originally the rate was $3 per year. The stock is cumulative.

Charles Glore, president of the corporation, issued the following statement:

"The corporation has $6,000,000 in cash or its equivalent in addition to its investment portfolio. Because of the prevailing low rate for temporary short term money income is necessarily restricted.

"The dividend declared today is in line with the policy of the directors to pay in dividends to preferred stockholders approximately the amount of income received by the corporation in cash dividends and interest on its investments."

Asset value of the stock was reported to be "in excess of $32 per share."

Hard Coal Prices to Be Cut $3 Per Ton in Chicago on April 1

The price of anthracite coal in Chicago and the rest of the territory west of Buffalo will be cut $3 per ton, effective April 1, it was learned yesterday. The reduction is the result of a conference held here recently between railroad officials and anthracite coal operators.

"The sale of anthracite coal in the middle west has declined from 10,000,000 tons annually to about 1,200,000 tons," Andrew T. Murphy, editor of the Black Diamond, trade paper of the coal industry, explained yesterday.

Roads and Operators Agree.

"Recognizing that this was a question of price, the coal operators and the railroads got together here recently. The roads agreed to reduce their charges $1 a ton and the anthracite operators said they would double the reduction in the railroad cut.

"Conferences were started on Dec. 1 between the mine owners and the unions regarding a reduction in pay. For a time the negotiations were deadlocked, but now it is understood the unions have intimated to the operators they will take a wage cut.

Split Cut Three Ways.

"Thus in the new price for anthracite the railroads will contribute $1 of the reduction, the operators $1 and the workers $1, making a total of $3. Anthracite coal of standard grade is currently selling in the Chicago district for $15.50 a ton. Under the new rates it will sell at from $12.50 to $13 a ton."

Mr. Murphy stated that the new rates do not apply to the territory east of Buffalo, where present rates will continue.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—House Democrats today turned thumbs down on the Republican drive for tariff legislation to protect American industry from the competition of imports from countries with depreciated currencies.

Speaker John N. Garner, in a manner to indicate that he has sounded out his house majority, declared today that "we are not going to pass any bill affecting depreciated currency at this session."

Deserves Consideration—Not Now.

"Undoubtedly," said the speaker, "the question deserves very reasonable study, but it would be foolish to try to deal with such a large problem when there is so little prospect for proper consideration in the house, much less in the senate. There is a lot of sentiment in favor of such legislation and it is apparently entitled to consideration—but it can't pass this session."

Mr. Garner stated that, if necessary, he and other Democratic house leaders will call the majority party into binding caucus on the problem. A test vote is to be had on Feb. 13, when the petition circulated by Representative John C. Schafer [Rep., Wis.] to bring the Crowther depreciated currency bill to the floor, comes up for a vote. Opposed by the Democratic majority, as was indicated by Mr. Garner today, the petition is virtually certain of failure.

Republicans Are Split.

The problem of providing legislation to accommodate American tariffs to lower production costs in countries which are on depreciated currency standards has split the Republicans into two factions so that the minority vote, normally in favor of the Schafer petition, will be divided.

Although the Crowther bill has the support of Republican Leader Bertrand H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.] and the reported sanction of President Hoover, many Republican members prefer the method provided in the Hawley bill supported by Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills and members of the federal tariff commission.

LONGS' SELLING HELPS REDUCE PRICE OF WHEAT

WHEAT PRICES IN GOLD

Buenos Aires, May	.37⅝	.37⅛

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Scattered liquidation has been in evidence in the nearby future in the last few days. Within less than two weeks the open interest has been reduced 4,208,000 bu to a total of 91,767,000 bu at the close of business on Thursday. An increase of 1,866,000 bu is indicated in the distant futures during the same period.

Closing of spreads between the Chicago and Winnipeg markets and also changing over of small lines from the May future into the July are said to have been a factor in reducing the open interest in the nearby delivery. Close observers of pit operations, however, say this does not fully account for the fact that there was a decrease of 637,000 bu in the May on Thursday, when the total sales were only 4,220,000 bu.

May Wheat 46¾c.

May wheat at the close yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade was 46¾c, and about ½c under the July, the widest difference in some time. Net losses for the day were ⅛@½c. The September finished at 48¼c.

Limited speculative interest in the market is regarded by a majority of traders as largely responsible for the erratic fluctuations which have been recorded in wheat of late. For nearly three weeks the May has held within a range of 2½c, and at the finish last night was within ¼c of the low figure during that period. However, after the easiness in stocks was considered and the unfavorable political and financial comment from Washington and abroad, many operators expressed the belief yesterday that wheat had given an excellent account of itself.

An easier undertone was in evidence in wheat at Winnipeg, which closed ⅛@¼c lower in Canadian funds. Liverpool was off ¼c per bu, although a better milling demand was said to be in evidence. Buenos Aires was up ⅛@¼c for the day.

Corn Nears Season's Low.

May corn dropped a fraction lower yesterday and at the inside figure was only ½c above the lowest level of the season, while the September broke new ground since trading in that delivery started. May touched 25½c and closed at that figure, while the July was 27¾@27¼c, and September, 28⅜@28½c, net losses for the day being ⅛@⅜c. Trade was largely of a local character.

The country sold 77,000 bu cash corn to arrive, and the increased offerings in the last few days coming at a time when prices were about the lowest of the season suggested to some that the long anticipated movement from the interior to terminal markets was getting under way.

Oats closed unchanged to ⅛c lower with a light trade. May was 16⅝c and July 16¾c at the last, while rye was unchanged to ½c lower, with May 33¾c and July 32¾c. Barley was off ⅜c for the day, with May at 26⅜c.

NEW "GOLD RUSH" TAKES BROKERS INTO CANADA

Thih rush, it was said, had taken the form of a trek to Canada of a party of several brokers and market operators to look over mining properties, chiefly in the province of Ontario.

This party of eight or ten, it was learned, left last night and included Bernard E. Smith, well known stock exchange member, who became popularly identified with the bear side of the stock market during the last three years, but who has been an enthusiastic bull on some of the gold issues. Another member of the party, it was learned, was Stuyvesant Fish, member of the stock exchange firm of Galloway, Fish & Co.

SHIPPING SALES AID HOG TRADE; CATTLE SLUGGISH

Eastern Inquiry Revives Swine Demand.

Hogs opened steady to 10c lower under pressure of receipts yesterday. Supported by broad eastern demand, the market reversed itself, recovering most of the loss. Shipping orders were largest in two weeks, taking 5,000 head. A shortage in supplies at leading outside points and relatively higher quotations in the east attracted buying orders to Chicago. The general average price for the day at $3.30 showed 5c loss, while the top sales were off 10c at $3.40. The spread of 10c is as narrow as it has been this winter.

Only once on record were these two prices less than 10c apart. Easiness at the opening brought large local packers on the market earlier than usual. In the ensuing competition principally between shippers and big packing houses, all interests were paying the extreme top for sorted 180@230 lbs averages.

Cattle Trading Is Dull.

The cleanup trade in the cattle alleys yesterday was a "catch as catch can" affair, almost devoid of features. Trading came almost to a standstill at times and competition was lacking from start to finish. However, this lack of interest on the part of the buyers was attributed to the poorer quality of the 1,500 head on sale. Quality is seldom good after Thursday.

No cattle eligible to top quotations were here. One load of good 1,000 lb yearlings brought $5.25. The bulk of the steers sold at $4.00@4.75. Yearlings are closing 25@50c higher for the week. Most heavy cattle have come up 50c in value, with the proportion exceeding 1,200 lbs in weight greatly reduced. This smaller quota of heavy cattle reduced the tonnage of beef more than the receipts figures for this week show.

Top Lambs, $5.85.

Lambs held in line with the close of Thursday, but showed as much as 10@15c loss compared with the early selling that day. City butchers bought sparingly at the $5.85 top, while larger local packers absorbed the bulk of better grades at $5.75 and below, according to weights.

Good 95 lb lambs are being discounted from 25c to 50c, while 100 lb averages and heavier lambs come under a stiffer penalty. Yearlings remained steady, while old mutton sheep ruled strong to 25c higher, with top light ewes for local kill at $3.00.

WHEAT BUYING HERE CHEAPER THAN FARMING

Brokers' Expert Backs Grower's Charge.

Wheat is selling at the present time at a price that leaves little or nothing to the farmer, considering cost of production and transportation to terminal markets, according to the leading authorities in Chicago.

A Pacific coast farmer's comment that it is far more to his advantage to buy wheat futures than to raise the grain now caused considerable comment, with May wheat in Chicago closing at 47¾c per bu on Thursday.

What it actually costs to produce a bushel of wheat is a mystery and probably will remain so, according to R. O. Cromwell, agronomist and statistician for Lamson Bros. & Co. That mystery is due not only to the wide variations, not only between states, but also on individual farms.

Recalls Kansas Inquiry.

"Several years ago I made an investigation into wheat production costs in Kansas," Mr. Cromwell said. "Take the case of the western third of Kansas. On raw land, without any improvements and with no allowance made for labor, interest on capital investment or for taxes, it was figured it cost around 25c a bu to raise wheat to harvest when the crop was a really satisfactory one. Of course, the cost would be somewhat lower at the present time. It cost 6c to 8c per bu to harvest the wheat and haul it to elevators then, and the cost might be down to 4c for this item at present. In one specific instance the actual cash outlay amounted to 18c per bu to harvest.

"In central Kansas I found the production cost much higher, possibly around 50c per bu, but this was due largely to the better farming methods. Adding labor, interest and other costs would bring the total up considerably."

Wide Difference Shown.

Mr. Cromwell called attention to the fact that an investigation made by the department of agriculture in 1919 showed a great variation in the net cost of raising wheat in various states. In Kansas, Missouri and Nebraska the cost of raising wheat, without allowing for land rent, ranged from 52c in 1914 up to $1.44 in 1919, while in the Dakotas and Minnesota during the same period the cost was 59c to $2.08 per bu.

Reo Motor Car.

I would appreciate greatly any information you can give me regarding Reo Motor company stock.—H. C. E.

Reo Motor Car company is one of the smaller producers of motor cars. It manufactures medium and high priced automobiles and trucks and buses. It was the pioneer in the low priced, high speed truck field.

Decreased demand for pleasure cars, especially for those in the higher price bracket, and trucks are reflected in the company's statements. The company sold 5,805 units in the first nine months of 1932. In the full 1931 year it sold 13,564 units, against 21,297 in 1930 and 35,187 in 1929.

Sales in the first nine months of 1932 were $6,902,000, against $14,914,000 for the corresponding 1931 period. Loss was $1,980,000, against loss of $1,344,000 for the first nine months of 1931. Sales in 1931 were $17,044,000, against $29,671,000 for 1930, $48,011,000 for 1929, and $59,758,000 for 1928. Loss for 1931 was $2,749,000, against loss of $1,989,000 for 1930. Net income for 1929 was $1,424,000, or 71 cents per share, against income of $5,034,000 for 1928.

During periods of large profits the company reinvested a large proportion of its earnings. This policy is mainly responsible for its favorable current position. On Sept. 30, 1932, current assets were $10,332,000 and current liabilities were $755,000. Working capital was $9,627,000, against $13,558,000 the year before and $15,722,000 on Dec. 31, 1930.

There is no funded debt. On Sept. 30, 1932, there were outstanding 1,800,000 shares of $10 par capital stock. On Dec. 27, 1932, stockholders voted par value from $10 to $5. The resultant $9,000,000 difference was to be transferred to capital surplus, from which was to be deducted $4,480,000 for write-down of fixed assets.

The capital stock paid dividends every year from 1905 to Jan. 2, 1932. Nothing, however, has since been paid. It is speculative.

North American Edison.

BOOTLEGGED OIL LIKELY TO LOWER REGULAR PRICES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 3.—A further slash is expected in the price of midcontinent crude oil to around 25 or 30 cents a barrel, with a substantial reduction in the price of the California product.

A further regular price cut would cause no surprise at all in well informed quarters for gasoline and other refined products made from the bootlegged crude reach the retail market at prices lower than those possible for refined products made from posted crude prices.

LONDON WOOL MARKET.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—At the wool auction today 7,240 bales were offered, of which 5,856 were sold. The good selection offered met with an active general demand. Quotations on fine merinos and crossbreds were firm, but lower grades were irregular. There were some withdrawals among greasy crossbreds and scoured merinos.
